ROBINSON FAVORS CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

MYSTERIOUS MAN SOUGHT IN PROBE OF MATTSON CASE

Police Seek Suspect Who Inquired Way To Abandoned Turkey Ranch

EX-CONVICT QUESTIONED BY TACOMA DETECTIVES

Stricken Family Of Kidnaped Boy Show No Outward Signs Of Despair

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Officers sought the trail of a mysterious stranger tonight in their widening hunt for 10-year-old Charles Mattson and his kidnaper, while scientists turned to ink specimens, and detectives held a former convict for questioning.

Police attention turned to the place where L. E. Rucker of Olympia reported a dark, bearded man approached his home Sunday night about an hour after the kidnaping and inquired the way to "an abandoned turkey ranch."

Rucker said the man refused to face the light, and otherwise acted suspiciously.

A poultry ranch owned by John Mattson, a relative of the kidnaped boy's father, Dr. W. W. Mattson, figured in the investigation when police visited it and later went into a huddle at Olympia.

The officers said they interviewed a Mrs. Mill, wife of the tenant who rented the place from John Mattson, but did not search the property. They said the woman told them her husband had been in South Bend, Wash., for a week.

Although the stricken family of Dr. Mattson showed no outward signs of despair, there was no indication of any important activity at their home.

The contact advertisement which ran for three days in the Seattle Times failed to appear in the Sunday morning edition.

At Tumwater, not far from Olympia, officers examined clothing and other articles found at a deserted camp site but apparently concluded they had no connection with the kidnaping.

Detective Captain Cliff Osborne said he would question further a 33-

FOOD DROPPED TO INDIANS IN SNOW

Many More Remain To Be Located And Rescued From Drifts

GALLUP, N. M., Jan. 2.—(AP)—E. R. Fryer, superintendent of the Navajo Indian reservation, returned from a flying trip late today with information that about 20 Indians, snowbound in wild country south of here, had been found and food dropped to them, but "many more" remained to be located.

Fryer said he and Pilot Bill Cutter received a radio report while on the flight that others were making their way out, and added that they saw a truck load moving slowly along a trail.

More than 300 Indians were marooned in various parts of the mountainous region from 30 to nearly 100 miles south and southwest of here.

As Fryer and Cutter returned, word was received from Ganado, Ariz., hospital of the safe arrival there of Arthur Hubbard, an Indian, and a sick child he brought through snowdrifts

NEW YEAR WELCOME COSTS LIVES OF 200

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—(AP)—More than 200 persons died violently in the nation's welcome to the New Year.

Traffic accidents accounted for 170 of the 214 unnatural deaths recorded on New Year's eve and New Year's day.

At least 44 died in fires, shootings, brawls, falls, suicides and cave-ins.

Thirty states reported one or more deaths by violence. Pennsylvania paced the states with 29 fatalities, 19 of which were traffic deaths. California was next with 22.

Five occupants of an automobile were killed when a train smashed into the vehicle at Bloomer, Wis. Three persons died in a Texas explosion.

The New Year's deaths swelled to at least 968 the toll of the nation's Christmas-New Year holiday period. There were 555 traffic fatalities and 306 violent deaths from other causes recorded during the long "Yuletide week-end" from December 24 through December 27.

TAG! DUCK'S IT

U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey is playing a game of tag with ducks on Lake Merritt, in Oakland, Calif. Officials tag ducks caught on the water as part of an annual survey started 21 years ago. Last year 5,000 ducks were counted and tagged by the bureau, and those recorded were shot in nearly every state in the Union. The tagging is done to gather data on migratory habits of wild fowl.

2 BODIES FOUND IN BURNED SHIP

Confirms Fears Five Perished While Salvaging Gasoline

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Jan. 2.—(AP)—The fire-blackened bulk of an abandoned oil tanker yielded two bodies today, confirming fears that five men perished in an explosion while salvaging its valuable gasoline cargo far out in upper Lake Michigan.

The explosion occurred yesterday evening aboard the 110-foot steel hulled Marold II as it lay alongside the tanker J. Oswald Boyd on Simmons reef where it was wrecked in November.

The victims were Captain L. L. Hill, 83-year-old commander of the Marold; Leon Hill, 59, his son; Everett Cole, 35; Raymond Cole, 33, and Bruce McDonough, 33, all of Beaver Island.

The fire spread to the tanker, which still contained most of its 900,000-gallon gasoline cargo. Not until that fire subsided could coast guard reach the wreckage.

This afternoon, coast guardsmen returned to the Charlevoix station bearing two bodies they found on the Boyd. The bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Captain Oscar Smith said his men had been able to search the deck of the Boyd and that no other bodies were there. The Marold rested on the bottom, only its stern and bow above water. He said it was inconceivable that anyone could have escaped alive.

WOMAN OUSTED BY GOVERNOR BALKS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Defiant Mrs. Irene Armstrong clung to her mayor's job today under protection of a court order which balked Governor Dave Sholtz's bayonet-backed effort to oust her.

Adjutant General Vivien Collins summoned 200 guardsmen yesterday to enforce the executive order seating a new city administration but the soldiers were sent home soon after Judge Herbert Frederick enjoined the Sholtz appointees from taking office.

"Nothing can be done before Monday," the adjutant general said in dispersing his soldiers. The writ is returnable for argument in Judge Frederick's court Monday afternoon.

Meanwhile, a detail of city police remained on guard in the city hall which was turned into an armed stronghold when the governor's removal order arrived. Mrs. Armstrong and other officials named in the ouster retired to their homes after providing their officers with cots.

The housewife-mayor orally proclaimed today as a second New Year's holiday, providing a reason for keeping the hall closed.

2 ARMY FLIERS' BODIES FOUND IN BURNED AIRPLANE

Identity Of Charred Craft Established By Markings On Fuselage

TREES SHEARED OFF WHEN PLANE STRIKES MOUNTAIN

Colonel Eglin And Lieutenant Burned Beyond Recognition By Flames

MUNFORD, Ala., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Charred wreckage of an army plane, which carried two service officers to their death in heavy rain and fog, was found today on Cheaha mountain.

The two victims were identified by army officers as Colonel F. I. Eglin, veteran army pilot, and Lieutenant Howard E. Shelton, Jr., naval officer.

Major John W. Martin, post adjutant at Fort McClellan, the army post at nearby Anniston, said identity of the plane was established by markings as the one in which Colonel Eglin and Lieutenant Shelton vanished in a flight from Langley field, Virginia, to Maxwell field, Alabama, yesterday.

The ship's left wing was torn off before it burst into flames.

Lieutenant L. G. Drafts of Fort McClellan informed officers there he found a chart of the route from Langley field to Maxwell field, near the scene of the wreck.

Both bodies were burned beyond recognition. Lieutenant Shelton was identified by a naval academy ring as the occupant of the rear cockpit of the two-seater. Authorities placed the time of the crash at 3 p.m., yesterday.

The ship was found by CCC camp members, approximately 2,500 yards from a stone tower atop Cheaha mountain, highest of the Appalachian peaks in Alabama, 50 miles from Birmingham. The area is in the Cheaha state park.

Trees had been sheared off for 800 feet before the ship nosed to earth.

Bodies of the two men were taken to Anniston tonight.

Captain Babcock of the CCC camp at Munford was the first man to reach the wreck, and to report the tragedy.

VETERAN SHERIFF DIES IN HOSPITAL

John C. Bass Of East Carroll Expires; Funeral Planned This Afternoon

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—John C. Bass, for 16 years sheriff of East Carroll parish, died this morning in a Vicksburg hospital. He was 54 years old.

Prior to his election as sheriff Mr. Bass served the parish as clerk of court and was one of the best known men in this part of the state. He was a member of the Pecan Grove Masonic lodge and a past patron of the Providence chapter of the Eastern Star.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Marguerite Montgomery Bass; two daughters, Miss Marguerite Bass, an employe in the state treasurer's office at Baton Rouge, and Mrs. L. L. Kirkpatrick of Lake Providence; and a brother, Baker Bass of Lake Providence.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence here and burial will follow in the Lake Providence cemetery.

Dr. W. H. Hamley, parish coroner, automatically became sheriff upon Mr. Bass' death, and will serve until a successor is named by Governor Richard W. Leche.

FUGITIVE WANTED FOR ALBANY, LA.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Sheriff N. H. de Bretton said today that a man held in Cleveland, O., as James Alton Jordan had been identified as a fugitive charged here with stealing an automobile belonging to G. H. A. Thomas of Albany, La.

The sheriff said the prisoner was arrested in Cleveland on a charge of assault to kill December 10, and that his fingerprints were identified by the federal bureau of investigation.

He said he would try to extradite him if he were not convicted in Cleveland.

De Bretton said the stolen car, which was found badly wrecked, was stored in a Waterproof, La., garage upon information supplied by the Cleveland sheriff's office. There was an unpaid towing bill of $30 on it.

GERMANY'S SHIPS MENACING PEACE

Vessels Put Spanish Civil War Back Into Danger Zone

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The German government tonight followed up its announcement that German warships had taken drastic action against two Spanish vessels with a flat declaration that such measures would be continued although the Spanish Basque regime at Bilbao regards them as "acts of war."

The ministry of propaganda announced German warships already had "retaliated" against two Spanish steamers for the recent seizure of the German freighter Palos by the Bilbao regime.

The pocket battleship Graf Spee had seized the Spanish freighter Aragon and forced it into an undisclosed Spanish insurgent port, it was announced. The cruiser Koenigsburg with shellfire had driven the freighter Soton aground on the Basque coast.

(Bayonne reported the Soton was refloated and continued toward Santander after a Spanish government plane flew over and forced the Koenigsburg to retire.

(The Basque government at Bilbao ordered its patrol boats to fire on any vessel attacking Spanish merchant ships after the Koenigsburg-Soton incident, which it said was "an act of war.")

"Whatever action the Basque government has taken will not hinder us from taking whatever steps we consider necessary," said an official of the propaganda ministry.

He said the Basque order to fire on foreign ships attempting to molest Basque shipping would not alter Berlin's policy of stopping Spanish ships until satisfaction has been given Ger-

MIZE RECOMMENDED FOR U. S. JUDGESHIP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Sidney C. Mize, veteran Gulfport, Miss., attorney, was recommended by Senator Pat Harrison today for the federal judgeship of the southern district of Mississippi.

The recommendation, transmitted to Attorney General Homer Cummings, had the approval of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, Mississippi's junior senator, who submitted Mize's name to Harrison as one of 20 he would favor for the post.

Mize, if he is appointed, will succeed Judge Edwin R. Holmes, whose nomination to the circuit court of appeals was opposed unsuccessfully by Bilbo last season. Harrison sponsored Holmes' nomination, and Bilbo broke with the senior senator over the issue, taking the stump against him in last summer's Democratic primary in which Harrison won renomination by an overwhelming majority.

Mize, a graduate of Mississippi college and the University of Mississippi, has been practicing law for more than 20 years.

ORDER STRIKERS TO LEAVE PLANTS

Court Injunction Restrains Men From Interfering With Others

DETROIT, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Strikers in two Fisher Body plants of the General Motors corporation at Flint were ordered to vacate the plants in an injunction signed today by Circuit Judge Edward D. Black. Sheriff's officers said that while 7,500 employes of the two plants were affected by the suspension of work, there were only about 200 "sit down" strikers in each building.

The men ceased work in both plants last Wednesday as part of the drive of the United Automobile Workers union, a Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate, to obtain a collective bargaining agreement with General Motors.

The order was obtained on petition of the General Motors corporation and was directed against the United Automobile Workers and more than a dozen union executives. It restrains the union members from interfering with any persons desiring to enter or leave the plants or from interfering with the delivery of merchandise to

Senator Says State Or Nation Should Regulate Working Conditions

SEVERAL PROPOSALS FOR DOING THIS DISCUSSED

Decisive Reduction In Number Of Federal Employes Predicted

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The idea of amending the constitution leaped suddenly to the forefront of congressional topics tonight when Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, said it was the "best method" to handle the wage and hour problem.

The Arkansas senator, back from the congressional opening Tuesday, dictated to reporters a declaration that supreme court decisions holding that neither the federal nor state governments had "power to prescribe maximum hours and minimum wages" had created "a very unsatisfactory condition."

Alternately fingering and puffing a cigar, he asserted the power should be given to the states or congress and predicted that the issue would be settled at this session.

He was careful, however, not to close the door to attempts to meet the hour and wage problem through legislation. Several proposals for dealing with the issue without an amendment are pending that are worthy of study, he said.

Identity Of Charred Craft Established By Markings On Fuselage

TREES SHEARED OFF WHEN PLANE STRIKES MOUNTAIN

Colonel Eglin And Lieutenant Burned Beyond Recognition By Flames

MUNFORD, Ala., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Charred wreckage of an army plane, which carried two service officers to their death in heavy rain and fog, was found today on Cheaha mountain.

The two victims were identified by army officers as Colonel F. I. Eglin, veteran army pilot, and Lieutenant Howard E. Shelton, Jr., naval officer.

Major John W. Martin, post adjutant at Fort McClellan, the army post at nearby Anniston, said identity of the plane was established by markings as the one in which Colonel Eglin and Lieutenant Shelton vanished in a flight from Langley field, Virginia, to Maxwell field, Alabama, yesterday.

The ship's left wing was torn off before it burst into flames.

Lieutenant L. G. Drafts of Fort McClellan informed officers there he found a chart of the route from Langley field to Maxwell field, near the scene of the wreck.

Both bodies were burned beyond recognition. Lieutenant Shelton was identified by a naval academy ring as the occupant of the rear cockpit of the two-seater. Authorities placed the time of the crash at 3 p.m., yesterday.

The ship was found by CCC camp members, approximately 2,500 yards from a stone tower atop Cheaha mountain, highest of the Appalachian peaks in Alabama, 50 miles from Birmingham. The area is in the Cheaha state park.

Trees had been sheared off for 800 feet before the ship nosed to earth.

Bodies of the two men were taken to Anniston tonight.

Captain Babcock of the CCC camp at Munford was the first man to reach the wreck, and to report the tragedy

MIZE RECOMMENDED FOR U. S. JUDGESHIP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Sidney C. Mize, veteran Gulfport, Miss., attorney, was recommended by Senator Pat Harrison today for the federal judgeship of the southern district of Mississippi.

The recommendation, transmitted to Attorney General Homer Cummings, had the approval of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, Mississippi's junior senator, who submitted Mize's name to Harrison as one of 20 he would favor for the post.

Mize, if he is appointed, will succeed Judge Edwin R. Holmes, whose nomination to the circuit court of appeals was opposed unsuccessfully by Bilbo last season. Harrison sponsored Holmes' nomination, and Bilbo broke with the senior senator over the issue, taking the stump against him in last summer's Democratic primary in which Harrison won renomination by an overwhelming majority.

Mize, a graduate of Mississippi college and the University of Mississippi, has been practicing law for more than 20 years.

Highways Closed, Trains Delayed As Blizzard Hits

Northwest Feels Sting Of Temperatures Well Below Zero

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—(AP)—A frigid wave followed a blizzard's cold trail into the midwest today.

Snow, ranging to more than a foot in depth, fell in the Dakotas, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska and Wisconsin.

As a mass of cold air moved eastward into the Missouri and Mississippi valleys, the northwest felt the sting of these sub-zero temperatures: Havre, Mont., —20; Helena, Mont., —15; Hot Springs, S. D., —6; Huron, S. D., —2.

Readings under the zero mark were reported throughout North Dakota and in Nebraska.

MANY MESSAGES SENT POPE PIUS

Kings And Presidents Offer Sympathy To Ailing Catholic Pontiff

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI, rallying courageously against illness but unable to gain strength, received today expressions of hope for his recovery from rulers throughout the world.

Diplomats accredited to the Vatican presented messages from their kings and presidents, conveying sympathy for the pontiff and wishes for his restoration to health.

The pontiff, in pain from the circulatory obstruction in his left leg and able to sleep but little, insisted upon discussing church problems with the Archbishop Jean Chollet of Cambrai whom he received briefly.

"No material change" was the Vatican report of his condition. A bursting varicose vein left an open wound in his leg, and physicians labored to

RAIN FORCES DOWN SHREVEPORT FLIER

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Gardner Nagle, Shreveport, La., aviator, was forced down on a road on the outskirts of Spartanburg late today when a pouring rain drowned out the motor of his open bi-plane.

He was en route from Charlotte, N. C., to Bryan, Tex., to deliver the plane, purchased in New York last week by a crop dusting concern by which he is employed.

Nagle made a perfect landing on a wide, open strip of highway.

Court Injunction Restrains Men From Interfering With Others

DETROIT, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Strikers in two Fisher Body plants of the General Motors corporation at Flint were ordered to vacate the plants in an injunction signed today by Circuit Judge Edward D. Black. Sheriff's officers said that while 7,500 employes of the two plants were affected by the suspension of work, there were only about 200 "stay in" strikers in each building.

The men ceased work in both plants last Wednesday as part of the drive of the United Automobile Workers union, a Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate, to obtain a collective bargaining agreement with General Motors.

The order was obtained on petition of the General Motors corporation and was directed against the United Automobile Workers and more than a dozen union executives. It restrains the union members from interfering with any persons desiring to enter or leave the plants or from interfering with the delivery of merchandise to

YOUNG WOMAN DIES OF BLOOD AILMENT

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 2.—(AP)—The death of pretty Miss Jaypee Keasley, 28, last night ended a seven-month fight against a rare blood infection that caught the national eye through use of a new type of French serum in treatment.

Only last Sunday her condition had been considered sufficiently improved to permit her removal from the Baptist State hospital to the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Keasley. There she died.

Twice planes flew shipments of the serum when the talented pianist appeared to be losing her battle against streptococcus viridans. One shipment came from Montreal, headquarters of the North American distributors of the medicine. The other was rushed from New York after shipment by boat from France. Physicians said they believed it was the first time the serum had been used in this country.

MAYORS REQUEST ADEQUATE RELIEF

Think $877,500,000 Will Be Needed From February 1 To June 30

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Declaring the country must carry a gigantic relief burden, despite better business, the United States conference of mayors tonight urged that the federal government provide $877,500,000 to give work relief to 2,700,000 persons from February 1 to June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

This exceeded the $750,000,000 Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, is understood to have proposed to the president.

With present work relief funds nearing exhaustion, the president indicated some time ago he would ask congress for an additional appropriation of $500,000,000 for the rest of the fiscal year. However, the latter made known that he was looking into the idea of transferring funds from some other source to augment this $500,000,000.

A bulky report was left at the White House by Paul Betters, secretary of the Mayors conference, whose members had surveyed relief conditions in 100 major cities.

Basing its estimate on an average pay of $65 a month, the report said $877,500,000 would keep at work 2,200,000 who were on WPA jobs on December 31 and provide jobs for 500,000 more "employables" estimated to be still on relief without jobs.

"He sincerely trusts and petitions that this responsibility will be fully accepted" said the report, which contained the following additional principles and recommendations:

"1. It should now be realized by

CONDITION OF VOSS CONTINUES SERIOUS

The condition of Earl Voss of 303 Texas avenue, who was stabbed in the chest late Friday by his brother-in-law, R. M. Carr, Monroe insurance man, continued serious, but as satisfactory as could be expected, last night at Riverside sanitarium, his physician said.

Voss' pleural cavity was penetrated by the blade of a small pocket knife, and his lung was slightly punctured. Barring infection or pneumonia, he is expected to recover.

The knife blade missed his heart about an inch, according to the physician.

Carr, arrested by B. H. Grayson and R. F. Graves, city motorcycle officers, was later transferred from the city jail to the parish jail. It was expected that he will be charged with stabbing with intent to kill if later indications point more strongly to Voss' recovery.

The stabbing took place at Voss' home. Carr allegedly had been drinking liquor and an argument developed between the two men. Carr then stabbed Voss over the heart, according to information reported to police.

WAY TO HANDLE WAGE AND HOUR PROBLEM SOUGHT

Senator Says State Or Nation Should Regulate Working Conditions

SEVERAL PROPOSALS FOR DOING THIS DISCUSSED

Decisive Reduction In Number Of Federal Employes Predicted

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The idea of amending the constitution leaped suddenly to the forefront of congressional topics tonight when Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, said it was the "best method" to handle the wage and hour problem.

The Arkansas senator, back from the congressional opening Tuesday, dictated to reporters a declaration that supreme court decisions holding that neither the federal nor state governments had "power to prescribe maximum hours and minimum wages" had created "a very unsatisfactory condition."

Alternately fingering and puffing a cigar, he asserted the power should be given to the states or congress and predicted that the issue would be "settled at this session."

He was careful, however, not to close the door to attempts to meet the hour and wage problem through legislation. Several proposals for dealing with the issue without an amendment are pending that are worthy of study, he said.

Seated at the head of a long table surrounded by scribbling newspapermen, Robinson discussed a host of issues, noting such a volume of them that he forecast a long session. Some of his statements, in brief, were that:

He, personally, would like to see a modification of the tax on corporation surpluses to encourage "investments in new enterprise" and "perhaps" to aid heavily debt-ridden corporations; but he does "not look for any important revision" of the tax laws at this session.

A "decisive" reduction in the number of federal employes, "particularly relief workers," should be made in the "early future" but federal aid

DRIVER OF DEATH CAR KILLS SELF

Man Ends Life After Woman Companion Fatally Injured

MANSFIELD, La., Jan. 2.—(AP)—A coroner's jury, empaneled at Mansfield yesterday afternoon, returned a verdict of suicide and accidental death in the case of John Frazier, 45, town marshal of Mansfield, and Mrs. Winnie Dillard, 24, a waitress. Mrs. Dillard was killed early Friday morning when an automobile driven by Frazier, and also occupied by Miss Grace Cox, 24, a waitress, and Sidney Magness, 55, Mansfield cafe operator, left the road and plunged into a creek three miles south of Stonewall, DeSoto parish. Frazier, unable to aid Mrs. Dillard after Magness and Miss Cox had crawled from the car, shot himself in the head with a .38 pistol. He died instantly.

Dr. W. B. Hewitt, DeSoto parish coroner, after an examination of the two bodies, declared that Mrs. Dillard died of a broken neck, received when the car left the road and overturned. Frazier died from the bullet wound, the coroner said.

The Cox woman escaped with a few minor bruises but Magness, examination showed, suffered several fractured ribs and a dislocated vertebrae which may keep him confined to a hospital for several weeks.

Funeral services for Frazier were held at Mansfield this morning.

MAN SHOOTS MOTHER AND ENDS OWN LIFE

WACO, Tex., Jan. 2.—(AP)—An inquest verdict of suicide was returned today in the death of Charles Gordon Hill, about 30, who died of gunshot wounds soon after his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hill, 70, was shot and seriously wounded.

Police Chief Woody Zachary said Mrs. Hill told invertigating officers that her son shot her.

Mrs. Hill was shot through the abdomen and Hill died of two pistol bullet wounds in the head. A .30 caliber automatic was used.

Doctors said Mrs. Hill had a good chance to recover. She is the widow of B. H. Hill, a plumbing contractor. Her son lived here with her.

WAY TO HANDLE

should be continued if industry fails to re-absorb the workers.

A completely balanced budget is not to be expected in the next fiscal year, but he is "hopeful that this may be accomplished within two years."

Except for expiring laws, there is "no occasion for haste" in legislating this time.

Measures will be advanced during the session to change the social security act, strengthen neutrality laws and improve farm tenancy conditions.

The reciprocal trade laws must be extended, but no general tariff revision is in sight.

Robinson was questioned at length about a constitutional amendment. He said an "amendment may prove necessary" and that the problem would "receive consideration early in the session."

He said he was not prepared to discuss the O'Mahoney bill to require federal charters for corporations, or any other specific proposals for dealing with the wage and hour problem, but that "a number of measures" had impressed him as "worthy of consideration."

"I am strongly inclined to the opinion," he added, "that a well considered constitutional amendment may prove the best method.

"To me it is a very unsatisfactory condition that neither states nor federal government should have the power to prescribe maximum hours and minimum wages.

"It is my thought that the power should be established either in the states or in the congress and that the decisions of the supreme court preclude effective legislation without an amendment.

"Admittedly, such an amendment would provoke much debate and require a considerable time. I do not preclude myself from supporting any legislation which I may become convinced will make possible the reasonable control by public authority over the subject matter of maximum hours and minimum wages."

Questioned about curtailing the supreme court's power to rule laws invalid, Robinson said he had no amendment in mind relating to the power of the court "that I intend to advance" unless it should be in connection with a broader amendment such as the one he had already discussed.

But Robinson said it was his belief "something should be done" about the wage and hour question.

"It is incomprehensible," he added, "that there is no public authority to protect women or children, or men, from working any number of hours their employers want.

"I don't hesitate to say the decision of the supreme court on minimum wages and maximum hours was erroneous and ought to be reversed and that is the judgment of the bar. The decision in the New York minimum wage law was bad law. But it is binding, of course, and I am making no attack upon the court."

I endured awful pain in my chest and sides, could not sleep at night and was gradually getting worse I was in such a general run-down condition. My entire system seemed filled with poisons and in spite of all I tried I could not find anything at all to help me. Soon rheumatism settled over my body, my knees were terribly affected, lost control of my limbs at times and often would fall. I spent a small fortune trying to get relief—tried first one thing then another—but with no beneficial results until I finally began this Gly-Cas—it went right to the source of my health troubles as if made for me alone."

"Gly-Cas is the very medicine I should have had years before," she continued. "In spite of the failures of all kinds of medicines before in my case I am now feeling like my former self again. Gly-Cas regulated my stomach and kidneys, removed those awful poisons from my system and I am again like a new person. That awful gas and bloating has gone, enjoy my meals without any distress afterwards, sleep good and can eat anything I want. Even those rheumatic pains have been driven from my limbs, get around with ease and cannot say half enough in praising such a remarkable remedy as this new Gly-Cas. I did not realize a single medicine could be so wonderful."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns. —Adv.

Speakers, including Thomas Parran, right, surgeon general of the United States, and R. A. President Roosevelt said attainment of objectives "would do much to conserve our human resources."

and from the buildings, or from injuring property or intimidating workers.

Flint police immediately were sent to the plants to serve the order upon the strikers.

Leaders of the giant motorcar industry, at the start of what they expect to be a 5,000,000 unit production year, looked tonight to the end of a three-day holiday on Monday to determine whether additional plants are to be closed by the union's drive for a collective bargaining agreement.

Strikes called by the United Automobile Workers of America have closed seven General Motors corporation plants, most of them Fisher Body division units. Five other General Motors plants, among them Buick and Chevrolet, have been forced to close or shut down assembly lines as a result.

More than 30,000 General Motors workers are idle now. Stop orders sent to parts suppliers threaten to cause additional closings.

Union officials, headed by their youthful president, Homer Martin, completed plans tonight for a meeting in Flint tomorrow of union representatives from 10 cities in which General Motors has plants. The meeting is to consider a collective bargaining contract, which union officials said, is to be used as the basis for negotiations with General Motors.

AUTHENTIC RANSOM LETTER PUBLISHED

SEATTLE, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Post-Intelligencer published tonight under copyright, what it termed the authentic ransom note left a week ago tomorrow night by the kidnaper of Charles Mattson, 10, in Tacoma.

The asserted text follows:

"Get eighteen thousand dollars, five and ten dollar old bills, number not to run consecutively.

"Get ten thousand in fifty dollar old bills, numbers not to run consecutively.

"This amount will double each week.

"The boy is safe.

"When you are ready, insert in personal column of the Seattle Times—'Mabel, what is your address, Ann.'

"Disregard any notes received by you unless this type and this color ink is used and signed 'Tim.'

"Use an old Ford car.

"Tim."

The story, dated Tacoma and written by a P-I staff reporter, said the note was printed by means of a toy rubber printing set on a sheet of loose-leaf notebook paper; that here and there an occasional letter was penned in and that it was punctuated in ink of a peculiar color.

The paper said it would not disclose the color of the ink nor the style of type.

The newspaper asserted it had discovered that the note was written several weeks previous to the Mattson kidnaping. It said the note was intended for the abduction of the 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Franklin, who had purchased Haddaway hall, the mansion of the late J. P. Weyerhaeuser, grandfather of George Weyerhaeuser who was kidnaped and bought back by his parents for $200,000 a year ago last summer.

"4. That in meeting this responsibility work and jobs and not soup kitchens and bread lines is the American method.

"5 That provision for the unemployable group is a truly local and state responsibility which should in all cases be assumed.

"6. That the present WPA has done and is doing useful and needed public work of benefit to the people."

The report included statements from authorities in the 100 cities praising WPA projects as "useful" and contending there was little prospect of reducing the relief load in the next five months.

The 2,700,000 figure was declared to be the "minimum load facing the country in spite of industrial upturn and substantial business recovery."

"While improvement in business in general and the reemployment of private industry since last March has been substantial and encouraging, and the trend is still undoubtedly upward," the report said, "the fact remains that these economic advances have not obviated continuing need for direct relief and for WPA work opportunities for the destitute employable persons."

Si Morehouse, transcontinental and Western Air pilot, said at Albuquerque the radio operator at El Moro field reported three truck loads of men, apparently those for whose safety concern was felt, passed El Moro this afternoon en route to Ramah.

Morehouse got the information in a radio conversation.

He said he did not see the trucks himself.

El Moro field is near the region where the Indians have been snowbound.

Although the United States weather bureau at Albuquerque saw some relief from last night's temperature of ten degrees below zero, Meteorologist F. L. Hardy said the mercury probably would reach zero tonight.

Fryer said there was "no doubt that the Indians are suffering" from exposure and lack of food, but expressed belief "they can survive for a time on horse meat and pinon nuts."

Scouts who came through the snow with word of their tribesmen's plight said they were killing and eating their horses.

Before taking off for the aerial survey, Fryer charged that "fly-by-night" traders who brought "the Indians in to exploit them during the pinon harvest" had failed to make arrangements for returning them to their reservation north of here.

He said he was informed by truckers of the region that the Indians had asked the traders to remove them a week ago, but that nothing had been done.

should be continued if industry fails to re-absorb the workers.

A completely balanced budget is not to be expected in the next fiscal year, but he is "hopeful that this may be accomplished within two years."

Except for expiring laws, there is "no occasion for haste" in legislating this time.

Measures will be advanced during the session to change the social security act, strengthen neutrality laws and improve farm tenancy conditions.

The reciprocal trade laws must be extended, but no general tariff revision is in sight.

Robinson was questioned at length about a constitutional amendment. He said an "amendment may prove necessary" and that the problem would "receive consideration early in the session."

He said he was not prepared to discuss the O'Mahoney bill to require federal charters for corporations, or any other specific proposals for dealing with the wage and hour problem, but that "a number of measures" had impressed him as "worthy of consideration."

"I am strongly inclined to the opinion," he added, "that a well considered constitutional amendment may prove the best method.

"To me it is a very unsatisfactory condition that neither states nor federal government should have the power to prescribe maximum hours and minimum wages.

"It is my thought that the power should be established either in the states or in the congress and that the decisions of the supreme court preclude effective legislation without an amendment.

"Admittedly, such an amendment would provoke much debate and require a considerable time. I do not preclude myself from supporting any legislation which I may become convinced will make possible the reasonable control by public authority over the subject matter of maximum hours and minimum wages."

Questioned about curtailing the supreme court's power to rule laws invalid, Robinson said he had no amendment in mind relating to the power of the court "that I intend to advance" unless it should be in connection with a broader amendment such as the one he had already discussed.

But Robinson said it was his belief "something should be done" about the wage and hour question.

"It is incomprehensible," he added, "that there is no public authority to protect women or children, or men, from working any number of hours their employers want.

"I don't hesitate to say the decision of the supreme court on minimum wages and maximum hours was erroneous and ought to be reversed and that is the judgment of the bar. The decision in the New York minimum wage law was bad law. But it is binding, of course, and I am making no attack upon the court."

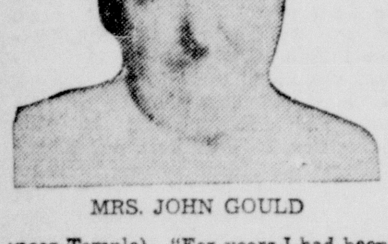
CONDITION SERIOUS

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 2.—(AP)—G. O. Houston, secretary of the State Teachers' association, who was removed to a local sanitarium several days ago suffering from heart trouble and complications, was reported this morning to be in virtually hopeless condition. Serious doubt was expressed at the sanitarium that he would recover, although he might possibly improve sufficiently to leave the sanitarium.

Didn't Realize A Single Medicine Could Do So Much

Gly-Cas Gives Mrs. Gould Amazing Results After Fifteen Years Of Suffering; Rheumatism, Stomach Disorders Yield Easily, Feeling Like Former Self Again.

"Gly-Cas should not be confused with the ordinary medicines of today for it is the first I have ever taken that did exactly as it claimed," said Mrs. John W. Gould, Lampasas, Tex.



MRS. JOHN GOULD

(near Temple). "For years I had been a constant sufferer of gas on my stomach," she continued. "I would belch dreadfully, foods soured and my stomach would burn after eating. I endured awful pain in my chest and sides, could not sleep at night and was gradually getting worse I was in such a general run-down condition. My entire system seemed filled with poisons and in spite of all I tried I could not find anything at all to help me. Soon rheumatism settled over my body, my knees were terribly affected, lost control of my limbs at times and often would fall. I spent a small fortune trying to get relief—tried first one thing then another—but with no beneficial results until I finally began this Gly-Cas—it went right to the source of my health troubles as if made for me alone."

"Gly-Cas is the very medicine I should have had years before," she continued. "In spite of the failures of all kinds of medicines before in my case I am now feeling like my former self again. Gly-Cas regulated my stomach and kidneys, removed those awful poisons from my system and I am again like a new person. That awful gas and bloating has gone, enjoy my meals without any distress afterwards, sleep good and can eat anything I want. Even those rheumatic pains have been driven from my limbs, get around with ease and cannot say half enough in praising such a remarkable remedy as this new Gly-Cas. I did not realize a single medicine could be so wonderful."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns. —Adv.

LAUNCH WAR ON VENEREAL DISEASES

SYPHILIS KILLS BABIES
CONTROL SYPHILIS
U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE
NEA

A vigorous, outspoken attack on venereal diseases in the United States, and against the prejudice, fear, and hypocrisy which have impeded the fight, was launched under the banner shown above, as 300 experts on control measures, including physicians from 32 states, held a "council of war" in Washington. Speakers, including Thomas Parran, right, surgeon general of the United States, and R. A. Vonderlehr, left, assistant surgeon general, shown at the parley, outlined education, discovery of infectious cases, and treatment as the three points of attack. President Roosevelt said attainment of objectives "would do much to conserve our human resources."

ORDER STRIKERS

and from the buildings, or from injuring property or intimidating workers.

Flint police immediately were sent to the plants to serve the order upon the strikers.

Leaders of the giant motorcar industry, at the start of what they expect to be a 5,000,000 unit production year, looked tonight to the end of a three-day holiday on Monday to determine whether additional plants are to be closed by the union's drive for a collective bargaining agreement.

Strikes called by the United Automobile Workers of America have closed seven General Motors corporation plants, most of them Fisher Body division units. Five other General Motors plants, among them Buick and Chevrolet, have been forced to close or shut down assembly lines as a result.

More than 30,000 General Motors workers are idle now. Stop orders sent to parts suppliers threaten to cause additional closings.

Union officials, headed by their youthful president, Homer Martin, completed plans tonight for a meeting in Flint tomorrow of union representatives from 10 cities in which General Motors has plants. The meeting is to consider a collective bargaining contract, which union officials said, is to be used as the basis for negotiations with General Motors.

Jena

Among the college students who were home during the holidays were:

Louisiana State university—Wendell Blake, Orville Haynes, Curtis Hodges, Merle Floyd, Wilfred Gaharan, Frank Doughty, Sam Lanier.

Louisiana Tech—Stanley Owens and Dorothy Walker.

Louisiana Normal—Ethlee Taylor, Erma Lee Fortson, Clyde Roark, Esta Mae Wade.

Southwestern—Dan and Katherine Wilbanks.

L. S. U. Northeast Center—Luke Timberlake and Mary Finn Andrews.

Louisiana college—Carolyn Humphries.

Hardner Gaharan, former Jena High school basketball and football coach, was home during the holidays from Louisiana State university Medical center in New Orleans, where he is finishing his medical course.

Jack Watson of Alexandria was a holiday visitor here for several days.

Tommy Oates of Alexandria is here visiting among friends and his grandmother, Mrs. C. B. Perrin.

Miss Mary Lee Baker of Port Arthur, Tex., spent several days here with relatives.

Miss Mildred Russell has as her guests, Misses Nell Turrentine and Elaine Holt of Pollock.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Willis and son and Miss Sybil Davis of Shreveport are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ike Wilbanks.

C. A. Docherty of St. Francisville visited friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stafford and children of Memphis, Tenn., visited friends here.

Colonel E. F. Wade of Aberdeen, Wash., spent two days with relatives in Urania and Olla.

Persons who smoke marihuana, dope contained in the "loco" weed, are known as "reefers." Officials estimate there are 200,000,000 addicts throughout the world.

St. Joseph

Miss Esther Saragusa has returned from a visit to Denison, Tex., where she spent the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pihilip Saragusa.

Mrs. William Dunckleman of Natchitoches was a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Holman Smitha for the Christmas holidays.

William Slaughter of Natchez, Miss., was a guest of Mrs. Bonds Ratcliff and Miss Caralyn Ratcliff.

Misses Ethel and Lucille Reiber and Clarence Reiber had as their guests for a week-end, their sister, Mrs. H. M. S. Stiles, and Mr. Stiles of Crowley.

Miss Rosa Guice of Waterproof was a guest recently of her niece, Mrs. John Redditt.

Henry Skinner of Melvin, Ark., was a visitor in St. Joseph during the Christmas holidays. While here, Mr. Skinner divided his time between his brothers, Charles C. Skinner and Mr. Fred Skinner, and other members of the family. Mr. Skinner at one time made his home in St. Joseph.

Mrs. Margaret Post Hardin of Parma, Mo., and her young son and Miss Martha Post of Grenada, Miss., were guests for the holidays of their mother and sister, Mrs. Alice Post and Miss Marian Post.

Mrs. Katie Watson and Ernest Watson have arrived in St. Joseph from New Orleans, where they spent the fall and early winter, and are occupying apartments in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Whitaker.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shaw have returned to their home in Memphis, Tenn., after spending the holidays with Mrs. Shaw's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Steve W. Smith.

Mrs. Georgia L. Wilson of Baton Rouge and her daughter, Miss Winnie Wilson, were guests for the holiday season of Mrs. Wilson's mother, Mrs. M. O. Lynch, at New Light.

build up the pope's resistance to possible infection.

Among the notes of sympathy today was one from King George of England, presented by the British minister and constituting the first expression by the new monarch to the pope.

The pontiff heard mass said by his secretaries in the chapel next to his bedroom, then received Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, and later conferred with the archbishop.

The pope "is mentally the same as when I saw him three years ago," the French visitor said.

"While there is no doubt the holy father has suffered greatly, he still has all his strength mentally.

"The pope remarked he had been glad to suffer so tremendously because he was able to offer himself to the Lord and because it gave him an appreciation of the suffering of others."

NAZIS MUST EAT STEW

All of Germany's 67,000,000 inhabitants must eat hot-pot stew one day each month. They will be unable to obtain anything else. Hot-Pot Sunday will take place every month throughout the winter. It is part of Hitler's plan to collect funds for the poor and needy. In restaurants the full price for lunch is charged and the difference given to the fund. At home one is expected to contribute not less than 12 cents per head as the difference between the cost of a normal meal and the hot-pot one-course lunch.

MYSTERIOUS MAN

year-old former convict detained "for investigation" last night when he attempted to sell a cameo ring.

The man's general appearance tallied in many respects with the description of the dark, bewhiskered man who smashed his way into the Mattson home here a week ago and carried off Charles while three other children looked on, powerless to do anything.

Rucker's description of the stranger at his home also checked in many particulars with that of the abductor.

The Olympia man said the stranger parked for about 10 minutes in front of his home before venturing to the door to ask the way to "an abandoned turkey ranch."

AUTHENTIC RANSOM LETTER PUBLISHED

SEATTLE, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Post-Intelligencer published tonight under copyright, what it termed the authentic ransom note left a week ago tomorrow night by the kidnaper of Charles Mattson, 10, in Tacoma.

The asserted text follows:

"Get eighteen thousand dollars, five and ten dollar old bills, number not to run consecutively.

"Get ten thousand in fifty dollar old bills, numbers not to run consecutively.

"This amount will double each week.

"The boy is safe.

"When you are ready, insert in personal column of the Seattle Times—'Mabel, what is your address, Ann.'

"Disregard any notes received by you unless this type and this color ink is used and signed 'Tim.'

"Use an old Ford car.

"Tim."

The story, dated Tacoma and written by a P-I staff reporter, said the note was printed by means of a toy rubber printing set on a sheet of loose-leaf notebook paper; that here and there an occasional letter was penned in and that it was punctuated in ink of a peculiar color.

The paper said it would not disclose the color of the ink nor the style of type.

The newspaper asserted it had discovered that the note was written several weeks previous to the Mattson kidnaping. It said the note was intended for the abduction of the 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Franklin, who had purchased Haddaway hall, the mansion of the late J. P. Weyerhaeuser, grandfather of George Weyerhaeuser who was kidnaped and bought back by his parents for $200,000 a year ago last summer.

the nation that the problem of unemployment relief is no longer of an 'emergency' character.

"2. That unemployment is a nation problem requiring continuing national action.

"3. That federal responsibility for those who are involuntarily unemployed and destitute is both proper and required by present conditions.

"4. That in meeting this responsibility work and jobs and not soup kitchens and bread lines is the American method.

"5 That provision for the unemployable group is a truly local and state responsibility which should in all cases be assumed.

"6. That the present WPA has done and is doing useful and needed public work of benefit to the people."

The report included statements from authorities in the 100 cities praising WPA projects as "useful" and contending there was little prospect of reducing the relief load in the next five months.

The 2,700,000 figure was declared to be the "minimum load facing the country in spite of industrial upturn and substantial business recovery."

"While improvement in business in general and the reemployment of private industry since last March has been substantial and encouraging, and the trend is still undoubtedly upward," the report said, "the fact remains that these economic advances have not obviated continuing need for direct relief and for WPA work opportunities for the destitute employable persons."

Ferriday

Richard Dale, Jr., was a week-end visitor here.

Wilkes Harmon, who has been working with the United States engineers at New Orleans, spent the Christmas holidays with his family here.

Norman Lawrence of Natchez, Miss., visited friends here during a week-end.

Miss Sarah I. Jones, Concordia parish librarian, has resumed her duties here following a Christmas visit in Baton Rouge with her mother, Mrs. R. P. Jones.

Among the college students returning to their studies after spending the Christmas holidays here with relatives are: Margaret Frances, Catherine Wiseman, Elizabeth Waddell, Frances Thomas, Milt Wilson, D. E. Brown, Lloyd Paul, Truman Reeves, Floyd Vallery and Franklin Foster, all of Louisiana State university; Martha and Jean Fleming, Martha Virginia De Prato, Charles Loomis and Steve Hermon, all of Louisiana State Normal college; Ruth Jane Wilgus, Peabody college; and Willard Schuchs, Louisiana college.

C. W. Fairbanks of Houston, Tex., visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lovelace Fairbanks, during the holidays.

Donald Orr, teacher at Louisiana college, spent the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Casey Orr.

Charles Cochran, son of Mrs. P. W. Mulvihill of Natchez, Miss., and a midshipman of the U. S. Naval academy at Annapolis, Md., visited friends and relatives here during the holidays.

Fryer blamed "fly-by-night" traders for the Indians' predicament.

Si Morehouse, transcontinental and Western Air pilot, said at Albuquerque the radio operator at El Moro field reported three truck loads of men, apparently those for whose safety concern was felt, passed El Moro this afternoon en route to Ramah.

Morehouse got the information in a radio conversation.

He said he did not see the trucks himself.

El Moro field is near the region where the Indians have been snowbound.

Although the United States weather bureau at Albuquerque saw some relief from last night's temperature of ten degrees below zero, Meteorologist F. L. Hardy said the mercury probably would reach zero tonight.

Fryer said there was "no doubt that the Indians are suffering" from exposure and lack of food, but expressed belief "they can survive for a time on horse meat and pinon nuts."

Scouts who came through the snow with word of their tribesmen's plight said they were killing and eating their horses.

Before taking off for the aerial survey, Fryer charged that "fly-by-night" traders who brought "the Indians in to exploit them during the pinon harvest" had failed to make arrangements for returning them to their reservation north of here.

He said he was informed by truckers of the region that the Indians had asked the traders to remove them a week ago, but that nothing had been done.

BATON ROUGE POLICE WEAR NEW UNIFORMS

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Louisiana's state police went into neat blue-gray uniforms trimmed with red to start the new year.

The approximately 120 members of the state constabulary have heretofore worn khaki uniforms if they were highway officers and civilian clothes if not.

The buttons of the new uniforms are silver, and the pelican, the state's symbolic bird, is on the left sleeve.

The badges are in the state's geographic shape with the rank imposed if the officer is above the status of patrolman. The patrolman badges bear the words "state police."

Boots and revolver holsters complete the sartorial effect.

FOURTH VICTIM OF BLAZE DIES

Two Other Young Selma, Ala., Matrons In Critical Condition

SELMA, Ala., Jan. 2.—(AP)—A fourth victim of fire at a holiday costume ball died in a hospital here today as two other young Selma society matrons remained in "critical" condition.

Mrs. Bernard Reynolds died at 3 a.m., approximately 77 hours after a match, used to light a cigarette, accidentally ignited Cossack costumes of the young women lined up for the grand march of the annual Phantoms club Christmas ball, at the Selma Town and Country club.

Two others, Mrs. Tyler Wilby Cleveland and Mrs. Alston Keith, died yesterday, and Mrs. T. P. Gayle died Wednesday morning.

Eight remained in hospitals, with grave concern felt for Mrs. Ed Smith and Mrs. Richard Williams. Other victims were believed recovering.

All social functions in this black belt society center were called off. The Rev. E. W. Gamble of St. Paul's Episcopal church held special prayer services for the fire victims.

Mrs. Reynolds was the wife of a physician's son. Mrs. Cleveland, known for her beauty, was a sister of Robert Wilby, owner of a chain of southeastern theaters. Mrs. Keith's husband was a young Selma attorney.

VAUGHAN-WRIGHT-BENDEL CLINIC INSTALLS LATEST X-RAY APPARATUS

NEW X-RAY DEVICE IS SHOCK PROOF

Vaughan-Wright-Bendel Clinic Installs Aparatus Of Latest Design

The march of progress in the development of aids for the relief of human suffering has never been so signally demonstrated than in those devices connected with x-ray diagnosis and treatment. In this field the advancement of science has achieved virtually revolutionary results.

Evidence of these achievements is offered in the equipment recently installed in the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic in this city. It may seem almost absurd to refer to any phase of x-ray activity as "old-time," yet the new devices are so immeasurably superior to those which they displace that the former equipment, marvellous for its time and its purpose, has virtually become antiquated. The older apparatus, which exposed patients and operators to possible shock and had to be handled with the delicacy and care which are essential in operating hazardous implements, gives place to shock-proof units which afford maximum efficiency without the slightest reason for apprehension on the part of those who have any contact with them.

Pictures presented herewith give a graphic idea of the new equipment used in the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel x-ray department. The apparatus is the first of its kind to be introduced in this section of the country.

The device was perfected by Dr. W. D. Coolidge, who in 1920 developed the first commercially available shock-proof x-ray unit, with the x-ray tube immersed in oil. That marked the beginning of a new era in apparatus design.

Succeeding years have witnessed numerous applications of this same principle, reaching a climax in the present development which transcends anything of the kind that has been witnessed in the startling advances in x-ray therapy.

Not only has 100 per cent electrical safety and compactness been realized, but improvements possible from the inherent characteristics of oil-immersion have contributed toward a much higher operation efficiency and remarkably increased flexibility. Thus a correspondingly wider field of practical application in both x-ray diagnosis and therapy has been accomplished.

In the routine commercial use of electrical energy one does not find the hazards of unprotected high voltage circuits, such as found in the x-ray laboratory. Long since, either by intent or legislation, protection in other fields has become standard practice, to the extent that the exposed dangers prevalent only a few years ago no longer exist. That explains briefly the reason for today's trend toward shock-proof x-ray installations, to make possible a more efficient x-ray service, and to protect the patient, the operator and his assistants against the dangers of accidental contact with the high voltage circuit.

W. E. Lanson, x-ray technician, describing the new apparatus, says: "The shock-proof x-ray tube unit is a development which furthers the objective of universal use of electrically safe x-ray equipment. Features of the design installed in the clinic are not merely the grounding of the tube casing and the use of insulated cables to the high voltage source, but also the several important advantages realized by immersion of the tubes in oil. Due to its superiority over air as a cooling medium, and the fact that atmospheric conditions cannot affect operation of the x-ray tube when immersed in this oil, full ratings can be obtained under all conditions. Moreover, with the two focal points available in this single x-ray tube, we have a diagnostic range ordinarily requiring two separate tubes."

The apparatus is now in full operation in the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic and has attracted wide interest throughout the state amongst professional men and laymen interested in the advancement of x-ray diagnosis and therapy.

EX-SUPREME KNIGHT OF K. OF C. DIES

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—(AP)—James A. Flaherty, one of the most widely known laymen of the Catholic church, died of pneumonia tonight. He was 83.

Flaherty was supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus for 18 years—from 1909 to 1927. He was in charge of the Knights of Columbus war activities, and his services won him decorations from this country and France.

He was for 62 years a practicing attorney in Philadelphia, maintaining his offices until the time of his death.

GERMANY'S SHIPS

many with regard to the steamer Palos.

WAR PUSHED BACK INTO DANGER ZONE

(By Associated Press)

Nazi Germany's warships brought the Spanish civil war back into the international danger zone again tonight.

War nervousness in the chancelleries of Europe was induced by German "reprisals" against two Spanish Socialist merchantmen, one of which was shelled and the other taken off to an unrevealed port.

Germany said this was to punish Madrid for seizing at Bilbao the German vessel Palos with a supposed cargo of munitions for the Fascists. She served notice she would force respect for her shipping.

The danger statesmen saw was that German intervention might grow, might encourage others to do likewise and end in a general quarrel.

To prevent this, 28 nations have participated in non-intervention conferences in London with vague results.

The immediate fear in foreign offices is that Germany and Italy, who have recognized the Fascist insurgents as the real Spanish government, may support it actively and openly. This might drag in Soviet Russia and perhaps France and ultimately the whole war machinery of the old world might grind out disaster.

Five months of wrangling, charges and denials have muddled the issues for many. The course of events was like this.

Civil war began in Spain July 18, 1936. General Francisco Franco, reputed Spain's best soldier, and commander in Morocco, started an insurrection there that spread overnight to the mainland.

This is the sixth month of the war. The Madrid government holds about one-third of Spain, mostly on the east, and a small sector around Bilbao in the northwest.

The insurgents have two-thirds of Spain. They have besieged Madrid, the capital, for nearly two months but have made little progress of late. They are close to the city and at times have held suburbs but they fail to get further.

The civil war started in a deep-seated political controversy. The country last February elected a "Left" or Socialist government that is still in power. The Socialist group got 4,356,559 votes. Their opponents, the "Right" and "Center," received 5,051,955. Because the Socialists carried more districts with fewer votes, they had 265 deputies in the cortes (the Spanish single-chamber parliament) out of 473.

General Franco, with four-fifths of the army supporting him, rallied to his side the strong Fascist groups, monarchists, many churchmen, landed proprietors, big employers and all breeds of moderates.

The Madrid Socialist government had the support of Left Republicans, Communists, Anarchists, Syndicalists, some Basques and the autonomous Catalan government around Barcelona.

The Fascist insurgents proclaimed a fight to prevent Spain going Communist.

Then other nations lined up. Germany, Italy and Portugal favored the Fascists.

Soviet Russia and France sympathized with the Madrid Socialists.

The three Fascist countries were charged with aiding the insurgents.

They accused Soviet Russia of helping Madrid.

All denied the charges but in some manner, officially or unofficially, supplies from foreign countries went to both sides. Thousands of foreign "volunteers" are in both armies.

Lincoln Parish Prepares To Hang Negro For Murder

Johnny Sanders Will Be Executed January 15 For Killing White Man

RUSTON, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—In preparation for the first hanging at Ruston in 31 years, work will start on a scaffold here Monday for the execution of a negro who killed a white man.

The condemned negro, Johnny Sanders, 20, will pay the death penalty "sometime between noon and 3 p.m." on January 15. He will be hanged for the murder of Sam Evans, 36, a Lincoln parish farmer, who lived about six miles southeast of Ruston.

Sanders, convicted on October 9 and sentenced the next day by District Judge E. L. Walker, is confined in the Ouachita parish jail, where he was taken soon after his conviction. He will probably not be brought back to Ruston until the morning of his execution day, Sheriff Bryan Thigpen has announced. The hanging will take place in the Lincoln parish jail.

Although two negroes are reported to have applied for the job of executioner, the trap will be sprung by Sheriff Thigpen, who never before has witnessed an execution. The sheriff says he has no compunctions about the fulfillment of his "duty," his only regret being that his father, the late Sheriff A. J. Thigpen, did not live to apprehend Evans' slayer, whom he sought unceasingly for weeks. The present sheriff assumed the office upon the death of his father last March.

Clinton C. Davis, Ruston contractor, will build the scaffold for the hanging. After measuring the space available at the parish jail, Mr. Davis plans to go to a Ruston lumber yard Monday and build the death contrivance. The platform and accessories will be moved to the jail. At present there are three white men and [illegible] negroes lodged in the jail here. Some of the inmates have asked that they be removed during the execution and their requests may be granted, according to Sheriff Thigpen. The hanging, however, will be performed beyond the view of the cells, it was said.

Instead of using an arrangement whereby a rope is cut to spring the trap floor, Mr. Davis says the scaffold will be equipped with a strip of iron having a handle, which, when pulled from under the hinged floor board, will cause the condemned man to fall.

Mr. Davis, in 1921, built a triple scaffold at Jonesboro for the hanging of three negroes convicted for the murder of Sheriff Ed Beatty of Jackson parish. The three negroes, according to Mr. Davis, had been arrested and handcuffed on a charge of operating a still at Ansley. Leaving the sheriff with the negroes, a deputy walked to get the sheriff's car some distance away. Complaining that the handcuffs were hurting them, the negroes asked that they be removed. The sheriff did so, and the negroes overpowered him, took his gun and killed him.

The hanging of Sanders here on January 15 will be the first in the history of the parish for murder. The only other execution in the parish's annals was the hanging of Bob Burton, a negro, in 1905. He was executed for breaking and entering in the night time with intent to commit assault on a white woman. Burton, remembered here as "Jack the Grabber," had caused many Ruston residents to reinforce their doors and windows as safeguards, it is said. Finally trailed by a tear in his shoe sole which made a distinguishing footprint, Burton later confessed more than 40 offenses similar to that which caused his hanging, according to people living here at that time.

Sanders' demise will be exacted for one of the most brutal crimes on record here. The negro is said to have signed a confession in which he admitted the murder of Evans in October, 1935, as the white farmer was nearing his home after a trip to Ruston, where he had sold some cotton. The negro admitted that he lay in wait for Evans and as he approached in his wagon fired upon him from behind. After Evans had fallen, he [illegible] and shot him through the head. Among the reasons given for the killing were explanations by Sanders that Evans had owed him $2 and also had disagreed with him over a number of bundles of corn the negro had pulled for him.

Months later, in August 1936, Sanders was arrested in connection with the robbery and burning of a filling station about four miles west of Ruston. During the investigation of that [illegible], evidence developed involving Sanders' possession of a gun, of the [illegible] in the slaying of Evans, [illegible] Sanders admitted the murder.

Appointed by the court to defend Sanders, C. F. [illegible], Ruston attorney, [illegible] for the negro, referring to the defendant's [illegible] the intelligence of a 9 or 10 year old child and pointing out that Lincoln parish had not had the "black [illegible] of a hanging for 30 or 35 years."

Commenting on the latter statement, W. E. McBride, then district attorney, in his rebuttal to the jury, said: "If that hanging stopped major crimes in this parish for more than 30 years, then I say for the Lord's sake, let's have another one!" McBride's remarks were received with applause, [illegible] the gallery shouting "Amen!" The demonstration brought a sharp reprimand from the court.

After deliberating about 12 minutes, a jury of 12 men returned a verdict finding the defendant guilty as charged.

Mrs. Evans, widow of the murdered man, is reported to be [illegible] attendance at the hanging of Sanders, but Sheriff Thigpen said he had not been [illegible] expressed that [illegible].

QUEEN'S PARENTS ACCORDED HONOR

Couple Who Never Aspired To Court Circles Given Place

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The proud, home-loving Strathmore family, "who never aspired to court circles," were accorded a place of honor today for their daughter's coronation as queen of England next May.

With Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon as first commoner queen of England since Henry VIII made Katharine Parr his sixth and last wife, the Strathmores have been thrust back into the limelight for the first time since her marriage 13 years ago to the then Duke of York.

"We have never aspired to court circles," blunt Lord Strathmore said when his youngest daughter became engaged to the man who is now King George VI.

He described the royal match as "a marriage of love" between "an angelic girl" and "a fine fellow and a clean Englishman."

The earl and countess, proud of their ancient Scottish lineage, remained on their estates across the border and gave repeated signs of their preference for the heather-clad moors over Mayfair's drawing rooms.

Queen Elizabeth was brought up at her family's Glamis (pronounced Glarms) castle, whose grim battlements have survived nine centuries of Scotland's stormy history.

The present building is largely of the seventeenth century, but much of the medieval stronghold where Macbeth is said to have murdered Duncan still remains.

Elizabeth's father is the fourteenth Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne, Viscount Lyon, Baron Glamis, Tannadyce, Sidlaw and Strathdichtie, and Baron Bowes of the United Kingdom.

Tall and thin, with a drooping mustache, he is happiest in rough tweeds, pottering about his 25,000 acres, and has never been a society man.

The gentle, [illegible] to whom he has been married for 55 years, was Miss Nina Cavendish-Bentinck, and had she been a boy would have become Duke of Portland.

Fond of cooking, happiest when arranging her flowers, she is considered a typical Scottish housewife.

HIP FRACTURED, ELDERLY WOMAN DIES AT HOSPITAL

Mrs. Ella S. Duke, 86, who suffered a hip fracture recently when she fell at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Gillette, 3900 Dick Taylor street, died last night at a local hospital.

Funeral services will be held at the Gillette residence at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. J. L. Yeager will officiate. Interment will be made at the Riverview Burial park.

Besides the daughter, Mrs. Duke is survived by a son, Green W. Duke of Lake Charles.

ROBBERY PROBED AT SHREVEPORT

$1,600 Taken From Pool Hall Cashier By Two Armed Bandits

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Detectives Saturday night were investigating a $1,600 robbery by two armed bandits who stopped the cashier of a local pool room as he walked in the 500 block of Edwards street en route to a bank to make a night deposit.

F. (Dutch) Holland, cashier of a [illegible], told detectives he was forced to walk around Edwards street to an alley which extends between Edwards and Market streets, where the bandits' automobile was parked. There, he said, the two men snatched from beneath his arm a cloth bag containing the money.

him.

"I told them they'd just have to shoot me," Holland said in relating how one of the robbers pulled a pistol from under his coat and delivered the ultimatum: "You've got to go with us," Holland said. "But I wasn't hurt [illegible]."

[illegible] after the robbery, the bandits jumped into the car and sped through the alley to make their escape.

Holland said he had just left the basement in which the billiard parlor is located when he was approached by one of the men.

NEGRO ARRESTED FOR ROAD MISHAP

Accused As Hit-Run Driver; Five Other Persons Apprehended

Arrests of an alleged hit-and-run driver, a man accused of obtaining money by false pretenses, and four negroes accused in connection with the thefts of hogs and chickens, had been made by the sheriff's department last night.

T. Nobles, negro, 20, was arrested as the driver of a car which struck a pedestrian, L. H. Prior, of 710 Pine street, West Monroe, early Friday morning in front of Brown Paper mill. The driver did not stop the car after the accident, it was reported. Mr. Prior was treated for head injuries and bruises at St. Francis sanitarium and removed to his home. He is an employe of Brown Paper mill.

Accused of obtaining money from negroes in Tensas parish by falsely representing himself as an agent of a mail order concern, K. E. Lambert, 37, of Monroe, was arrested here for the Tensas parish sheriff's department at St. Joseph. Lambert's residence was given as 114 Louise Anne avenue.

Will Calhoun, negro, 52, and his son, Joe Calhoun, 25, were arrested for the theft of two hogs owned by A. E. Rawls, who lives west of the Ouachita river near Bosco. A considerable portion of the meat of the stolen animals was recovered at the older Calhoun's home in the Bosco area and at the younger Calhoun's home in Monroe, it was stated.

DeVoe Bledsoe and Alfred Calvin, negroes, were arrested and charged with thefts of chickens from two chicken houses. The owners of the chickens were Jesse Coleman and Cleveland Gulley. Each of the four negroes resides at Sterlington. Charges of breaking and entering were to be filed against the arrested pair.

FOURTH VICTIM OF BLAZE DIES

Two Other Young Selma, Ala., Matrons In Critical Condition

SELMA, Ala., Jan. 2.—(AP)—A fourth victim of fire at a holiday costume ball died in a hospital here today as two other young Selma society matrons remained in "critical" condition.

Mrs. Bernard Reynolds died at 3 a.m., approximately 77 hours after a match, used to light a cigarette, accidentally ignited Cossack costumes of the young women lined up for the grand march of the annual Phantoms club Christmas ball, at the Selma Town and Country club.

Two others, Mrs. Tyler Wilby Cleveland and Mrs. Alston Keith, died yesterday, and Mrs. T. P. Gayle died Wednesday morning.

Eight remained in hospitals, with grave concern felt for Mrs. Ed Smith and Mrs. Richard Williams. Other victims were believed recovering.

All social functions in this black belt society center were called off. The Rev. E. W. Gamble of St. Paul's Episcopal church held special prayer services for the fire victims.

Mrs. Reynolds was the wife of a physician's son. Mrs. Cleveland, known for her beauty, was a sister of Robert Wilby, owner of a chain of southeastern theaters. Mrs. Keith's husband was a young Selma attorney.

NEW X-RAY DEVICE IS SHOCK PROOF

Vaughan-Wright-Bendel Clinic Installs Aparatus Of Latest Design

The march of progress in the development of aids for the relief of human suffering has never been so signally demonstrated than in those devices connected with x-ray diagnosis and treatment. In this field the advancement of science has achieved virtually revolutionary results.

Evidence of these achievements is offered in the equipment recently installed in the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic in this city. It may seem almost absurd to refer to any phase of x-ray activity as "old-time," yet the new devices are so immeasurably superior to those which they displace that the former equipment, marvellous for its time and its purpose, has virtually become antiquated. The older apparatus, which exposed patients and operators to possible shock and had to be handled with the delicacy and care which are essential in operating hazardous implements, gives place to shock-proof units which afford maximum efficiency without the slightest reason for apprehension on the part of those who have any contact with them.

Pictures presented herewith give a graphic idea of the new equipment used in the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel x-ray department. The apparatus is the first of its kind to be introduced in this section of the country.

The device was perfected by Dr. W. D. Coolidge, who in 1920 developed the first commercially available shock-proof x-ray unit, with the x-ray tube immersed in oil. That marked the beginning of a new era in apparatus design.

Succeeding years have witnessed numerous applications of this same principle, reaching a climax in the present development which transcends anything of the kind that has been witnessed in the startling advances in x-ray therapy.

Not only has 100 per cent electrical safety and compactness been realized, but improvements possible from the inherent characteristics of oil-immersion have contributed toward a much higher operation efficiency and remarkably increased flexibility. Thus a correspondingly wider field of practical application in both x-ray diagnosis and therapy has been accomplished.

In the routine commercial use of electrical energy one does not find the hazards of unprotected high voltage circuits, such as found in the x-ray laboratory. Long since, either by intent or legislation, protection in other fields has become standard practice, to the extent that the exposed dangers prevalent only a few years ago no longer exist. That explains briefly the reason for today's trend toward shock-proof x-ray installations, to make possible a more efficient x-ray service, and to protect the patient, the operator and his assistants against the dangers of accidental contact with the high voltage circuit.

W. E. Lanson, x-ray technician, describing the new apparatus, says: "The shock-proof x-ray tube unit is a development which furthers the objective of universal use of electrically safe x-ray equipment. Features of the design installed in the clinic are not merely the grounding of the tube casing and the use of insulated cables to the high voltage source, but also the several important advantages realized by immersion of the tubes in oil. Due to its superiority over air as a cooling medium, and the fact that atmospheric conditions cannot affect operation of the x-ray tube when immersed in this oil, full ratings can be obtained under all conditions. Moreover, with the two focal points available in this single x-ray tube, we have a diagnostic range ordinarily requiring two separate tubes."

The apparatus is now in full operation in the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic and has attracted wide interest throughout the state amongst professional men and laymen interested in the advancement of x-ray diagnosis and therapy.

WAR PUSHED BACK INTO DANGER ZONE

(By Associated Press)

Nazi Germany's warships brought the Spanish civil war back into the international danger zone again tonight.

War nervousness in the chancelleries of Europe was induced by German "reprisals" against two Spanish Socialist merchantmen, one of which was shelled and the other taken off to an unrevealed port.

Germany said this was to punish Madrid for seizing at Bilbao the German vessel Palos with a supposed cargo of munitions for the Fascists. She served notice she would force respect for her shipping.

The danger statesmen saw was that German intervention might grow, might encourage others to do likewise and end in a general quarrel.

To prevent this, 28 nations have participated in non-intervention conferences in London with vague results.

The immediate fear in foreign offices is that Germany and Italy, who have recognized the Fascist insurgents as the real Spanish government, may support it actively and openly. Lincoln Parish Prepares To Hang Negro For Murder

Johnny Sanders Will Be Executed January 15 For Killing White Man

RUSTON, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—In preparation for the first hanging at Ruston in 31 years, work will start on a scaffold here Monday for the execution of a negro who killed a white man.

The condemned negro, Johnny Sanders, 20, will pay the death penalty "sometime between noon and 3 p.m." on January 15. He will be hanged for the murder of Sim Evans, 36, a Lincoln parish farmer, who lived about six miles southeast of Ruston.

Sanders, convicted on October 9 and sentenced the next day by District Judge E. L. Walker, is confined in the Ouachita parish jail, where he was taken soon after his conviction. He will probably not be brought back to Ruston until the morning of his execution day, Sheriff Bryan Thigpen has announced. The hanging will take place in the Lincoln parish jail.

Although two negroes are reported to have applied for the job of executioner, the trap will be sprung by Sheriff Thigpen, who never before has witnessed an execution. The sheriff says he has no compunctions about the fulfillment of his "duty," his only regret being that his father, the late Sheriff A. J. Thigpen, did not live to apprehend Evans' slayer, whom he sought unceasingly for weeks. The present sheriff assumed the office upon the death of his father last March.

Clinton C. Davis, Ruston contractor, will build the scaffold for the hanging. After measuring the space available in the parish jail, Mr. Davis plans to go to a Ruston lumber yard Monday and build the death contraption. The platform and accessories later will be hauled to the jail. At present there are three while men and seven negroes lodged in the jail here. Some of the inmates have asked that they be removed during the execution, and their requests may be granted, according to Sheriff Thigpen. The ordeal, however, will be performed beyond the view of the cells, it was said.

Instead of using an arrangement whereby a rope is cut to spring the trap floor, Mr. Davis says the gallows will be equipped with a strip of iron having a handle, which, when pulled from under the hinged floor board, will cause the condemned man to fall.

Mr. Davis, in 1924, built a triple scaffold at Jonesboro for the hanging of three negroes, convicted for the murder of Sheriff Eli Rentz of Jackson parish. The three negroes, according to Mr. Davis, had been arrested and handcuffed on a charge of operating a still at Ansley. Leaving the sheriff with the negroes, a deputy walked to get the sheriff's car some distance away. Complaining that the handcuffs were hurting them, the negroes asked that they be removed. The sheriff did so, and the negroes overpowered him, took his gun and killed him.

The hanging of Sanders here on January 15 will be the first in the history of the parish for murder. The only other execution in the parish's annals was the hanging of Bob Burton, a negro, in 1905. He was executed for breaking and entering in the night time, with intent to commit assault on a white woman. Burton, remembered here as "Jack the Grabber," had caused many Ruston residents to reinforce their doors and windows as safeguards, it is said. Finally trailed by a twig in his shoe sole which made a distinguishing footprint, Burton later confessed more than 80 offenses similar to that which caused his hanging, according to people living here at that time.

Sanders' demise will be exacted for one of the most brutal crimes on record here. The negro is said to have signed a confession in which he admitted the murder of Evans in October, 1935, as the white farmer was nearing his home after a trip to Ruston, where he had sold some cotton. The negro admitted that he lay in wait for Evans and as he approached in his wagon fired upon him from behind. After Evans had fallen by the roadside, the negro again shot him through the head. Among the reasons given for the killing were explanations by Sanders that Evans had owed him $2 and also had disagreed with him over a number of bundles of corn the negro had pulled for him.

Months later, in August, 1936, Sanders was arrested in connection with the robbery and burning of a filling station about four miles west of Ruston. During the investigation of that case, evidence developed involving Sanders' ownership of a gun of the caliber used in the slaying of Evans, and in a short time Sanders admitted the murder.

Appointed by the court to defend Sanders, C. E. Barham, Ruston attorney, sought life imprisonment for the negro, referring to the defendant as having "the intelligence of a 9 or 10-year-old boy" and pointing out that Lincoln parish had not had the "black mark" of a hanging for "30 or 35 years."

Capitalizing on the latter statement, W. E. McBride, then district attorney, in his rebuttal to the jury, said: "If that hanging stopped major crimes in this parish for more than 30 years, then I say for the Lord's sake, let's have another one!" McBride's remarks were received with applause, with one man in the gallary shouting "Amen!" The demonstration brought a sharp reprimand from the court.

After deliberating about 12 minutes, a jury of 12 men returned a verdict, finding the defendant guilty as charged.

Mrs. Evans, widow of the murdered man, is reported to be considering attendance at the hanging of Sanders, but Sheriff Thigpen said he had not been informed whether she would exercise that prerogative.

QUEEN'S PARENTS ACCORDED HONOR

Couple Who Never Aspired To Court Circles Given Place

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The proud, home-loving Strathmore family, "who never aspired to court circles," were accorded a place of honor today for their daughter's coronation as queen of England next May.

With Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon as first commoner queen of England since Henry VIII made Katharine Parr his sixth and last wife, the Strathmores have been thrust back into the limelight for the first time since her marriage 13 years ago to the then Duke of York.

"We have never aspired to court circles," blunt Lord Strathmore said when his youngest daughter became engaged to the man who is now King George VI.

He described the royal match as "a marriage of love" between "an angelic girl" and "a fine fellow and a clean Englishman."

The earl and countess, proud of their ancient Scottish lineage, remained on their estates across the border and gave repeated sign of their preference for the heather-clad moors over Mayfair's drawing rooms.

Queen Elizabeth was brought up at her family's Glamis (pronounced Glarms) castle, whose grim battlements have survived nine centuries of Scotland's stormy history.

The present building is largely of the seventeenth century but much of the medieval stronghold, where Macbeth is said to have murdered Duncan, still remains.

Elizabeth's father is the fourth Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne, Viscount Lyon, Baron Glamis, Tannadyce, Sidlaw and Strathdichtie, and Baron Bowes of the united kingdom.

Tall and thin, with drooping mustache, he is happiest in rough tweeds pottering about his 24,700 acres and has never been a society man.

The gentle, black-gowned countess to whom he has been married for 55 years, was Miss Nina Cavendish-Bentinck, and, had she been a boy, would have become Duke of Portland.

Fond of cooking, happiest when arranging her flowers, she is considered a typical Scottish housewife.

HIP FRACTURED, ELDERLY WOMAN DIES AT HOSPITAL

Mrs. Ella S. Duke, 86, who suffered a hip fracture recently when she fell at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. C. Gillette, 3900 Dick Taylor street, died last night at a local hospital.

Funeral services will be held at the Gillette residence at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. J. L. Yeager will officiate. Interment will be made at the Riverview Burial park.

Besides the daughter, Mrs. Duke is survived by a son, Green W. Duke of Lake Charles.

ROBBERY PROBED AT SHREVEPORT

$1,600 Taken From Pool Hall Cashier By Two Armed Bandits

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Detectives Saturday night were investigating a $1,600 robbery by two armed bandits who stopped the cashier of a local pool room as he walked in the 500 block of Edwards street, en route to a bank to make a night deposit.

E. (Dutch) Holland, cashier of a billiard parlor, told detectives he was forced to walk across Edwards street to an alley which extends between Edwards and Market streets, where the bandits' automobile was parked. There, he said, the two men snatched from beneath his arm a cloth bag containing the money.

arm.

"I told them they'd just have to shoot me," Holland said in relating how one of the robbers pulled a pistol from under his coat and delivered the ultimatum, "You've got to go with us." Holland said, "But I wasn't hurt and got away."

Immediately after the robbery, the bandits jumped into the car and sped through the alley to make their escape.

Holland said he had just left the basement in which the billiard parlor is housed when he was approached by one of the men.

NEGRO ARRESTED FOR ROAD MISHAP

Accused As Hit-Run Driver; Five Other Persons Apprehended

Arrests of an alleged hit-and-run driver, a man accused of obtaining money by false pretenses, and four negroes accused in connection with the thefts of hogs and chickens, had been made by the sheriff's department last night.

T. Nobles, negro, 20, was arrested as the driver of a car which struck a pedestrian, L. H. Priou, of 710 Pine street, West Monroe, early Friday morning in front of Brown Paper mill. The driver did not stop the car after the accident, it was reported. Mr. Priou was treated for head injuries and bruises at St. Francis sanitarium and removed to his home. He is an employe of Brown Paper mill.

Accused of obtaining money from negroes in Tensas parish by falsely representing himself as an agent of a mail order concern, K. E. Lambert, 37, of Monroe, was arrested here for the Tensas parish sheriff's department at St. Joseph. Lambert's residence was given as 114 Louise Anne avenue.

Will Calhoun, negro, 52, and his son, Joe Calhoun, 25, were arrested for the theft of two hogs owned by A. E. Rawls, who lives west of the Ouachita river near Bosco. A considerable portion of the meat of the stolen animals was recovered at the older Calhoun's home in the Bosco area and at the younger Calhoun's home in Monroe, it was stated.

DeVoe Bledsoe and Alfred Calvin, negroes, were arrested and charged with thefts of chickens from two chicken houses. The owners of the chickens were Jesse Coleman and Cleveland Gulley. Each of the four negroes resides at Sterlington. Charges of breaking and entering were to be filed against the arrested pair.

Right And Wrong Self-Expression

Much is being said about allowing children self-expression. To develop self-expression is splendid, provided the right kind of self is expressed. But the trouble is that so often no discrimination is made between good and bad expressions.

Broadly speaking, there are three kinds of self: the ignorant self, the wayward self and the soulful self. The ignorant self needs instruction; the wayward self needs discipline; and the soulful self needs expression.

The first thing to do with a child is to teach him the difference between right and wrong—between those things he should do and those things which he should not do. As soon as he has learned to differentiate between the two kinds of behavior, then he should be encouraged to give expression to the one and the extermination of the other.

It is the rankest kind of nonsense to excuse deviltry in children by calling it self-expression. The child who throws his plate on the floor should be told and taught that such conduct is not desirable. If he throws his plate on the floor after he knows better, he should receive the discipline that is essential in teaching him that waywardness receives its own kind of recompense.

The reason this self-expression chatter got going so foolishly is that it was originally directed toward those parents who made a practice of picking on their children all the time about things that really did not matter; they pestered their offspring half to death and repressed them in all directions. So, in order to give the youngsters a chance to live, parents were told to let them alone—to permit them self-expression.

Then the self-expression was grabbed by lazy parents as an excuse to shirk their parental responsibility; it is much easier for some parents to let their children run wild than to make the necessary effort to train them.

Sometimes parents are the worst enemies children have—parents who are lazy, indifferent, and whose idle words and undesirable ideas and examples influence their children most unfortunately.

A destructive remark made before a five-year-old child by a parent may damage that child for life by fixing an unwholesome thought in the child's plastic mind. And perhaps that harm done the child was a result of harmful training the parent received when a child. Thus a man's wrong notion may be due to the way his grandfather brought up his father.

To learn to carry himself honorably, to be fair in his dealings, to be kind to his fellows, to be tolerant, to be decent in his private life and on the level in his public life—that is the kind of self-expression the child and the man should be encouraged to practice.

Let the child—and the world—have its way in the little things which do not matter. But be stern and uncompromising in the big things that do matter.

KEEPING PEACE

When James Hammond became warden of Kentucky's state prison some time ago, he found a big problem on his hands. Enforced idleness had led to a series of disturbances at the institution.

Because of a law preventing commercial use of prison-made goods, Mr. Hammond could not put his 2,900 convicts at work, to keep them out of mischief. So he tried another idea. He started drilling his prisoners, on a competitive basis, the various squads vying for the distinction of being the best-drilled in the prison. The plan has worked with remarkable success.

This remarkable story seems to be analogous to one from abroad. When Hitler became Der Fuehrer, conditions in Germany were turbulent. He, too, began to put his people on a military basis and, by drumming into them the theory that they were a chosen race, strengthened their competitive instinct. And thus far Hitler, too, has been successful.

But there the analogy ends. The principal aim of Hammond's plan, it seems, is to keep the peace.

CONTINUE TO GIVE

An analysis of American charity, just completed by a New York committee for religious and welfare recovery, reveals a very striking and significant fact.

The highest percentage of giving that has ever been recorded was attained during the depression year of 1932. And during 1935, the year in which recovery began to set in, a new low in American generosity was reached.

On the surface, it seems odd that people are more inclined to aid others when they are least able; and yet, perhaps, it is only natural. It may be only when suffering and distress are widespread, and brought home to them personally, that people really can sympathize with the plight of their fellow citizens.

If the return of good times is to benefit all, Americans must keep constantly alive to the needs of unfortunates.

Men or nations, those who have must arm to keep it, or those who have not will arm to take it.

Rhyme And Reason

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SHE WORE HER MOTHER'S WEDDING GOWN

She wore her mother's wedding gown,
Its lustrous satin dim with time.
Her mother's veil swept lightly down
The stair her baby learned to climb.

Her pretty slippers made no sound
As she came lightly down the stair.
A wreath of orange blossoms bound
The golden glory of her hair.

She wore her mother's wedding dress!
The mantle of her mother's years
Was hers to bring her happiness,
And quiet all her girlish fears.

Her mother met her father's gaze.
Her misty eyes were soft and brown,
Recapturing her days of days

Turn A Deaf Ear

By BRUCE CATTON

Among the New Year's resolutions which Americans might profitably make is the resolve to be busy with something else whenever a distinguished European comes to these shores to enlarge upon America's duty to world civilization.

The parade will be beginning almost any time now. Famous authors, retired statesmen, and high-powered economists will be arriving in New York, coming up the bay amid a cloud of fine phrases about the critical situation in Europe and the things America ought to do about it.

For our congress is about to pass a new neutrality law. No one knows what sort of law it will pass, but congress has to do something, because the existing one is about to expire. And our late allies in the fight to make the world safe for democracy have a deep and abiding interest in the new law.

We can do one of two things with this new law. We can make our neutrality foolproof, as far as any law can do that in an uncertain world, or we can fix things so that we can give moral and material aid to one of the two sides in the next European fracas.

We can't possibly do both, and we might as well make up our minds right now which of the two courses we prefer. And it is in this connection that we could very well decide to turn a deaf ear to the advice of distinguished visitors.

These visitors will do their job skillfully. They will begin by telling us what a great nation we are, and how the eyes of the world are fixed on Washington. Europe, they will insist, is headed for disaster unless the United States does its part in a wise and statesmanlike manner.

That, in turn, will be followed by an argument something like this: Europe's only hope of peace lies in the League of Nations, the one force that has a chance to restrain war-like and aggressive countries.

But the league is hamstrung unless it gets the support of America. If America could just help the league apply boycotts and sanctions, for example, and throw its influence against aggressors denounced by the league, a new light would dawn.

This will be put very persuasively. When congress tackles the new neutrality law, some of us will feel that the embargoes contemplated in the law ought to be made discretionary with the president. That is, instead of cutting off all financial and material aid to both parties in a European war, we should let the president cut off such aid from one side only. In that way we could make our influence felt for peace.

Now the only trouble with such a course is that it wouldn't lead toward neutrality; it would lead directly away from it. It would put us into every European quarrel, right up to our necks, the moment the president decided to exercise his discretionary powers.

An ironclad embargo law applicable to both sides—that is what we need if we really want neutrality. It might pain and shock our European advisers, but it's the best bet if we hope to keep out of war.

A BOOK REVIEW

HERE'S LIVELY TALE OF GREAT AUDUBON

"Audubon," by Constance Rourke, is a lively account of a gay, "unaccountable" genius.

Miss Rourke tries to explain the amazing combination of artist and scientist in a simple American frontiersman by the strange suggestion that, owing to certain mysteries and coincidences, he may have been the Dauphin of France, sent to America at the time of the French revolution.

However all that may be, Audubon is an interesting character. He was the first to paint birds against their natural background, in a variety of natural attitudes. But more than that, he was not content with only a faithful portrayal of the bird.

He added gay designs of leaves, a spray of flowers, delicate tendrils of a vine—always a pattern, yet true to the most minute vein on the palest petal. In other words, he made an art of ornithology.

Like all true artists, Audubon overflowed with zest. One wonders how he found time to support a family; to spend, before dawn, long hours of patient silence, watching his birds in woods from Labrador to the Keys of Florida, from Kentucky to Louisiana; to paint with the most exquisite care, and to live, withal, a very merry life.

There was plenty of adventure in those early frontier days. Keeper of a little store in Henderson, Ky., Audubon made friends of all who passed his way—from old Daniel Boone and the Indians to Alexander Wilson, the Scottish ornithologist, and Rafinesque, the queer French naturalist.

Later he knew the society life of Philadelphia and New Orleans, and was lionized, after an exhibition of his paintings in the Royal institute, in both Edinburgh and London. Christopher North of Blackwell's loved to talk with him the whole night through. Sir Walter Scott admired his simplicity.

Miss Rourke, having studied all the Audubon tradition carefully, gives a good idea of early frontier life, but becomes increasingly absorbed in the personality which glowed through his achievements.—D. S. E.

NEW YORK Day by Day

by—O. O. McIntyre

The silken voiced ex-Paris play boy Erskine Gwynne, sponsoring a night club in the Central park south zone, is indicative of a modern trend. Society in trade. He was reared with platinum pomp—governesses, private tutors and in those selective, exclusive boarding schools in Switzerland.

At 18 he spoke five different languages and had hob-nobbed with the Vanderbilts, his relatives by marriage, and all the bigwig scions of the international top drawer set. For years he was the "life of the party" in the American contingent that circled that classy carrousel—the "Place Vendome crowd."

Then came the shock to the world and Gwynne and his brother went into the air forces, Erskine escaping with his life but his brother was shot down. Up to that time the life of both had been mostly play.

With the armistice, Gwynne returned to Paris and during the boom launched The Boulevardier, a magazine fashioned on the lines of The New Yorker. It prospered in a way, and the publisher proved he could be self-supporting.

Then the market crash and curtain for most of those who made up the magazine's subscription list and Gwynne took step in the steady trek to America. And brushed smack against the dead wall that halted so many returning exiles. He wrote a book, accepted a Hollywood assignment or so, but there were many interludes at liberty.

So he has become a night club impresario, greeting with a maitre de hotel obesiance those who used to angle for him at their own select dinners in London, Paris, New York and where not.

How the world has changed!

Incidentally, Tommy Manville, the Broadway version of a play boy, now appears in the cafes and at first nights in an ash gray dinner suit with glossy black satin lapels. The idea blends at least with his gray hair.

Many of the radio announcements are irritatingly presumptious. One, for instance, in presenting its star says: "So here is your favorite radio and screen star." It strikes me that "a" could be substituted for "your" and it would be all right with many listeners-in.

And I think a recent hilarious high in radio goofiness was during a Burns and Allen broadcast when Gracie went suddenly and deliriously mad and began to trill tra la la la la, so that everybody on the program, including the announcer, was soon doing it. I know she had me tra la la laing all that evening and a slice of the next morning.

Someone sends me a clipping from Columnist Lyons with this honey:

"They are telling this of Lord Beaverbrook and a visiting Yankee actress. In a game of hypothetical questions, Beaverbrook asked the lady: 'Would you live with a stranger if he paid you one million pounds?' She said she would. 'And if he paid you five pounds?' The irate lady fumed: 'Five pounds. What do you think I am?' Beaverbrook replied: 'We've already established that. Now we are trying to determine the degree.'"

A Park avenue lady writes me of a sign in the vestry of the Presbyterian church at Ivergordon, Scotland: "It will be a favor if office bearers will kindly refrain from counting the collection until after the doors have been shut and the prayers concluded, as the noise disturbs the congregation."

Among the season's funny radio cracks: Jack Benny in a tight spot with a burglar. A knock at the door. Cries Benny: "If that's not me knees, come in!"

The night club furore is again in full spurt. In one week not long ago 11 new clubs, magnificently decorated, made their bow. Most of them, if the average holds up, are due to fold up in a short while, but if one does catch the favor of the crowd for several months it will clean up a nice profit—and that's why there are so many willing to make the gamble.

In a walk across a block in East 81st street the other evening I passed a marble-fronted residence, deserted and dark—the owners likely at Palm Beach or on the Riviera—save for a light in the basement. Through a curtained slit was revealed a pleasant room with a glowing grate fire about which sat a woman sewing and her husband reading a paper. On one side of the cheerful blaze a dog napped and on a cushion a cat coiled in dreamy purr. It was a scene of marked content and one wondered if the home owners, wherever they were, were as happy.

Estelle Burgess's favorite quotation from Charles Kingsley:

Life [illegible] mostly froth and bubble;
Two [illegible]gs stand like stone;
Kindn[illegible] in another's trouble,
Courage in one's own.

City slicker stuff: "I've been in the big town three weeks now and already know that Puree St. Germaine is pea soup.—G. F. D."

PLANES WILL FLY DAILY

Soviet planes will fly every day between Moscow and Berlin regardless of rain or fog, according to Arnoldov, director of Deruluft, (Soviet-German Air Line.) Planes will be able to take off under any weather conditions at the Moscow central airport, for a landing field sown with special grass to avoid dust is being laid out, and starting and landing of aircraft will be regulated by a new radio and light signaling system.

Family Health

Regardless of its individual meanings—and they are countless—with the dawn of a new year each should ask himself the question, "Am I playing fair with my health? Is my physical efficiency up to par?" We may propound these queries not alone from a personal standpoint but from that of the family.

Most of us know the rules of the game, although there abounds a mass of misinformation about health. Nevertheless we should be able to winnow the wheat from the chaff and select that which is helpful. For, after all, it is as easy to keep well as it is to fall into habits which invite disease.

Physical soundness cannot be procured or maintained through panaceas. The faith of many—that the body can be fatigued at will and then brought back to normal by means of a few doses of medicine—will be rudely shattered by experience. Drugs are so valuable and important that they should not be abused; used as a crutch when none is required, or for the repair of wounds that should never have occurred.

Nature has provided the necessities of life and has endowed mankind with the intelligence to fashion and use them. It is when we simple-minded humans—jaded and surfeited with existence—attempt to exact exotic thrills that digestion rebels, kidneys fail, and the heart and the blood vessels show signs of exhaustion. True enough, the same types of damage to vital organs may come if they are overloaded, if the pressure of life is too high, or if rest for the "cell" machinery is not provided.

Just where a "break" may show itself cannot be foretold exactly. A few weeks ago a friend requested the name of a skilled eye specialist. He explained that his vision was not as good as it should be and that glasses did not remedy his impairment. "How long has it been since you visited your physician?" I asked. "About three years," was the answer. "Then see him first and the oculist later if need be."

The suggestion was followed and enough trouble was discovered in the circulation to account wholly for the eye symptoms. Fortunately the type of degeneration discovered in the capillaries was not so extensive as to be beyond repair. It might have been, however, with gradually failing vision, tantamount to blindness.

In the light of the blood vessel difficulty the cause was investigated and it was found that the "break" might, with equal facility, have shown itself in the heart or the kidneys. In this particular case the eyes constituted a "weak spot" in the physical armor. An insidiously rising blood pressure due to worry and overwork was responsible. An hour of rest lying down after each meal and a graduated diet changed the picture.

Health can neither be possessed nor preserved without effort. It takes struggle and victory over obstacles to produce stalwart bodies and alert minds. Just because the weather is not balmy and fine, shall we forego walking? If we bundle up and protect the feet from dampness, the cutting winds will bring a glow to the face and the whole body will react to a beneficial stimulus.

Civilization will perish if the men and women of this and the next few generations seek downy berths as their goals. Zest will go out of life and we will become a nation of soft-headed, soft-muscled weaklings. Anything that is obtained without labor is enervating, for decay follows disuse.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York has said that he would be glad to bury the hatchet with the administration, election results apparently having suggested to him that the New Deal enjoys a certain popularity.

The administration will be glad to bury the hatchet, too. The burial rites, if possible, will be performed in the region of the senator's neck.

A certain section of the New Deal doghouse is being prepared for Senator Copeland, in which virtually his only companion will be the over-ebullient young Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia. The current "era of good feeling" may or may not be what it's cracked up to be, but it isn't being cracked up at all for Holt or Copeland.

Copeland, somewhat after the manner of Holt, took a walk in the last campaign, though he didn't walk as far as Al Smith. After a few hard slams at the administration before Tammany's 150th celebration and refusal to be a delegate to the Philadelphia convention, he took himself off to the Holy Land. Subsequently he endeared himself to the State Department by demanding that it protest the way Great Britain was handling affairs in Palestine.

Mrs. Copeland made at least one Republican speech, promising that several members of her family would vote Republican—without mentioning her husband.

It Sounds Embarrassing

The senator is chairman of the Senate Commerce committee, which handles merchant marine legislation, but there's some doubt whether he will be as vocal in the shipping field as in the past. A few newspapers recently published excerpts from correspondence indicating that the senator had asked for free passes on a steamship line to Bermuda.

The correspondence showed that Copeland had obtained, or had been asked to obtain, certain favors for the Munson line and that later the line's representative in Washington had written C. W. Munson to the effect that Copeland had indicated a desire to take a trip to Bermuda with Mrs. Copeland. It appeared that the representative had assured the senator of the "courtesy of the line," feeling "sure that Mr. Frank C. Munson would do this, in view of the very valuable assistance we have recently received from the senator."

Frank Munson wrote a few days later that "Senator Copeland would prefer tickets rather than passes, and I am glad to enclose them in his favor."

When questioned, Copeland said he didn't recall the correspondence.

Ship Bill Attacked

Last year Senator Copeland sponsored a merchant marine bill which was licked after being attacked as opening the treasury to "an unlimited raid by private shipping operators."

Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama, leading the fight to clean up ship subsidy scandals, said, "I suppose a worse bill could be drawn, but it would be hard to tell how to go about it."

Unfairly or not, Copeland comes in for more varied attacks than most senators.

St. Louis newspapers recently charged that he had used his position—he is also an M. D.—to propagandize there against the U. S. standard milk ordinance, drawn up for municipalities by the U. S. Public Health service as providing safe standards of milk sanitation and opposed in St. Louis by the big dairy companies.

Copeland was publicly charged with "obfuscating the issue by erroneous comparisons and misleading omissions."

Right And Wrong Self-Expression

Much is being said about allowing children self-expression. To develop self-expression is splendid, provided the right kind of self is expressed. But the trouble is that so often no discrimination is made between good and bad expressions.

Broadly speaking, there are three kinds of self: the ignorant self, the wayward self and the soulful self. The ignorant self needs instruction; the wayward self needs discipline; and the soulful self needs expression.

The first thing to do with a child is to teach him the difference between right and wrong—between those things he should do and those things which he should not do. As soon as he has learned to differentiate between the two kinds of behavior, then he should be encouraged to give expression to the one and the extermination of the other.

It is the rankest kind of nonsense to excuse deviltry in children by calling it self-expression. The child who throws his plate on the floor should be told and taught that such conduct is not desirable. If he throws his plate on the floor after he knows better, he should receive the discipline that is essential in teaching him that waywardness receives its own kind of recompense.

The reason this self-expression chatter got going so foolishly is that it was originally directed toward those parents who made a practice of picking on their children all the time about things that really did not matter; they pestered their offspring half to death and repressed them in all directions. So, in order to give the youngsters a chance to live, parents were told to let them alone—to permit them self-expression.

Then the self-expression was grabbed by lazy parents as an excuse to shirk their parental responsibility; it is much easier for some parents to let their children run wild than to make the necessary effort to train them.

Sometimes parents are the worst enemies children have—parents who are lazy, indifferent, and whose idle words and undesirable ideas and examples influence their children most unfortunately.

A destructive remark made before a five-year-old child by a parent may damage that child for life by fixing an unwholesome thought in the child's plastic mind. And perhaps that harm done the child was a result of harmful training the parent received when a child. Thus a man's wrong notion may be due to the way his grandfather brought up his father.

To learn to carry himself honorably, to be fair in his dealings, to be kind to his fellows, to be tolerant, to be decent in his private life and on the level in his public life—that is the kind of self-expression the child and the man should be encouraged to practice.

Let the child—and the world—have its way in the little things which do not matter. But be stern and uncompromising in the big things that do matter.

KEEPING PEACE

When James Hammond became warden of Kentucky's state prison some time ago, he found a big problem on his hands. Enforced idleness had led to a series of disturbances at the institution.

Because of a law preventing commercial use of prison-made goods, Mr. Hammond could not put his 2,900 convicts at work, to keep them out of mischief. So he tried another idea. He started drilling his prisoners, on a competitive basis, the various squads vying for the distinction of being the best-drilled in the prison. The plan has worked with remarkable success.

This remarkable story seems to be analogous to one from abroad. When Hitler became Der Fuehrer, conditions in Germany were turbulent. He, too, began to put his people on a military basis and, by drumming into them the theory that they were a chosen race, strengthened their competitive instinct. And thus far Hitler, too, has been successful.

But there the analogy ends. The principal aim of Hammond's plan, it seems, is to keep the peace.

CONTINUE TO GIVE

An analysis of American charity, just completed by a New York committee for religious and welfare recovery, reveals a very striking and significant fact.

The highest percentage of giving that has ever been recorded was attained during the depression year of 1932. And during 1935, the year in which recovery began to set in, a new low in American generosity was reached.

On the surface, it seems odd that people are more inclined to aid others when they are least able; and yet, perhaps, it is only natural. It may be only when suffering and distress are widespread, and brought home to them personally, that people really can sympathize with the plight of their fellow citizens.

If the return of good times is to benefit all, Americans must keep constantly alive to the needs of unfortunates.

Men or nations, those who have must arm to keep it, or those who have not will arm to take it.

Rhyme And Reason

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SHE WORE HER MOTHER'S WEDDING GOWN

She wore her mother's wedding gown,
Its lustrous satin dim with time.
Her mother's veil swept lightly down
The stair her baby learned to climb.

Her pretty slippers made no sound
As she came lightly down the stair.
A wreath of orange blossoms bound
The golden glory of her hair.

She wore her mother's wedding dress!
The mantle of her mother's years
Was hers to bring her happiness,
And quiet all her girlish fears.

Her mother met her father's gaze.
Her misty eyes were soft and brown,
Recapturing her days of days

Turn A Deaf Ear

By BRUCE CATTON

Among the New Year's resolutions which Americans might profitably make is the resolve to be busy with something else whenever a distinguished European comes to these shores to enlarge upon America's duty to world civilization.

The parade will be beginning almost any time now. Famous authors, retired statesmen, and high-powered economists will be arriving in New York, coming up the bay amid a cloud of fine phrases about the critical situation in Europe and the things America ought to do about it.

For our congress is about to pass a new neutrality law. No one knows what sort of law it will pass, but congress has to do something, because the existing one is about to expire. And our late allies in the fight to make the world safe for democracy have a deep and abiding interest in the new law.

We can do one of two things with this new law. We can make our neutrality foolproof, as far as any law can do that in an uncertain world, or we can fix things so that we can give moral and material aid to one of the two sides in the next European fracas.

We can't possibly do both, and we might as well make up our minds right now which of the two courses we prefer. And it is in this connection that we could very well decide to turn a deaf ear to the advice of distinguished visitors.

These visitors will do their job skillfully. They will begin by telling us what a great nation we are, and how the eyes of the world are fixed on Washington. Europe, they will insist, is headed for disaster unless the United States does its part in a wise and statesmanlike manner.

That, in turn, will be followed by an argument something like this: Europe's only hope of peace lies in the League of Nations, the one force that has a chance to restrain war-like and aggressive countries.

But the league is hamstrung unless it gets the support of America. If America could just help the league apply boycotts and sanctions, for example, and throw its influence against aggressors denounced by the league, a new light would dawn.

This will be put very persuasively. When congress tackles the new neutrality law, some of us will feel that the embargoes contemplated in the law ought to be made discretionary with the president. That is, instead of cutting off all financial and material aid to both parties in a European war, we should let the president cut off such aid from one side only. In that way we could make our influence felt for peace.

Now the only trouble with such a course is that it wouldn't lead toward neutrality; it would lead directly away from it. It would put us into every European quarrel, right up to our necks, the moment the president decided to exercise his discretionary powers.

An ironclad embargo law applicable to both sides—that is what we need if we really want neutrality. It might pain and shock our European advisers, but it's the best bet if we hope to keep out of war.

A BOOK REVIEW

HERE'S LIVELY TALE OF GREAT AUDUBON

"Audubon," by Constance Rourke, is a lively account of a gay, "unaccountable" genius.

Miss Rourke tries to explain the amazing combination of artist and scientist in a simple American frontiersman by the strange suggestion that, owing to certain mysteries and coincidences, he may have been the Dauphin of France, sent to America at the time of the French revolution.

However all that may be, Audubon is an interesting character. He was the first to paint birds against their natural background, in a variety of natural attitudes. But more than that, he was not content with only a faithful portrayal of the bird.

He added gay designs of leaves, a spray of flowers, delicate tendrils of a vine—always a pattern, yet true to the most minute vein on the palest petal. In other words, he made an art of ornithology.

Like all true artists, Audubon overflowed with zest. One wonders how he found time to support a family; to spend, before dawn, long hours of patient silence, watching his birds in woods from Labrador to the Keys of Florida, from Kentucky to Louisiana; to paint with the most exquisite care, and to live, withal, a very merry life.

There was plenty of adventure in those early frontier days. Keeper of a little store in Henderson, Ky., Audubon made friends of all who passed his way—from old Daniel Boone and the Indians to Alexander Wilson, the Scottish ornithologist, and Rafinesque, the queer French naturalist.

Later he knew the society life of Philadelphia and New Orleans, and was lionized, after an exhibition of his paintings in the Royal institute, in both Edinburgh and London. Christopher North of Blackwell's loved to talk with him the whole night through. Sir Walter Scott admired his simplicity.

Miss Rourke, having studied all the Audubon tradition carefully, gives a good idea of early frontier life, but becomes increasingly absorbed in the personality which glowed through his achievements.—D. S. E.

NEW YORK Day by Day

by—O. O. McIntyre

The silken voiced ex-Paris play boy Erskine Gwynne, sponsoring a night club in the Central park south zone, is indicative of a modern trend. Society in trade. He was reared with platinum pomp—governesses, private tutors and in those selective, exclusive boarding schools in Switzerland.

At 18 he spoke five different languages and had hob-nobbed with the Vanderbilts, his relatives by marriage, and all the bigwig scions of the international top drawer set. For years he was the "life of the party" in the American contingent that circled that classy carrousel—the "Place Vendome crowd."

Then came the shock to the world and Gwynne and his brother went into the air forces, Erskine escaping with his life but his brother was shot down. Up to that time the life of both had been mostly play.

With the armistice, Gwynne returned to Paris and during the boom launched The Boulevardier, a magazine fashioned on the lines of The New Yorker. It prospered in a way, and the publisher proved he could be self-supporting.

Then the market crash and curtain for most of those who made up the magazine's subscription list and Gwynne took step in the steady trek to America. And brushed smack against the dead wall that halted so many returning exiles. He wrote a book, accepted a Hollywood assignment or so, but there were many interludes at liberty.

So he has become a night club impresario, greeting with a maitre de hotel obesiance those who used to angle for him at their own select dinners in London, Paris, New York and where not.

How the world has changed!

Incidentally, Tommy Manville, the Broadway version of a play boy, now appears in the cafes and at first nights in an ash gray dinner suit with glossy black satin lapels. The idea blends at least with his gray hair.

Many of the radio announcements are irritatingly presumptious. One, for instance, in presenting its star says: "So here is your favorite radio and screen star." It strikes me that "a" could be substituted for "your" and it would be all right with many listeners-in.

And I think a recent hilarious high in radio goofiness was during a Burns and Allen broadcast when Gracie went suddenly and deliriously mad and began to trill tra la la la la, so that everybody on the program, including the announcer, was soon doing it. I know she had me tra la la laing all that evening and a slice of the next morning.

Someone sends me a clipping from Columnist Lyons with this honey:

"They are telling this of Lord Beaverbrook and a visiting Yankee actress. In a game of hypothetical questions, Beaverbrook asked the lady: 'Would you live with a stranger if he paid you one million pounds?" She said she would. 'And if he paid you five pounds?' The irate lady fumed: 'Five pounds. What do you think I am?' Beaverbrook replied: 'We've already established that. Now we are trying to determine the degree.'"

A Park avenue lady writes me of a sign in the vestry of the Presbyterian church at Ivergordon, Scotland: "It will be a favor if office bearers will kindly refrain from counting the collection until after the doors have been shut and the prayers concluded, as the noise disturbs the congregation."

Among the season's funny radio cracks: Jack Benny in a tight spot with a burglar. A knock at the door. Cries Benny: "If that's not me knees, come in!"

The night club furore is again in full spurt. In one week not long ago 11 new clubs, magnificently decorated, made their bow. Most of them, if the average holds up, are due to fold up in a short while, but if one does catch the favor of the crowd for several months it will clean up a nice profit—and that's why there are so many willing to make the gamble.

In a walk across a block in East 81st street the other evening I passed a marble-fronted residence, deserted and dark—the owners likely at Palm Beach or on the Riviera—save for a light in the basement. Through a curtained slit was revealed a pleasant room with a glowing grate fire about which sat a woman sewing and her husband reading a paper. On one side of the cheerful blaze a dog napped and on a cushion a cat coiled in dreamy purr. It was a scene of marked content and one wondered if the home owners, wherever they were, were as happy.

Estelle Burgess's favorite quotation from Charles Kingsley:

Life [illegible] mostly froth and bubble;
Two [illegible]gs stand like stone;
Kindn[illegible] in another's trouble,
Courage in one's own.

PLANES WILL FLY DAILY

Soviet planes will fly every day between Moscow and Berlin regardless of rain or fog, according to Arnoldov, director of Deruluft, (Soviet-German Air Line.) Planes will be able to take off under any weather conditions at the Moscow central airport, for a landing field sown with special grass to avoid dust is being laid out, and starting and landing of aircraft will be regulated by a new radio and light signaling system.

Family Health

Regardless of its individual meanings—and they are countless—with the dawn of a new year each should ask himself the question, "Am I playing fair with my health? Is my physical efficiency up to par?" We may propound these queries not alone from a personal standpoint but from that of the family.

Most of us know the rules of the game, although there abounds a mass of misinformation about health. Nevertheless we should be able to winnow the wheat from the chaff and select that which is helpful. For, after all, it is as easy to keep well as it is to fall into habits which invite disease.

Physical soundness cannot be procured or maintained through panaceas. The faith of many—that the body can be fatigued at will and then brought back to normal by means of a few doses of medicine—will be rudely shattered by experience. Drugs are so valuable and important that they should not be abused; used as a crutch when none is required, or for the repair of wounds that should never have occurred.

Nature has provided the necessities of life and has endowed mankind with the intelligence to fashion and use them. It is when we simple-minded humans—jaded and surfeited with existence—attempt to exact exotic thrills that digestion rebels, kidneys fail, and the heart and the blood vessels show signs of exhaustion. True enough, the same types of damage to vital organs may come if they are overloaded, if the pressure of life is too high, or if rest for the "cell" machinery is not provided.

Just where a "break" may show itself cannot be foretold exactly. A few weeks ago a friend requested the name of a skilled eye specialist. He explained that his vision was not as good as it should be and that glasses did not remedy his impairment. "How long has it been since you visited your physician?" I asked. "About three years," was the answer. "Then see him first and the oculist later, if need be."

The suggestion was followed and enough trouble was discovered in the circulation to account wholly for the eye symptoms. Fortunately the type of degeneration discovered in the capillaries was not so extensive as to be beyond repair. It might have been, however, with gradually failing vision, tantamount to blindness.

In the light of the blood vessel difficulty the cause was investigated and it was found that the "break" might, with equal facility, have shown itself in the heart or the kidneys. In this particular case the eyes constituted a "weak spot" in the physical armor. An insidiously rising blood pressure due to worry and overwork was responsible. An hour of rest lying down after each meal and a graduated diet changed the picture.

Health can neither be possessed nor preserved without effort. It takes struggle and victory over obstacles to produce stalwart bodies and alert minds. Just because the weather is not balmy and fine, shall we forego walking? If we bundle up and protect the feet from dampness, the cutting winds will bring a glow to the face and the whole body will react to a beneficial stimulus.

Civilization will perish if the men and women of this and the next few generations seek downy berths as their goals. Zest will go out of life and we will become a nation of soft-headed, soft-muscled weaklings. Anything that is obtained without labor is enervating, for decay follows disuse.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York has said that he would be glad to bury the hatchet with the administration, election results apparently having suggested to him that the New Deal enjoys a certain popularity.

The administration will be glad to bury the hatchet, too. The burial rites, if possible, will be performed in the region of the senator's neck.

A certain section of the New Deal doghouse is being prepared for Senator Copeland, in which virtually his only companion will be the over-ebullient young Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia. The current "era of good feeling" may or may not be what it's cracked up to be, but it isn't being cracked up at all for Holt or Copeland.

Copeland, somewhat after the manner of Holt, took a walk in the last campaign, though he didn't walk as far as Al Smith. After a few hard slams at the administration before Tammany's 150th celebration and refusal to be a delegate to the Philadelphia convention, he took himself off to the Holy Land. Subsequently he endeared himself to the State Department by demanding that it protest the way Great Britain was handling affairs in Palestine.

Mrs. Copeland made at least one Republican speech, promising that several members of her family would vote Republican—without mentioning her husband.

It Sounds Embarrassing

The senator is chairman of the Senate Commerce committee, which handles merchant marine legislation, but there's some doubt whether he will be as vocal in the shipping field as in the past. A few newspapers recently published excerpts from correspondence indicating that the senator had asked for free passes on a steamship line to Bermuda.

The correspondence showed that Copeland had obtained, or had been asked to obtain, certain favors for the Munson line and that later the line's representative in Washington had written C. W. Munson to the effect that Copeland had indicated a desire to take a trip to Bermuda with Mrs. Copeland. It appeared that the representative had assured the senator of the "courtesy of the line," feeling "sure that Mr. Frank C. Munson would do this, in view of the very valuable assistance we have recently received from the senator."

Frank Munson wrote a few days later that "Senator Copeland would prefer tickets rather than passes, and I am glad to enclose them in his favor."

When questioned, Copeland said he didn't recall the correspondence.

Ship Bill Attacked

Last year Senator Copeland sponsored a merchant marine bill which was licked after being attacked as opening the treasury to "an unlimited raid by private shipping operators."

Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama, leading the fight to clean up ship subsidy scandals, said, "I suppose a worse bill could be drawn, but it would be hard to tell how to go about it."

Unfairly or not, Copeland comes in for more varied attacks than most senators.

St. Louis newspapers recently charged that he had used his position—he is also an M. D.—to propagandize there against the U. S. standard milk ordinance, drawn up for municipalities by the U. S. Public Health service as providing safe standards of milk sanitation and opposed in St. Louis by the big dairy companies.

Copeland was publicly charged with "obfuscating the issue by erroneous comparisons and misleading omissions."

3 CONVICTS ON PAROLE MISSING

Two Expected To Come In But Arrival Of Other Doubtful

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Holiday paroles for Alabama's 494 best behaved prisoners were over today, but at least three convicts had decided to "extend" the two-weeks' Christmas vacation given them by Governor Bibb Graves.

Warden Frank Boswell of Kilby prison, chief unit in Alabama's prison system, said three of the 128 men released there had failed to report today. The paroles ended last night.

"I'm expecting two of them in here sometime today," Boswell said. "One had a Christmas parole in 1935, too, and has only a few more months to serve. But that third—I'm not looking for him."

The chief warden said several late comers at other prisons had stopped at Kilby to notify him they were running late. No disciplinary measures will be taken if tardy parolees report today, he said.

Most of the convicts hitch-hike to and from their home and rain has hindered a few stragglers on the highways, Boswell said.

Hamp Draper, chief of the state convict department, said a complete report from the state's four main prisons and 12 road camps would not be available until Monday as the state capitol was closed today.

FLOODED PEOPLE WILL BE MOVED

Numerous Streams In Alabama Rise To Crest As Heavy Rains Come

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Red Cross contemplated moving families from the Cahaba river lowlands near Selma today, as numerous Alabama streams rose toward flood crests under the burden of heavy general rains over north and central Alabama.

The Cahaba already was leaving its banks in some areas about five miles from Selma.

Meanwhile, Florence, Ala., reported the Tennessee gauge jumped several feet, and Florence observers predicted the flood stage might be reached if rains elsewhere up the valley matched the 3 inches that fell there last night.

Gadsden, Ala., received 2.41 inches of rain in the 24 hours ending at 7 a.m., and the Coosa river there rose four feet—within about 2 feet of flood stage.

E. D. Emigh, meteorologist at Montgomery, said the Coosa at Rome, Ga., was at the 21 foot stage, and that 24 feet was expected. The flood stage there is 25 feet. At Wetumpka, Ala., near Montgomery, the reading was 27.8 feet, while flood stage is 45 feet.

Emigh reported that unless heavy rains fell today and tomorrow, no floods were anticipated on the Tallapoosa and Alabama rivers.

Heavy rain fell in the Birmingham area, E. C. Horton estimating the city had received about 2 inches in the last 30 hours.

While the United States weather bureau predicted "showers this afternoon" for Alabama, hope that serious floods would be averted came in the forecast for tomorrow—cold and fair.

LEGION POSTPONES REGULAR MEETING

A regular meeting of the Leonidas Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion has been postponed from Monday night to Tuesday night, according to an announcement made yesterday.

The postponement was made because of a program to be given by the Monroe Civic Music association Monday night at the Ouachita Parish High school auditorium.

DEATHS

MRS. G. W. PRICE, SR.

DODSON, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—Funeral services for Mrs. G. W. Price, Sr., about 74, who died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ben House, at Jonesboro, were held Wednesday at the Zion Hill Baptist church, with Rev. Monk, pastor of the Zion Rest Primitive Baptist church, officiating. Interment followed at Zion Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Price, who was a member of a well known Dodson family, died of pneumonia and complications after a week's illness.

She is survived by two sons, G. W. Price, Jr., of Dodson, and J. B. Price of Shreveport; and five daughters, Mrs. Walter Ramegay and Mrs. Walter Hughes of Dodson, Mrs. J. L. Fox of Winnsboro, Mrs. F. H. Paige of Chase, and Mrs. Ben House of Jonesboro.

MRS. GEORGE BURNETT

Mrs. George Burnett, 83, died after a short illness on Saturday. The funeral will be held at Peters funeral chapel today at 3 p.m., with interment in the old city cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, three brothers and three sisters.

The family home is at 216 South First street.

Two Expected To Come In But Arrival Of Other Doubtful

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Holiday paroles for Alabama's 494 best behaved prisoners were over today, but at least three convicts had decided to "extend" the two-weeks' Christmas vacation given them by Governor Bibb Graves.

Warden Frank Boswell of Kilby prison, chief unit in Alabama's prison system, said three of the 128 men released there had failed to report today. The paroles ended last night.

"I'm expecting two of them in here sometime today," Boswell said. "One had a Christmas parole in 1935, too, and has only a few more months to serve. But that third—I'm not looking for him."

The chief warden said several late comers at other prisons had stopped at Kilby to notify him they were running late. No disciplinary measures will be taken if tardy parolees report today, he said.

Most of the convicts hitch-hike to and from their home and rain has hindered a few stragglers on the highways, Boswell said.

Hamp Draper, chief of the state convict department, said a complete report from the state's four main prisons and 12 road camps would not be available until Monday as the state capitol was closed today.

BROWN SHADES ARKANSAS IN THRILLER, 31-29

GEORGE V. LOFTON, SPORTS EDITOR

MONROE, LOUISIANA, SUNDAY, JANUARY 3, 1937

Parker Trims Grant For Sugar Bowl Tennis Crown

SPORTS CHATTER

By George V. Lofton

FOOTBALL FADEOUT

The football season came to an end before 200,000 fans in six big games Friday and, in some respects, the finish was just as goofy as the beginning.

Two favorites, L. S. U. and Marquette, were defeated, another favorite, Auburn, was held to a tie and Duquesne, which was expected to trim Mississippi State, escaped with a one-point victory. Pitt, which was the underdog when its selection was first announced, last week was picked by most of the alleged experts to beat Washington. The not-so-Huskies can testify as to just how well those Panthers turned the trick.

All of us, of course, thought L. S. U. would trim Santa Clara with touchdowns to spare. They were betting 4 to 1 in New Orleans that the Tigers would triumph and on even money laying, one could pick up 12 points if he chose to string along with the Broncos. Few seemed to take into consideration the psychological angle, which undoubtedly brought about the downfall of the Bengals.

The L. S. U. players and some members of the athletic staff were keenly disappointed when the Tigers were not invited to the Rose Bowl. The team suffered a let-down in morale. They were getting a trip to New Orleans instead of a holiday jaunt to Pasadena, with all the parties, movie tours and the other trimmings that go with a Rose Bowl bid. Bernie Moore was faced with the hopeless task of pulling the team out of the mental slump, and Santa Clara, with all the psychology in their favor, took full advantage of the situation.

Glen Rose, Arkansas basketball coach, told us yesterday that the Tigers were plenty sluggish.

"I scouted 'em three times last fall before we played at Shreveport," Rose said. "They showed me some real football on those three occasions. Friday they looked bad. L. S. U. simply didn't have its heart in it."

So much for the Sugar Bowl.

The Pasadena classic regained plenty of prestige when Pitt trimmed Washington. The criticism levelled at the Rose Bowl when the Panthers were nominated is an old story, of course. Now that's all forgotten. A record crowd turned out for the game and the team which they said was being led to slaughter came through with an overwhelming victory. Dame Fortune smiled all over the place Friday.

And while the Dame was smiling, the laugh was on Washington. The Huskies, never victorious in the Rose Bowl, thought they'd clinch a victory by inviting Pitt. At last reports, those responsible for the invitation were trying to hide in one of the many Panther tracks on Rose Bowl sod.

HOGS IN HIGH

Two-thirds of Arkansas' athletic brain trust spent yesterday in Monroe. Glen Rose, basketball coach and assistant football mentor, and Boyd Cypert, business manager of athletics at Arkansas, were here for the Brown-Arkansas basketball game last night. Fred Thomsen, football coach and athletic director, is the other member of the triumvirate which has piloted the Hogs to top honors in the Southwest conference.

It's been a hard pull for the Razorbacks and their present success is a tribute to the Thomsen-Rose-Cypert combination. The Hogs hold the football and basketball championships of the Southwest, and that's quite an accomplishment when you consider the fact that the league includes such teams as T. C. U., S. M. U., Rice, Texas A. and M., Baylor and Texas.

When Francis Schmidt left Arkansas some seven or eight years ago, Razorback supporters feared athletics would hit the skids at Fayetteville. Schmidt had piloted the Porkers to five consecutive basketball titles and his football teams usually were up around the top. When Arkansas teams suffered a couple of lean years after the close of the Schmidt regime, their fears seemed about to be realized.

Then in 1932 Rose, a former football and basketball star at the university, was brought in as assistant to Thomsen on the gridiron and head basketball mentor. Cypert, one of the greatest baseball and football luminaries in Arkansas history, was persuaded to leave a lucrative law practice in Little Rock to handle the business end of athletics. A campaign was started to induce Arkansas high school football stars, who had been journeying to Tulane, L. S. U., Alabama and Georgia Tech chiefly, to do their gridiron chores at the state university. This campaign proved successful and the Hogs began to perk up.

In 1933 Arkansas won the unofficial football championship of the Southwest conference; in 1935 the Razorbacks finished in a tie for the cage title and then in 1936 the Porkers copped both the football and basketball crowns. So it's easy to see why the Thomsen-Rose-Cypert brain trust is the toast of Arkansas now.

Incidentally, both Cypert and Rose regret that L. S. U. and Arkansas won't meet at Shreveport next fall.

"We left the date open as usual," Cy said yesterday, "and all of us were disappointed when L. S. U. announced that they had signed a three-year contract with Vanderbilt for that date. It's up to L. S. U. whether or not we meet in the future. Naturally, we must look out for our own interests and we have scheduled games with major teams for that date in 1938 and '39. I hope we may resume our pleasant relations with L. S. U. in the future, though."

What are the prospects for 1937?

"We lost two all-Southwest basketball players," Rose said, "but we

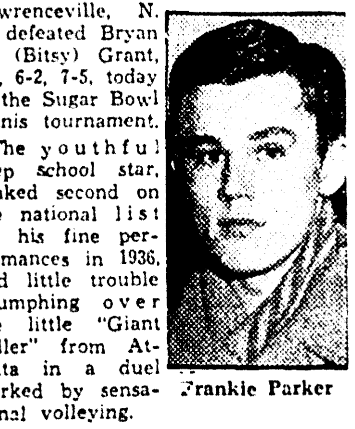
NEW JERSEY ACE BEATS ATLANTAN IN STRAIGHT SETS

Backhand Stroking And Placing Of Baseline Shots Win For Frankie

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Through a combination of great backhand stroking and the placing of baseline shopts, Frankie Parker of Lawrenceville, N. J., defeated Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, 7-5, 6-2, 7-5, today in the Sugar Bowl tennis tournament.



Frankie Parker

The youthful prep school star, ranked second on the national list for his fine performances in 1936, had little trouble triumphing over the little "Giant Killer" from Atlanta in a duel marked by sensasional volleying.

Grant, rated third among the nation's stars for the second straight year, opened up with a flash of bewildering shots that threatened to make a rout of the battle, played in intermittent showers and witnessed by more than 500 fans.

The 26-year-old Grant, member of the Davis Cup squad last year, dropped the first game of the opening set to Parker but won the next three. The count reached 5-4 in favor of Grant, but the Atlantan was caught with a series of baseline shots that saw Parker win three games in a row and the set.

It was Parker all the way in the second set. He won the first four games, dropping a cross-fire of shots at Grant steadily until the diminutive Georgia star appeared to tire. Grant unloosed some of his best play to take the fifth and sixth games, running to the net for several fine shots, but Parker took the next two.

The third set was the highlight of the battle waged for the Sugar Bowl championship won last year by Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla., who was beaten by Grant in the semi-finals.

Parker took a 4-2 lead in the third and deciding set. Grant rallied with a series of spectacular shots, coupled with a few errros by Parker, to run the count to 5-all. Parker won the 11th game on Grant's service and had the Atlantan 40-love on the 12th game service.

Grant won the next three points after long and safe volleying to make it deuce. Five times Parker had the match point before Grant smashed a return outside the sideline.

In the doubles, the Sutter brothers of New Orleans, Ed and Ernie, the latter National Intercollegiate champion, defeated John McDiarmid of Chicago and Hendrix, in a closely-fought battle that went five sets. The score was 1-6, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0.

BAUGH DENIES HE WILL JOIN OLE MISS STAFF

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan 2.—(AP)—"I haven't heard a thing about it."

Thus Sammy Baugh, great T. C. U. gridder who closed his career against Marquette Friday in Dallas, answered reports he was to be named backfield coach at the University of Mississippi.

The Atlanta Journal had reported it learned Saturday of Baugh's probable appointment at Ole Miss. Baugh was located in McKinney where he is visiting.

"I haven't even talked with anyone from Mississippi," Sam told the Star-Telegram in a long distance conversation. "This is the first time I've even heard it mentioned."

Sam hopes to start his coaching career as the T. C. U. backfield mentor next fall. Although there is absolutely nothing definite as yet, it's certain he will be strongly considered at the February meeting of the T. C. U. board. T. C. U. has three full-time coaches now.

TULLOS OILERS TO PLAY TECH AT URANIA MONDAY

JENA, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—The Tullos Oilers will play their second home game of the season Monday night when they meet the Louisiana Polytechnic institute Bulldogs in the Urania gym. The Oilers have beaten the Boglusa Gaylords and Hodge Paper mill in their only two games of the season. Nick Medica, former Jena High school and Tech star, and now coach of the Oilers, will be one of the outstanding attractions of the game.

James Nicholson, player for the Jena Giants in 1935, is a member of the Tech squad as is Henslee, former player for the Urania High Foresters. Nicholson is rated as one of the best floor men in basketball circles. His dribbling is an art developed by long and tedious practice before it could be perfected to the desired degree.

GIANTS SCHEDULE 32 SPRING GAMES

New York And Cleveland To Play At Vicksburg And Jackson This Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Bill Terry's New York Giants will prepare for baseball's "tough guys" right from scratch.

The 1937 spring exhibition schedule, released today, shows that the champs will tangle with the "Cuban Armed Forces" in their first practice game of the year. "If we can lick them, why we oughta be a cinch to keep the flag."

Nothing was said as to a possible rebellion in the meantime although Brannick said the Giants weren't afraid of any army after its adventures with Brooklyn and the St. Louis Gashouse Gang.

Thirty-two games, nine of them at the training base at Havana, are on the Giant spring schedule. The Cleveland Indians will offer most of the opposition, playing the champions in 18 games throughout the south and winding up with a pair of contests at the Polo Grounds, New York, April 17 and 18.

On their exhibition tour, the Giants will play in 12 states and Cuba.

The schedule:

February 24—Cuban Armed Forces at Havana.

February 28 and 29—Habana and Almendares club at Havana.

March 4—Club of National league amateurs at Havana.

March 6—Habana and Almendares club at Havana.

March 7 and 11—Club of Social league amateurs at Havana.

March 13 and 14—St. Louis Cardinals at Havana.

March 16—Boston Bees at St. Petersburg, Fla.

March 17—Washington at Orlando, Fla.

March 18—St. Louis Cardinals at Daytona Beach, Fla.

March 20 and 21—Cleveland at Gulfport, Miss.

March 27—Cleveland at Jackson, Miss.

March 28—Cleveland at Vicksburg, Miss.

April 3 and 4—Cleveland at New Orleans.

April 5—Cleveland at Baton Rouge, La.

April 6—Cleveland at Tyler, Tex.

April 7—Cleveland at Shawnee, Okla.

April 8—Cleveland at Fort Smith, Ark.

April 9—Cleveland at Helena, Ark.

April 10—Memphis at Memphis.

April 11—Nashville at Nashville.

April 12—Cleveland at Rome, Ga.

April 14—Cleveland at Thomaston, Ga.

April 15—Cleveland at Columbia, S. C.

April 16—Cleveland at Charlotte, N. C.

April 17 and 18—Cleveland at Polo Grounds, New York.

The Giants will spent 12 days at a training base in Gulfport, Miss., and probably will play a few games with their new farm hands from Jersey City, who will train in Gulfport.

Twin City Cage League Opens Schedule Tuesday

Central-Circle S Plays Cudahy, Swartz Meets Baptists At Center

Competition in the recently organized Twin City Basketball league will begin Tuesday night at the gymnasium at Northeast Center of L. S. U. when the Central-Circle S five engages the Cudahy Packers and the Swartz Carbon Blackers meet the Baptists, Carroll Royce, league president, has announced.

Officials of the league, other than President Royce, are Bill Allen, vice-president, and Leo Hartman, secretary and treasurer. Paul J. Neal, organizer of the old City league, is a member of the board of directors of the new loop. Royce and Hartman are others on the executive committee.

Six teams comprise the circuit, and games will be played two nights each week. Two games will be played on each game night except one, when three matches will be played. The game nights of each week will vary, however, to avoid conflicts with other athletic activities in Monroe and West Monroe.

All games will be played at Northeast Center of L. S. U., and there will be no admission charge during the first round of playing which ends January 29. It is likely that the no-admission ruling will stand through the schedule until the championship playoff, President Royce said.

Monroe will have four teams, the Baptists, Cudahy Packers, Central-Circle S and Adler's Garagemen, in the league, West Monroe will have one and Swartz one. West Monroe has already acclaimed the Pan-Am Oilers as their team and will be backing them throughout. At Swartz the enthusiasm that predominated during Swartz's bid for the championship baseball team of the Ouachita Valley league last summer is expected to be reflected in their support of the Carbon Blackers as a cage team.

Although the permanent personnel of the various teams will not be determined until after two games have been played by each team, indications are that several of the teams will be strongly represented and competition is expected to be keen.

West Monroe's Pan-Am aggregation will have Frank Lawson, guard on last year's Brown Paper mill team, as captain and guard. Ed Lanier, another performer for the Brownies last season, will be at the other guard post, with Everett "Ikey" Harper and Broom, more former Brownies, as centers. The Downey brothers, forwards for the Hermitage, Ark., five last year, will play forwards for the Oilers.

"Peanut" Hudnall will lead Adler's Garage, backed by several Northeast Center of L. S. U. athletes who discarded the idea of entering a team of their own and joined the Garagemen. Among these college boys are Clifford Johnson, former Ouachita Parish High school star; Bob Johnson of Little Rock, Ark., Rawlins and Trichell, hold-overs from last season's independent Adler five, and Hendricks.

Central-Circle S also is boasting a strong team. This squad includes Parham, former Brown Paper mill player; DeWitt, a member of the Bogalusa team that won the S. A. A. U. title last year; Mike Brown, former Ouachita Parish High school star; Roland Brown, former L. S. U. athlete; Kyle, former Louisiana Tech center, and Webb and John Frantom.

Just who the Swartz Carbon Blackers will have is not definite, but the squad is expected to include Fontenot, the former high-scoring forward of Collinston High school; Lloyd Guy, a former Tulane performer, and Wolfe and Patterson, who were on the Swartz baseball club last season.

The Cudahy Packers and the Baptists haven't revealed much information concerning their teams, but they both promise to be in the fight for positions from start to finish. The Baptists, led by Raymond Masling, are composed of a group of local youngsters who have played basketball together for several years. Simeon Lieber heads the Packers.

The roster of officials who will work the various games includes George Gill, a professional baseball pitcher; Bob McNeely, Paul Neal, Alf Reid, Leo Hartman, Carroll Royce, Vernon "Lefty" Haynes, Percy Brown, Jim Malone and "Sonny" Maroney. The officials for Tuesdays games will be Gill and McNeely.

Other games during the week will be played Friday night when the Baptists tangle with the Pan-Am Oilers and the Packers tackle Adler.

A general league meeting, to see that everything is in readiness to swing into action, will be held tomorrow night in the city hall courtroom here,

President Royce announced last night Each team manager and captain is requested to be present at this last conference before the schedule opens.

SOLEM IS NAMED SYRACUSE COACH

Iowa Mentor Given Three-Year Contract To Succeed Vic Hanson

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Ossie Solem, for the past four years athletic director and head football coach at the University of Iowa, was named football coach at Syracuse university today to succeed Victor A. Hanson who resigned after a disastrous season.

Acting Chancellor William P. Graham said the selection of Solem was made by the university's administrative board on athletics on the recommendation of a special committee appointed to make a study of candidates.

University officials did not announce the terms under which Solem comes to Syracuse but it was generally believed he signed a three year contract for a salary of approximately $7,500 annually.

Graham at the same time said no appointment had been made "yet" of an athletic director to succeed Dr. Leslie A. Bryan who also resigned to return to his position on the business college faculty.

Solm is expected to take over his new position about February 1 and, as one of his first jobs, make a tour of the east visiting Syracuse alumni organizations.

Graham said that Solem, as head football coach, "will be in complete charge and will select his own assistants."

TECH BASKETBALL TEAM TO RESUME SCHEDULE MONDAY

Following Game At Tullos, Bulldogs Play Benefit Tilt Wednesday

RUSTON, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—To raise part of the funds needed for remodeling the men's gymnasium at Louisiana Tech, a benefit basketball game will be played here next Wednesday night between the varsity Techmen and the Tullos Oilers, Coach Eddie McLane has announced. The Tech basketeers also will play the Tullos cagers at Tullos on Monday night.

President E. S. Richardson of Louisiana Tech has granted permission to the athletic department to obtain funds for improvements in the gymnasium, Coach McLane said. In addition to money to be secured through the benefit basketball game, funds also will be solicited, it was said.

Work on the remodeling already has started. A stage at the east end of the basketball court has been removed and in its place has been built an exercise room equipped for boxing and wrestling.

Plans also have been announced for brick-veneering the men's gymnasium. Seats along the south side of the basketball floor will be elevated and a ladies' rest room will be installed, it has been announced. Hand ball courts are to be erected in the west end of the building.

Students as well as all other spectators attending the benefit game here next Wednesday night will be asked to pay the small admission price to help out the remodeling cause, Coach McLane stated.

It is expected that most of the interior improvements will have been completed by the time of the Tech-Centenary basketball game, scheduled for Monday night, January 18.

Following their two engagements with the Tullos Oilers the coming week, the Tech cagemen on Friday will leave for an extended road trip. The itinerary includes games with Louisiana college at Pineville, Friday; Southwestern Louisiana institute at Lafayette, Saturday night; Tulane university in New Orleans, Monday, and Loyola university in New Orleans, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Assistant Coach Herb Duggins will have charge of training the Tech basketball players, while Coach McLane devotes his attention to the improvements in the gymnasium, it has been announced.

While the basketball schedule, as well as the cards for boxing and baseball, has been completed, the lineup of football games for Tech's 1937 season remains indefinite. The gridiron schedule, Coach McLane announced Saturday, would probably be announced as a feature of the annual football banquet here. The date for the dinner has not been arranged, though the event will probably be held sometime in January, the coach said.

The Tech football schedule for this year will consist of 10 games, Coach McLane has indicated. Eight of the engagements, including games with Ole Miss, either at Oxford or Meridian, Centenary at Ruston, and the University of Tampa at Tampa, Fla., have been booked. Announcement of the schedule is being withheld, pending the definite arrangement of dates for two games, the coach said Saturday.

ODD QUEST SUCCEEDS

Paul Rose, a young German, arrived in Australia some months ago seeking the grave of his grandfather, Captain F. Osterman, who was skipper of the barque Magnat, wrecked 86 miles from Melbourne in 1900. The wreck is still there, and Rose took snapshots of it. He was about to quit Australia when a pioneer informed him that the body of Osterman was in the cemetery at Tarwino. The wreck was the second in which the captain had figured, and he wandered into the bush and was found dead.

FREE THROWS AT CLOSE OF BATTLE BEAT RAZORBACKS

Millers Take Advantage Of Foul Shots To Win Rough Cage Tilt

The rollicking Razorbacks from Arkansas, recently crowned Sugar Bowl champions, put up a whale of a battle at Brown gym last night but lost a 31-29 decision to the Brown Paper mill quintet in the wildest basketball battle seen here in several years.

It was a rough, tough struggle from the outset and kept a capacity crowd in an uproar for the full 40 minutes of the battle. The lead changed four times in the second half, which saw the Brownies come from behind to snatch victory out of the fire in the last two minutes of the game.

The Razorbacks' football tactics, which carried them to the Southwest conference championship last fall, proved costly in those final minutes of the battle. With the Porkers leading 28 to 25 and only two minutes to go, Arkansas committed four fouls and Brown made good each of the free throws. Sandwiched in between the charity tosses was a spectacular field goal by Cary Phillips, who raced down the court to take a long pass from Ed Shaver and then caged the goal under the basket with a Razorback hanging on his left arm. Just before the final whistle, Hamilton, big Arkansas center, made good a foul shot and the Porkers worked the ball down under their basket again, but the game ended before they could get another shot at the basket.

A review of the statistics reveals just how costly these fouls proved to the Razorbacks. Arkansas made 12 field goals to seven for Brown, but the Brownies caged 17 foul shots to win their two-point victory. The Porkers sank five free throws. Arkansas missed four foul shots and Brown missed five.

Elwin Gilliland and Don Lockard, a pair of fine forwards, led the Arkansas scoring. Each caged several spectacular shots from seemingly impossible angles with Gilliland particularly adept at caging field goals from awkward positions. Gilliland made 13 points and Lockard ten. Gene Demmary was Brown's leading scorer with 12 points, with Phillips next with eight. Theo Alford had six free throws and caged 'em all. Demmary also had six and didn't miss a one. The Brownies missed many attempts at field goals but the close guarding of the Arkansas club was largely responsible for that.

The game was four and a half minutes old before the first score was made. Lockard had a chance to score first for Arkansas but he missed a foul shot three and a half minutes after the battle started. A minute later Hamilton, playing the pivot under the Arkansas goal, tossed one backwards over his head and it settled through the hoop for the first tally. Demmary evened it up when he tipped one in in a scramble under the Brown goal and then Brown made it 6-2 with four foul shots. Gilliland, however, personally took charge at that point and sent Arkansas ahead again with three field goals in rapid succession. Brown was never able to catch up again in that first half and the Razorbacks enjoyed an 18-15 advantage at the rest period.

At the start of the second half, Demmary and Frank Bryski combined to make five points on Gene's field goal and three foul shots, while the Porkers were making one point on a free throw, thus sending the Brownies ahead, but Lockard made a field goal to give Arkansas the lead again. Then Alford came through with a pair of free throws and the Millers were in front again. However, Gilliland looped a field goal from the extreme corner of the court and added a foul shot that gave the Hogs a two-point advantage. Phillips came right back with one of his one-hand specialties and the count was knotted, but not for long. Gilliland again took command with a looping field goal. Bryski sank a free throw, making it 25 for Brown, but Lockard stretched Arkansas' lead to three points with a crip under the basket. With the score 28-25, Brodie fouled out of the game with four personals and Alford made good his free throw. Robbins fouled Demmary and Gene sank the charity toss. Phillips made his field goal with Hamilton hanging onto his arm, and

JENA CAGERS WIN TWO GAMES FROM GOOD PINE

JENA, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—The Jena High school Giants walloped the Good Pine Red Devils, 42-9, Wednesday night holding them scoreless the last half. The Red Devils had won thirteen out of fourteen games previous to this game and the two schools are intense rivals. Approximately 600 fans jammed the Jena Community Center gymnasium to witness the game.

Nelson Edwards, Giants' forward, led the scoring for the state champs with 13 points. Fred Lees, the only regular remaining of the 1936 champs, was runner-up with 9 points. Leo Peavy, Good Pine guard, scored three points for Good Pine. Playing like the Giants of the 1936 season, the Jena team led by a score of 25-9 at the half and kept up the barrage during the last half. Jones Bradford, Giants' guard, turned in one of the best performances ever witnessed here although he scored only four points. Bradford was an excellent floor man and his guarding broke up many scoring plays.

The Giants' victory was an upset but the real upset came when the Jena girls overwhelmed the strong Good Pine girls 38-22. Alice Corley led the scoring for the Lady Giants with nine field goals and two fouls for twenty points. Whatley led Good Pine's scoring with 6 field goals and 1 foul for thirteen points. Whatley, Corley, Allen, and Hood, of Jena, turned in good performances.

Braddock Already In Training For Schmeling Bout

By John J. Romano

Jim Braddock made one of his rare speeches when advised that the New York boxing commission had forced Max Baer to meet him in a 15-round contest with the world's heavyweight title at stake. Braddock was the object of much pity by those who envisioned what Baer's cracking fists would do to Jim's undernourished body and hardy jaw. To those who tried to comfort him Jim replied, "Don't take it so hard. I've got a plan to beat Baer. Watch me do it."

In training Braddock worked out with a rough and ready crew which was short on boxing but the nerry dickens in throwing right hands. Every workout resembled a Pier 6 brawl and Jim thrived on the hard work. Some of the smart ones sat back and figured Joe Gould had acted wisely in keeping the clever ones away from the lumbering Braddock. There may be something to this but later events proved that Braddock was something of a boxer when pitted against a looping right swinger like Max Baer.

Throughout his training Braddock insisted upon talking about his plan. He was ably abetted by Joe Gould and Francis Albertanti, the press representative, who while using a mere thousand words in rapid fire fashion refused to divulge an inkling of the plan.

Plan Disclosed In Ring

The fight and the plan was disclosed. Braddock used a sort of a lazy, sweeping left hook as a guard against Baer's right. He continued to pump a stiff left into Max's face and take a short step to his own right. Baer laughed in good fun during the early rounds. Braddock's blows had not jarred him to the extent that he did not think he could end the fight with one solid smash.

As the fight progressed and fans continued to urge Baer to snap out of his sloppy mannerisms, the Californian really tried to fight. Baer was brought up smartly with a ramrod left and a thudding right to the jaw. No matter how much Baer became infuriated, he could not make the longshoreman swerve one iota from the plan he and Gould had mapped out in training.

Braddock's victory was hailed as a miracle. How much this is true is beside the point. The strained look on Gould's face during the fight was not fear that Baer would put over a crusher. Joe, Albertanti, Doc Robb, Tex Sullivan and the physicians who attended Braddock for a torn rib 10 days before the fight knew about the injury and were fearful lest Baer attempt to punish the body instead of the head.

When Braddock came out point blank and agreed to a meeting with Joe Louis he was accused of attempting to sell his title for big money. When Schmeling got first crack at Louis the heavyweight champion liked the negro's chances and said so up to ring time. Walking into Louis and throwing right hands was Braddock's idea of whipping the Detroit sensation. He did not think Schmeling would take anyone's advice and knowing his plodding style did not think it would defeat Louis. Schmeling had the courage to stand up with Louis and beat him to the punch. What followed is a matter of ring history.

New Stance For Max

During the hullaballoo about a February battle with Louis the Jersey Irishman persisted in his belief that he had a plan to beat the Detroit Bomber. Since the New York boxing commission erased the February match and cleared the way for a meeting between Braddock and Schmeling in June, the champion has started active training.

Observing Braddock in his latest capers in the gym one is reminded of the poses Jim makes when photographed. He hunches over a bit and guards his jaw with raised left shoulder. He did not fight that way against John Henry Lewis, Art Lasky or Max Baer. Knowing his business, having seen Schmeling fight on a number of occasions, Braddock has apparently revised his style to cope with that of the German. He is using his studio pose in training. He looks as though he needs plenty of boxing. His left paws out lazily and his right hook is slow in delivery.

There is no doubt in the minds of those who have come to believe that Braddock has mapped out a different plan to fight Schmeling, and that raised shoulder is part of it. Slowness in getting over his blows from his new stance can only mean that he is experimenting at the time, and as he becomes accustomed to fighting out of a half crouch he will get more zing to his punches.

Braddock and his professed plans are not to be taken lightly. The Jerseyman has proven to be a smarter ringster than many give him credit for being and when one has the fortitude to keep fighting, can take a wallop and give the same in return, his announcement that he will be ready in September for Joe Louis should be taken with a certain degree of seriousness.

BROWN SHADES ARKANSAS IN THRILLER, 31-29

GEORGE V. LOFTON, SPORTS EDITOR

MONROE, LOUISIANA, SUNDAY, JANUARY 3, 1937

SPORTS CHATTER

By George V. Lofton

FOOTBALL FADEOUT

The football season came to an end before 200,000 fans in six big games Friday and, in some respects, the finish was just as goofy as the beginning.

Two favorites, L. S. U. and Marquette, were defeated, another favorite, Auburn, was held to a tie and Duquesne, which was expected to trim Mississippi State, escaped with a one-point victory. Pitt, which was the underdog when its selection was first announced, last week was picked by most of the alleged experts to beat Washington. The not-so-Huskies can testify as to just how well those Panthers turned the trick.

All of us, of course, thought L. S. U. would trim Santa Clara with touchdowns to spare. They were betting 4 to 1 in New Orleans that the Tigers would triumph and on even money laying, one could pick up 12 points if he chose to string along with the Broncos. Few seemed to take into consideration the psychological angle, which undoubtedly brought about the downfall of the Bengals.

The L. S. U. players and some members of the athletic staff were keenly disappointed when the Tigers were not invited to the Rose Bowl. The team suffered a let-down in morale. They were getting a trip to New Orleans instead of a holiday jaunt to Pasadena, with all the parties, movie tours and the other trimmings that go with a Rose Bowl bid. Bernie Moore was faced with the hopeless task of pulling the team out of the mental slump, and Santa Clara, with all the psychology in their favor, took full advantage of the situation.

Glen Rose, Arkansas basketball coach, told us yesterday that the Tigers were plenty sluggish.

"I scouted 'em three times last fall before we played at Shreveport," Rose said. "They showed me some real football on those three occasions. Friday they looked bad. L. S. U. simply didn't have its heart in it."

So much for the Sugar Bowl.

The Pasadena classic regained plenty of prestige when Pitt trimmed Washington. The criticism levelled at the Rose Bowl when the Panthers were nominated is an old story, of course. Now that's all forgotten. A record crowd turned out for the game and the team which they said was being led to slaughter came through with an overwhelming victory. Dame Fortune smiled all over the place Friday.

And while the Dame was smiling, the laugh was on Washington. The Huskies, never victorious in the Rose Bowl, thought they'd clinch a victory by inviting Pitt. At last reports, those responsible for the invitation were trying to hide in one of the many Panther tracks on Rose Bowl sod.

HOGS IN HIGH

Two-thirds of Arkansas' athletic brain trust spent yesterday in Monroe. Glen Rose, basketball coach and assistant football mentor, and Boyd Cypert, business manager of athletics at Arkansas, were here for the Brown-Arkansas basketball game last night. Fred Thomsen, football coach and athletic director, is the other member of the triumvirate which has piloted the Hogs to top honors in the Southwest conference.

It's been a hard pull for the Razorbacks and their present success is a tribute to the Thomsen-Rose-Cypert combination. The Hogs hold the football and basketball championships of the Southwest, and that's quite an accomplishment when you consider the fact that the league includes such teams as T. C. U., S. M. U., Rice, Texas A. and M., Baylor and Texas.

When Francis Schmidt left Arkansas some seven or eight years ago, Razorback supporters feared athletics would hit the skids at Fayetteville. Schmidt had piloted the Porkers to five consecutive basketball titles and his football teams usually were up around the top. When Arkansas teams suffered a couple of lean years after the close of the Schmidt regime, their fears seemed about to be realized.

Then in 1932 Rose, a former football and basketball star at the university, was brought in as assistant to Thomsen on the gridiron and head basketball mentor. Cypert, one of the greatest baseball and football luminaries in Arkansas history, was persuaded to leave a lucrative law practice in Little Rock to handle the business end of athletics. A campaign was started to induce Arkansas high school football stars, who had been journeying to Tulane, L. S. U., Alabama and Georgia Tech chiefly, to do their gridiron chores at the state university. This campaign proved successful and the Hogs began to perk up.

In 1933 Arkansas won the unofficial football championship of the Southwest conference; in 1935 the Razorbacks finished in a tie for the cage title and then in 1936 the Porkers copped both the football and basketball crowns. So it's easy to see why the Thomsen-Rose-Cypert brain trust is the toast of Arkansas now.

Incidentally, both Cypert and Rose regret that L. S. U. and Arkansas won't meet at Shreveport next fall.

"We left the date open as usual," Cy said yesterday, "and all of us were disappointed when L. S. U. announced that they had signed a three-year contract with Vanderbilt for that date. It's up to L. S. U. whether or not we meet in the future. Naturally, we must look out for our own interests and we have scheduled games with major teams for that date in 1938 and '39. I hope we may resume our pleasant relations with L. S. U. in the future, though."

What are the prospects for 1937?

"We lost two all-Southwest basketball players," Rose said, "but we

Parker Trims Grant For Sugar Bowl Tennis Crown

Frankie Parker

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Through a combination of great backhand stroking and the placing of baseline shopts, Frankie Parker of Lawrenceville, N. J., defeated Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, 7-5, 6-2, 7-5, today in the Sugar Bowl tennis tournament.

The youthful prep school star, ranked second on the national list for his fine performances in 1936, had little trouble triumphing over the little "Giant Killer" from Atlanta in a duel marked by sensasional volleying.

Grant, rated third among the nation's stars for the second straight year, opened up with a flash of bewildering shots that threatened to make a rout of the battle, played in intermittent showers and witnessed by more than 500 fans.

The 26-year-old Grant, member of the Davis Cup squad last year, dropped the first game of the opening set to Parker but won the next three. The count reached 5-4 in favor of Grant, but the Atlantan was caught with a series of baseline shots that saw Parker win three games in a row and the set.

It was Parker all the way in the second set. He won the first four games, dropping a cross-fire of shots at Grant steadily until the diminutive Georgia star appeared to tire. Grant unloosed some of his best play to take the fifth and sixth games, running to the net for several fine shots, but Parker took the next two.

The third set was the highlight of the battle waged for the Sugar Bowl championship won last year by Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla., who was beaten by Grant in the semi-finals.

Parker took a 4-2 lead in the third and deciding set. Grant rallied with a series of spectacular shots, coupled with a few erros by Parker, to run the count to 5-all. Parker won the 11th game on Grant's service and had the Atlantan 40-love on the 12th game service.

Grant won the next three points after long and safe volleying to make it deuce. Five times Parker had the match point before Grant smashed a return outside the sideline.

In the doubles, the Sutter brothers of New Orleans, Ed and Ernie, the latter National Intercollegiate champion, defeated John McDiarmid of Chicago and Hendrix, in a closely-fought battle that went five sets. The score was 1-6, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0.

BAUGH DENIES HE WILL JOIN OLE MISS STAFF

FORT WORTH, Tex., Jan. 2.—(AP)—"I haven't heard a thing about it."

Thus Sammy Baugh, great T. C. U. gridder who closed his career against Marquette Friday in Dallas, answered reports he was to be named backfield coach at the University of Mississippi.

The Atlanta Journal had reported it learned Saturday of Baugh's probable appointment at Ole Miss. Baugh was located in McKinney where he is visiting.

"I haven't even talked with anyone from Mississippi," Sam told the Star-Telegram in a long distance conversation. "This is the first time I've even heard it mentioned."

Sam hopes to start his coaching career as the T. C. U. backfield mentor next fall. Although there is absolutely nothing definite as yet, it's certain he will be strongly considered at the February meeting of the T. C. U. board. T. C. U. has three full-time coaches now.

TULLOS OILERS TO PLAY TECH AT URANIA MONDAY

JENA, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—The Tullos Oilers will play their second home game of the season Monday night when they meet the Louisiana Polytechnic institute Bulldogs in the Urania gym. The Oilers have beaten the Boglusa Gaylords and Hodge Paper mill in their only two games of the season. Nick Medica, former Jena High school and Tech star, and now coach of the Oilers, will be one of the outstanding attractions of the game.

James Nicholson, player for the Jena Giants in 1935, is a member of the Tech squad as is Henslee, former player for the Urania High Foresters. Nicholson is rated as one of the best floor men in basketball circles. His dribbling is an art developed by long and tedious practice before it could be perfected to the desired degree.

STAND PAT WINNER OF SANTA ANITA FEATURE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. .—(AP)—Stand Pat, E. F. Seagram's 6-year-old chestnut horse, staged a stretch drive today to win the $3,500 added Santa Margarita handicap, feature race at Santa Anita park.

Before 35,000 enthusiastic fans the Seagram horse paid $36.50 to win on a $2 pari-mutuel wager, $12.20 to place and $5.40 to show.

A. McDonnell's Party Spirit and A. G. Vanderbilt's Speed To Spare finished second and third. Party Spirit paid $5.80 and $3.80 and Speed To Spare $5.40.

GIANTS SCHEDULE 32 SPRING GAMES

New York And Cleveland To Play At Vicksburg And Jackson This Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Bill Terry's New York Giants will prepare for baseball's "tough guys" right from scratch.

The 1937 spring exhibition schedule, released today, shows that the champs will tangle with the "Cuban Armed Forces" in their first practice game of the year. "If we can lick them, why we oughta be a cinch to keep the flag."

Nothing was said as to a possible rebellion in the meantime although Brannick said the Giants weren't afraid of any army after its adventures with Brooklyn and the St. Louis Gashouse Gang.

Thirty-two games, nine of them at the training base at Havana, are on the Giant spring schedule. The Cleveland Indians will offer most of the opposition, playing the champions in 18 games throughout the south and winding up with a pair of contests at the Polo Grounds, New York, April 17 and 18.

On their exhibition tour, the Giants will play in 12 states and Cuba.

The schedule:

February 24—Cuban Armed Forces at Havana.

February 28 and 29—Habana and Almendares club at Havana.

March 4—Club of National league amateurs at Havana.

March 6—Habana and Almendares club at Havana.

March 7 and 11—Club of Social league amateurs at Havana.

March 13 and 14—St. Louis Cardinals at Havana.

March 16—Boston Bees at St. Petersburg, Fla.

March 17—Washington at Orlando, Fla.

March 18.—St. Louis Cardinals at Daytona Beach, Fla.

March 20 and 21—Cleveland at Gulfport, Miss.

March 27—Cleveland at Jackson, Miss.

March 28—Cleveland at Vicksburg, Miss.

April 3 and 4—Cleveland at New Orleans.

April 5—Cleveland at Baton Rouge, La.

April 6—Cleveland at Tyler, Tex.

April 7—Cleveland at Shawnee, Okla.

April 8—Cleveland at Fort Smith, Ark.

April 9—Cleveland at Helena, Ark.

April 10—Memphis at Memphis.

April 11—Nashville at Nashville.

April 12—Cleveland at Rome, Ga.

April 14—Cleveland at Thomaston, Ga.

April 15—Cleveland at Columbia, S. C.

April 16—Cleveland at Charlotte, N. C.

April 17 and 18—Cleveland at Polo Grounds, New York.

The Giants will spent 12 days at a training base in Gulfport, Miss., and probably will play a few games with their new farm hands from Jersey City, who will train in Gulfport.

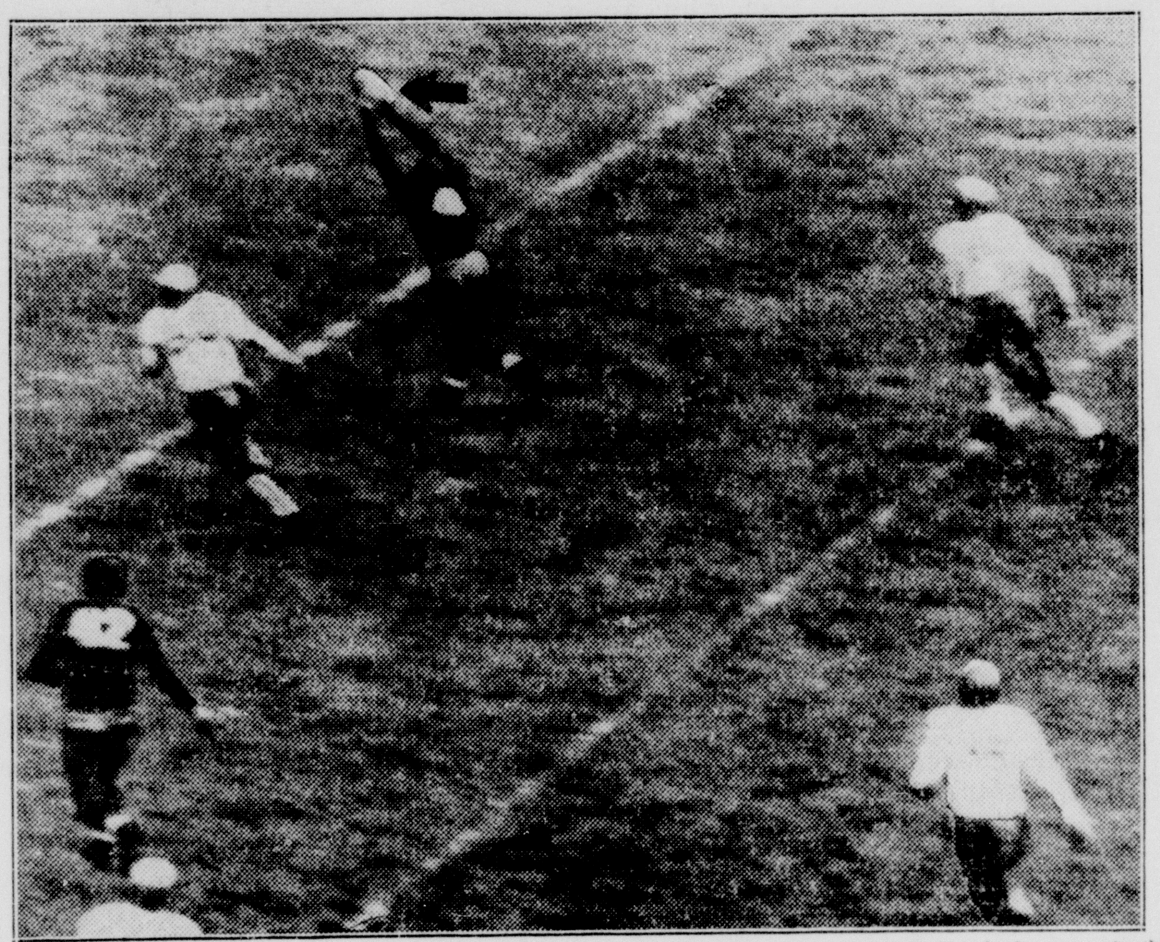
SANTA CLARA TRIUMPHS OVER L. S. U. 21 TO 14



Santa Clara's red-clad warriors defeated Louisiana State university 21 to 14 in their New Year's day game in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl. The Tigers made a great rally in the closing stages of the game but it came too late. Twin City Cage League Opens Schedule Tuesday

Competition in the recently organized Twin City Basketball league will begin Tuesday night at the gymnasium at Northeast Center of L. S. U. when the Central-Circle S five engages the Cudahy Packers and the Swartz Carbon Blackers meet the Baptists, Carroll Royce, league president, has announced.

Officials of the league, other than President Royce, are Bill Allen, vice-president, and Leo Hartman, secretary and treasurer. Paul J. Neal, organizer of the old City league, is a member of the board of directors of the new loop. Royce and Hartman are others on the executive committee.

Six teams comprise the circuit, and games will be played two nights each week. Two games will be played on each game night except one, when three matches will be played. The game nights of each week will vary, however, to avoid conflicts with other athletic activities in Monroe and West Monroe.

All games will be played at Northeast Center of L. S. U., and there will be no admission charge during the first round of playing which ends January 29. It is likely that the no-admission ruling will stand through the schedule until the championship playoff, President Royce said.

Monroe will have four teams, the Baptists, Cudahy Packers, Central-Circle S and Adler's Garagemen, in the league, West Monroe will have one and Swartz one. West Monroe has already acclaimed the Pan-Am Oilers as their team and will be backing them throughout. At Swartz the enthusiasm that predominated during Swartz's bid for the championship baseball team of the Ouachita Valley league last summer is expected to be reflected in their support of the Carbon Blackers as a cage team.

Although the permanent personnel of the various teams will not be determined until after two games have been played by each team, indications are that several of the teams will be strongly represented and competition is expected to be keen.

West Monroe's Pan-Am aggregation will have Frank Lawson, guard on last year's Brown Paper mill team, as captain and guard. Ed Lanier, another performer for the Brownies last season, will be at the other guard post, with Everett "Ikey" Harper and Broom, more former Brownies, as centers. The Downey brothers, forwards for the Hermitage, Ark., five last year, will play forwards for the Oilers.

"Peanut" Hudnall will lead Adler's Garage, backed by several Northeast Center of L. S. U. athletes who discarded the idea of entering a team of their own and joined the Garagemen. Among these college boys are Clifford Johnson, former Ouachita Parish High school star; Bob Johnson of Little Rock, Ark., Rawlins and Trichell, hold-overs from last season's independent Adler five, and Hendricks.

Central-Circle S also is boasting a strong team. This squad includes Parham, former Brown Paper mill player; DeWitt, a member of the Bogalusa team that won the S. A. A. U. title last year; Mike Brown, former Ouachita Parish High school star; Roland Brown, former L. S. U. athlete; Kyle, former Louisiana Tech center, and Webb and John Frantom.

Just who the Swartz Carbon Blackers will have is not definite, but the squad is expected to include Fontenot, the former high-scoring forward of Collinston High school; Lloyd Guy, a former Tulane performer, and Wolfe and Patterson, who were on the Swartz baseball club last season.

The Cudahy Packers and the Baptists haven't revealed much information concerning their teams, but they both promise to be in the fight for positions from start to finish. The Baptists, led by Raymond Masling, are composed of a group of local youngsters who have played basketball together for several years. Simeon Lieber heads the Packers.

The roster of officials who will work the various games includes George Gill, a professional baseball pitcher; Bob McNeely, Paul Neal, Alf Reid, Leo Hartman, Carroll Royce, Vernon "Lefty" Haynes, Percy Brown, Jim Malone and "Sonny" Maroney. The officials for Tuesdays games will be Gill and McNeely.

Other games during the week will be played Friday night when the Baptists tangle with the Pan-Am Oilers and the Packers tackle Adler.

A general league meeting, to see that everything is in readiness to swing into action, will be held tomorrow night in the city hall courtroom here, President Royce announced last night. Each team manager and captain is requested to be present at this last conference before the schedule opens.

SOLEM IS NAMED SYRACUSE COACH

Iowa Mentor Given Three-Year Contract To Succeed Vic Hanson

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Ossie Solem, for the past four years athletic director and head football coach at the University of Iowa, was named football coach at Syracuse university today to succeed Victor A. Hanson who resigned after a disastrous season.

Acting Chancellor William P. Graham said the selection of Solem was made by the university's administrative board on athletics on the recommendation of a special committee appointed to make a study of candidates.

University officials did not announce the terms under which Solem comes to Syracuse but it was generally believed he signed a three year contract for a salary of approximately $7,500 annually.

Graham at the same time said no appointment had been made "yet" of an athletic director to succeed Dr. Leslie A. Bryan who also resigned to return to his position on the business college faculty.

Solm is expected to take over his new position about February 1 and, as one of his first jobs, make a tour of the east visiting Syracuse alumni organizations.

Graham said that Solem, as head football coach, "will be in complete charge and will select his own assistants."

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

At Chicago: Notre Dame 30; Chicago 27.

At Philadelphia: St. Joseph's (Philadelphia) 29; Davis-Elkins 26.

At Washington: Nebraska 22; George Washington 41.

TECH BASKETBALL TEAM TO RESUME SCHEDULE MONDAY

Following Game At Tullos, Bulldogs Play Benefit Tilt Wednesday

RUSTON, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—To raise part of the funds needed for remodeling the men's gymnasium at Louisiana Tech, a benefit basketball game will be played here next Wednesday night between the varsity Techmen and the Tullos Oilers, Coach Eddie McLane has announced. The Tech basketeers also will play the Tullos cagers at Tullos on Monday night.

President E. S. Richardson of Louisiana Tech has granted permission to the athletic department to obtain funds for improvements in the gymnasium, Coach McLane said. In addition to money to be secured through the benefit basketball game, funds also will be solicited, it was said.

Work on the remodeling already has started. A stage at the east end of the basketball court has been removed and in its place has been built an exercise room equipped for boxing and wrestling.

Plans also have been announced for brick-veneering the men's gymnasium. Seats along the south side of the basketball floor will be elevated and a ladies' rest room will be installed, it has been announced. Hand ball courts are to be erected in the west end of the building.

Students as well as all other spectators attending the benefit game here next Wednesday night will be asked to pay the small admission price to help out the remodeling cause, Coach McLane stated.

It is expected that most of the interior improvements will have been completed by the time of the Tech-Centenary basketball game, scheduled for Monday night, January 18.

Following their two engagements with the Tullos Oilers the coming week, the Tech cagemen on Friday will leave for an extended road trip. The itinerary includes games with Louisiana college at Pineville, Friday; Southwestern Louisiana institute at Lafayette, Saturday night; Tulane university in New Orleans, Monday, and Loyola university in New Orleans, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Assistant Coach Herb Duggins will have charge of training the Tech basketball players, while Coach McLane devotes his attention to the improvements in the gymnasium, it has been announced.

While the basketball schedule, as well as the cards for boxing and baseball, has been completed, the lineup of football games for Tech's 1937 season remains indefinite. The gridiron schedule, Coach McLane announced Saturday, would probably be announced as a feature of the annual football banquet here. The date for the dinner has not been arranged, though the event will probably be held sometime in January, the coach said.

The Tech football schedule for this year will consist of 10 games, Coach McLane has indicated. Eight of the engagements, including games with Ole Miss, either at Oxford or Meridian, Centenary at Ruston, and the University of Tampa at Tampa, Fla., have been booked. Announcement of the schedule is being withheld, pending the definite arrangement of dates for two games, the coach said Saturday.

ODD QUEST SUCCEEDS

Paul Rose, a young German, arrived in Australia some months ago seeking the grave of his grandfather, Captain F. Osterman, who was skipper of the barque Magnat, wrecked 86 miles from Melbourne in 1900. The wreck is still there, and Rose took snapshots of it. He was about to quit Australia when a pioneer informed him that the body of Osterman was in the cemetery at Tarwino. The wreck was the second in which the captain had figured, and he wandered into the bush and was found dead.

FREE THROWS AT CLOSE OF BATTLE BEAT RAZORBACKS

Millers Take Advantage Of Foul Shots To Win Rough Cage Tilt

The rollicking Razorbacks from Arkansas, recently crowned Sugar Bowl champions, put up a whale of a battle at Brown gym last night but lost a 31-29 decision to the Brown Paper mill quintet in the wildest basketball battle seen here in several years.

It was a rough, tough struggle from the outset and kept a capacity crowd in an uproar for the full 40 minutes of the battle. The lead changed four times in the second half, which saw the Brownies come from behind to snatch victory out of the fire in the last two minutes of the game.

The Razorbacks' football tactics, which carried them to the Southwest conference championship last fall, proved costly in those final minutes of the battle. With the Porkers leading 28 to 25 and only two minutes to go, Arkansas committed four fouls and Brown made good each of the free throws. Sandwiched in between the charity tosses was a spectacular field goal by Cary Phillips, who raced down the court to take a long pass from Ed Shaver and then caged the goal under the basket with a Razorback hanging on his left arm. Just before the final whistle, Hamilton, big Arkansas center, made good a foul shot and the Porkers worked the ball down under their basket again, but the game ended before they could get another shot at the basket.

A review of the statistics reveals just how costly those fouls proved to the Razorbacks. Arkansas made 12 field goals to seven for Brown, but the Brownies caged 17 foul shots to win their two-point victory. The Porkers sank five free throws. Arkansas missed four foul shots and Brown missed five.

Elwin Gilliland and Don Lockard, a pair of fine forwards, led the Arkansas scoring. Each caged several spectacular shots from seemingly impossible angles with Gilliland particularly adept at caging field goals from awkward positions. Gilliland made 13 points and Lockard ten. Gene Demmary was Brown's leading scorer with 12 points, with Phillips next with eight. Theo Alford had six free throws and caged 'em all. Demmary also had six and didn't miss a one. The Brownies missed many attempts at field goals but the close guarding of the Arkansas club was largely responsible for that.

The game was four and a half minutes old before the first score was made. Lockard had a chance to score first for Arkansas but he missed a foul shot three and a half minutes after the battle started. A minute later Hamilton, playing the pivot under the Arkansas goal, tossed one backwards over his head and it settled through the hoop for the first tally. Demmary evened it up when he tipped one in in a scramble under the Brown goal and then Brown made it 6-2 with four foul shots. Gilliland, however, personally took charge at that point and sent Arkansas ahead again with three field goals in rapid succession. Brown was never able to catch up again in that first half and the Razorbacks enjoyed an 18-15 advantage at the rest period.

At the start of the second half, Demmary and Frank Bryski combined to make five points on Gene's field goal and three foul shots, while the Porkers were making one point on a free throw, thus sending the Brownies ahead, but Lockard made a field goal to give Arkansas the lead again. Then Alford came through with a pair of free throws and the Millers were in front again. However, Gilliland looped a field goal from the extreme corner of the court and added a foul shot that gave the Hogs a two-point advantage. Phillips came right back with one of his one-hand specialties and the count was knotted, but not for long. Gilliland again took command with a looping field goal. Bryski sank a free throw, making it 25 for Brown, but Lockard stretched Arkansas' lead to three points with a crip under the basket. With the score 28-25, Brodie fouled out of the game with four personals and Alford made good his free throw. Robbins fouled Demmary and Gene sank the charity toss. Phillips made his field goal with Hamilton hanging onto his arm, and

JENA, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—The Jena High school Giants walloped the Good Pine Red Devils, 42-9, Wednesday night holding them scoreless the last half. The Red Devils had won thirteen out of fourteen games previous to this game and the two schools are intense rivals. Approximately 600 fans jammed the Jena Community Center gymnasium to witness the game.

Nelson Edwards, Giants' forward, led the scoring for the state champs with 13 points. Fred Lees, the only regular remaining of the 1936 champs, was runner-up with 9 points. Leo Peavy, Good Pine guard, scored three points for Good Pine. Playing like the Giants of the 1936 season, the Jena team led by a score of 25-9 at the half and kept up the barrage during the last half. Jones Bradford, Giants' guard, turned in one of the best performances ever witnessed here although he scored only four points. Bradford was an excellent floor man and his guarding broke up many scoring plays.

The Giants' victory was an upset but the real upset came when the Jena girls overwhelmed the strong Good Pine girls 38-22. Alice Corley led the scoring for the Lady Giants with nine field goals and two fouls for twenty points. Whatley led Good Pine's scoring with 6 field goals and 1 foul for thirteen points. Whatley, Corley, Allen, and Hood, of Jena, turned in good performances.

Braddock Already In Training For Schmeling Bout

By John J. Romano

Jim Braddock made one of his rare speeches when advised that the New York boxing commission had forced Max Baer to meet him in a 15-round contest with the world's heavyweight title at stake. Braddock was the object of much pity by those who envisioned what Baer's cracking fists would do to Jim's undernourished body and hardy jaw. To those who tried to comfort him Jim replied, "Don't take it so hard. I've got a plan to beat Baer. Watch me do it."

In training Braddock worked out with a rough and ready crew which was short on boxing but the merry dickens in throwing right hands. Every workout resembled a Pier 6 brawl and Jim thrived on the hard work. Some of the smart ones sat back and figured Joe Gould had acted wisely in keeping the clever ones away from the lumbering Braddock. There may be something to this but later events proved that Braddock was something of a boxer when pitted against a looping right swinger like Max Baer.

Throughout his training Braddock insisted upon talking about his plan. He was ably abetted by Joe Gould and Francis Albertanti, the press representative, who while using a mere thousand words in rapid fire fashion refused to divulge an inkling of the plan.

Plan Disclosed In Ring

The fight and the plan was disclosed. Braddock used a sort of a lazy, sweeping left hook as a guard against Baer's right. He continued to pump a stiff left into Max's face and take a short step to his own right. Baer laughed in good fun during the early rounds. Braddock's blows had not jarred him to the extent that he did not think he could end the fight with one solid smash.

As the fight progressed and fans continued to urge Baer to snap out of his sloppy mannerisms, the Californian really tried to fight. Baer was brought up smartly with a ramrod left and a thudding right to the jaw. No matter how much Baer became infuriated, he could not make the longshoreman swerve one iota from the plan he and Gould had mapped out in training.

Braddock's victory was hailed as a miracle. How much this is true is beside the point. The strained look on Gould's face during the fight was not fear that Baer would put over a crusher. Joe, Albertanti, Doc Robb, Tex Sullivan and the physicians who attended Braddock for a torn rib 10 days before the fight knew about the injury and were fearful lest Baer attempt to punish the body instead of the head.

When Braddock came out point blank and agreed to a meeting with Joe Louis he was accused of attempting to sell his title for big money. When Schmeling got first crack at Louis the heavyweight champion liked the negro's chances and said so up to ring time. Walking into Louis and throwing right hands was Braddock's idea of whipping the Detroit sensation. He did not think Schmeling would take anyone's advice and knowing his plodding style did not think it would defeat Louis. Schmeling had the courage to stand up with Louis and beat him to the punch. What followed is a matter of ring history.

New Stance For Max

During the hullaballoo about a February battle with Louis the Jersey Irishman persisted in his belief that he had a plan to beat the Detroit Bomber. Since the New York boxing commission erased the February match and cleared the way for a meeting between Braddock and Schmeling in June, the champion has started active training.

Observing Braddock in his latest capers in the gym one is reminded of the poses Jim makes when photographed. He hunches over a bit and guards his jaw with raised left shoulder. He did not fight that way against John Henry Lewis, Art Lasky or Max Baer. Knowing his business, having seen Schmeling fight on a number of occasions, Braddock has apparently revised his style to cope with that of the German. He is using his studio pose in training. He looks as though he needs plenty of boxing. His left paws out lazily and his right hook is slow in delivery.

There is no doubt in the minds of those who have come to believe that Braddock has mapped out a different plan to fight Schmeling, and that raised shoulder is part of it. Slowness in getting over his blows from his new stance can only mean that he is experimenting at the time, and as he becomes accustomed to fighting out of a half crouch he will get more zing to his punches.

Braddock and his professed plans are not to be taken lightly. The Jerseyman has proven to be a smarter ringster than many give him credit for being and when one has the fortitude to keep fighting, can take a wallop and give the same in return, his announcement that he will be ready in September for Joe Louis should be taken with a certain degree of seriousness.

DOUBLE MAIN EVENT FOR TUESDAY MAT CARD

DAWKINS RETURNS TO MEET PODOLAK IN ALL-STAR SHOW

Jim Clinkstock Tangles With Giant McClary In Other Half Of Card

Launching another year of wrestling programs at Roosevelt stadium following two weeks in which the stadium doors were closed for the Christmas holidays, Promoter Phil Lisotta has booked for Tuesday night's renewal of the mat wars here a double main event program of unusual interest.

Tuesday night will be homecoming night for Scotty Dawkins, Monroe's contribution to the mat game. He is matched to grapple Walter Podolak, Polish strong man and world's champion weight lifter.

Dawkins alone would be enough of unusual attraction to pack the stadium to near capacity, but Promoter Lisotta has booked for the other bout of the program two behemoths who insure plenty of action. The mammoth grapplers are Pat McClary, 290-pound Californian, and big Jim Clinkstock, 250-pound Indian who for some years has held a formidable place in ranks of the world's best wrestlers.

Just which bout will be presented first had not been decided last night. Neither can alone be termed the main event, since both are headline attractions. Promoter Lisotta announced them as a double main event, and let the matter go at that for the moment.

Ellis Bashara, the Oklahoma bad man, who was severely punished by the giant McClary in a match here several weeks ago, asked for and was granted the job of referee for the Tuesday night bouts. Bashara gave no reasons for requesting the assignment. Whether or not he is taking advantage of an opportunity to vent his spleen against the giant Californian is a matter that remains to be seen.

Dawkins, popular with his many friends here, will be making his first appearance at the local stadium in about two years. The last time he appeared he was suffering a knee injury and was unable to give a good account of himself. At the present time, however, Dawkins' knee is as good as ever. He has gained 20 pounds in the past two years, and is stronger than ever. Dawkins now weighs 220 pounds.

Podolak, the Polish weight lifter, also weighs 220 pounds. He lacks the wrestling skill of Dawkins, but makes up in strength what he lacks in science.

The Monroe grappler, popularly known over the country as King of the Louisiana Canebrakes, will certainly have his hands full of man when he tackles Podolak, whose strength is little short of amazing.

Dawkins became interested in wrestling some years ago when matches were held in the natatorium pavilion which has since burned down. He was only a 135-pound kid when he started learning the holds and subduing other lads in wrestling matches. Nature didn't give him stature in proportion to his wrestling ambition, but he gradually built up his body until he became a heavyweight. He has won renown as a smart grappler with plenty of determination.

Both McClary and Clinkstock have been major attractions wherever they have appeared over the nation. Clinkstock is a battle-scarred veteran who has kept many grapplers from winning the championship, while closely missing it, himself, on several occasions.

The double main event program will begin at the usual starting time, 8:30 p.m. Promoter Lisotta announced that there would be no increase in admission prices.

then tossed in the foul shot. Goza fouled Alford and the former Baylor star caged the free toss to send the Brownies' score to 31. Demmary fouled Hamilton just 30 seconds before the game ended and then the final whistle ended the thriller with the Porkers still two points behind.

The floor game of Hamilton, Robbins and Brodie was outstanding for the Razorbacks, while Bryski and Shaver covered plenty of ground for Brown. Bryski played a particularly hard game and was in most of the tangles on the court.

Brodie went out with four personals, and Gilliland, Hamilton and Robbins each made three for the Razorbacks. Bryski made three personals.

PANTHERS ELATED AT BOWL VICTORY

Pitt Team Praised As Series Of Parties Begins; Return Trip Predicted

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Golden Panthers of Pittsburgh, conquerors of Washington in the Rose Bowl, looked over the calendar today and promised to come back next New Year's day.

As the praises of Pitt echoed from here to there, the Panthers relaxed and enjoyed their first real experience of smiling after a solid month of stony-faced determination. Even Coach John B. Sutherland showed signs of restrained hilarity.

Washington was keenly disappointed over the 21 to 0 licking Pitt handed out yesterday in the annual Tournament of Roses gridiron battle, but Jimmy Phelan's outfit is hardly the brooding type.

Today Pittsburgh players were guests of the Los Angeles Turf club at the Santa Anita races, and the Washington squad made a round of the Hollywood studios, an annual event for Rose Bowl teams.

Washington will leave for home tomorrow night, and Pitt, after taking in the movie lots Monday morning, is scheduled to start back east early that afternoon.

Tournament of Roses officials beamed happily over the final outcome of their twenty-second football attraction. The 1937 edition, born in a storm of dissent over the selection of Pitt and its thrice-beaten record in the bowl, moved from one stage to another and finally into a tremendous success.

It drew the biggest crowd in bowl history, 87,196, in a sell-out accomplished in one week; it was played under the most ideal weather conditions after an all-week rain storm subsided, and the game itself was a smashing, bruising battle despite the 21 to 0 outcome.

The boys who said Louisiana State university should have been invited to the bowl had nothing to say today. Santa Clara took care of that yesterday.

Pitt backers firmly believe their team will be better than ever next year, and stands an excellent chance of coming back to Pasadena's bowl.

VINES READY FOR TEST WITH PERRY

Elly Bemoans Fact He's Never Able To Visit That Home He Built

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, tall man in the international tennis act of Vines and Perry, was very low today.

He was starting out on the unhappy task of making around $30,000 this year, and he was grieved.

It's a long story, as Mr. Vines said, so he slumped in his seat and began:

"Four years ago Bill Tilden came to me and asked if I wanted to turn pro. He said I could make around $20,000 the first year.

"I had been married about a year then, and I'd never had a thousand dollars in my life. I wanted a house, and I figured if I could get $10,000 out of pro tennis, I'd be satisfied."

But even tennis stars have their worries, it seems, for the facts didn't follow the plan. Vines made the money for the house all right, and a lot more besides. So much more, in fact, that he seldom gets to see the house now.

And that's why Mr. Vines is low.

He is not saying just how much money he made that first year, but he does say:

"It was by far my best year, and I've made over $20,000 a year since the first one. But the original idea has certainly changed. I was away from home 10 months last year, and I've really spent only one summer home in the last 10 years."

At 25, he figures he's just coming into his best form. He may prefer living in California and playing with his two-year-old daughter Carol, but he's excited about his series against Fred Perry.

The tour starts Wednesday at Madison Square Garden, and Vines says, "If Perry beats me, he'll have to have one of his great nights."

Vines is an utterly forthright, completely frank competitor. He has analyzed pro tennis and his relation to it, and here's his reasoning:

"I have to beat Perry in this series if I want to stay in the big money. If he beats me, what happens? Next year Don Budge or somebody else will turn pro and there'll be a market for his services. If I beat Perry more than he beats me, the people will want to see me. If I don't, they'll want Perry."

Vines has no desire to make it look as if there's a feud between him and Perry. "We've had our battles, but everybody in tennis knows we're great friends."

The American will not, however, play singles against Perry in practice. They'll meet Wednesday for the first time in competition since 1931. They have met five times, all in 1931. Vines won four times, Perry once, but Vines admits that Perry now is a faster, incomparably better player.

Analyzing his chances of beating Perry, Vines says, "I think Fred reacts faster, and is faster on foot than any man in the game. I also think he has had better competition than I have had in the past year, but I've had greater experience indoors, and that may even it up."

MAYBE SANTA CLARA FANS HAVE REFORMED

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Santa Clara followers who read about their cohorts asking permission in New Orleans to tear down a goal post, chuckled today as they recalled some of the games in Kezar stadium, where the Broncos play their important home games.

Here Santa Clara fans didn't ask a squad of police if they could tear down the standards. They did it despite a lively tussle with the law.

In several games in 1936 police swung their clubs and fists freely to discourage goal post attackers, and it became a habit for the crowds to linger in the stands to watch the post-game brannigan.

It was hard to determine how many students were involved in the melees, as spectators joined in the rush for the standards.

At New Orleans the Santa Clara rooters offered to pay for a goal post, but Sugar Bowl officials told them to help themselves.

believe we have a pretty good team again this season. We haven't reached the peak of condition yet, as was indicated in the Sugar Bowl game when Tennessee overcame our 22-9 lead at the half and threw a big scare into us in the second half, but by the time the conference schedule opens, I think we'll be able to hold our own."

"And although we lost eight seniors from our 1936 football squad, we'll be in pretty good shape next fall," chimed in Cypert. "Robbins (that pass slingin' halfback) and Benton (an all-conference end) will be back, as well as several other men who were instrumental in bringing the championship to Arkansas last fall. We have some fair material coming up from the freshman team, and as things stack up now, the prospects are pretty good."

Coming from a couple of coaches, that's downright optimism. So those Texas teams can expect the worst from those Razorbacks again.

Team line-ups for Duquesne university and Mississippi State, opponents in the Orange Bowl gridiron game on New Year's day, revealed that the north-south post-season tilt was a true "War Between The States." There wasn't a Duquesne team member who hails from south of the Mason-Dixon line, but the "Rebel" forces had a pair of "converted" southerners in Chuck Gelatka and Frank Keenan, both ends, who come from Chicago.

Tony Manero, National Open champion and Miami Biltmore Country club pro, heads the field of winter golf stars who are competing in the annual $2,500 Miami Open, which began New Year's day.

Roller skating derbys, which last summer made their debut in Chicago and New York, are now attracting the attention of Miami's winter vacationing visitors.

When a dog bites a man it isn't news, but when a man bites a dog it is. So, when a hunter kills a deer it isn't news, but when a deer kills a hunter it's an "extra"! Walter Daminski, a Baldwin, Mich., hunter, recently shot a deer. When he leaned over the animal to examine his "kill", the deer kicked the trigger of the gun and Daminski was killed.

Ten-pin bowling in Florida during the winter season is a popular pastime, but it is all played outdoors.

It is said by horsemen that the heaviest single wagers on horse racing used to be placed with commissioners at Little Rock, Ark., where on one occasion a wager of $150,000 was made on a single horse.

"Father" Lumpkin, erstwhile "Ramblin' Wreck from Georgia Tech," and of late years heralded as one of pro football's greatest players, has played for years with a silver plate in the back of his head.

The first appearance in Florida of Donald Budge, California's gift to America's Davis Cup team, has been arranged by Col. Henry L. Doherty, president of the Florida Year-Round clubs and sponsor of the Miami Biltmore tennis championship. In this classic Budge will face the three most serious contenders for his No. 1 American ranking—Bryan M. Grant, Jr., of Atlanta, the 1935 winner; Frankie Parker, also making his Florida debut; and Bobby Riggs, national clay court champion. The odds are a thousand to one that Charley Harris of Palm Beach, last year's winner, will not repeat against such lofty opposition.

All-Americas occasionally fade in post-selection games, so all eyes were on Gaynell Tinsley of L. S. U. in the Sugar Bowl game and Mike Basrak of Duquesne in the Orange Bowl. Daniell of Pitt had the prestige to uphold in the Rose Bowl. A few years back, Glassgow of Iowa smashingly vindicated his all-America selection by mauling the west's stars in the East-West charity game.

Brown Plays Kansas City Wednesday In Home Opener

MILLERS TO MEET STRONG QUINTET IN A. A. U. BATTLE

Star-Studded Stage Lines Five Plays Two-Game Series At Brown Gym

Brown Paper mill's basketball team swings into its home schedule of Missouri Valley A. A. U. league games Wednesday night when the strong Kansas City Stage Lines squad comes here for a two-game series at Brown gym. Brown was to have opened its home league schedule last Wednesday night against the St. Louis Range Riders but the game was postponed.

STANDING

Teams	Won	Lost	Pct.
Bartlesville	1	0	1.000
Kansas City	1	0	1.000
Denver Safeways	1	0	1.000
Colorado Springs	0	0	.000
St. Louis	0	0	.000
Denver K. C. Life	0	1	.000
Brown Paper Mill	0	2	.000

The Brownies and Kansas City met on December 19, with the Stage Liners winning by one point after a thrilling battle. Brown has played two league games, losing to Bartlesville in the other encounter, and Kansas City has only the Brown game under its belt in league competition.

Manager Cary Phillips and the Brown squad are planning revenge aplenty against the Kansas City entry and fans who turn out for the A. A. U. tilt are assured lots of action. The Brownies, of course, are anxious to break into the win column, and they want to do it at the expense of the club that edged them out by a single point.

Kansas City is rated the second strongest team in the league in preseason dope. They're favored to fight it out with the powerful Bartlesville squad for the Missouri Valley title and the fact that Brown played the Stage Lines a close game sent the stock of the Paper Mill entry soaring.

Oustanding players on the Kansas City club are Herman Fischer, Pansy Ratzlaff, Jack Ozburn and Dick Ransom. Fischer is a five foot, 11 inch guard who weighs 170 pounds. He formerly starred with the famous Maryville Teachers college quintet. Ratzlaff will be remembered here as the former ace of the Hutchinson Renos. He's a forward who towers six feet and weighs 173 pounds. He played college basketball with the strong Pittsburgh Teachers quintet.

Ozburn was a sensation with the Denver Safeways last year and reports state that he's going even better this season. He's a forward, is six feet, one inch tall and weighs 175 pounds. He was a star with the Monmouth college squad of Illinois. Ransom is a six foot, five inch guard who tips the beam at 190 pounds. He attended Kansas university, and was rated one of the best cage prospects ever turned out by Phog Allen.

The Kansas City club also includes Kelly Boswell, former Kansas university forward who is six feet, two inches tall and weighs 190 pounds; Murray Brown, a guard who's six feet, two inches tall and weighs 195 pounds, from Rockhurst college, and R. E. "El" Weston, the former De Paul university star, who plays center and forward. Weston's height is six feet, four and a half inches tall and weighs 187 pounds.

The Brownies' starting lineup against the Stage Liners will include Phillips and Theo Alford at forwards, Gene Demmary at center, and Ed Shaver and Frank Bryski at guards.

DON M'NEILL WINS JUNIOR NET CROWN

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—(AP)—East and west split tennis championships today as Don McNeill of Oklahoma City and Kenyon college won the junior national crown.

McNeill, top seeded in his division and odds-on favorite since the start of the tournament a week ago, came through with an impressive straight-set win over Marvin Kantrowitz of New York, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Umstaedter had an even easier time. His scheduled final round opponent, Melvin Schwartzman of New York, was stricken ill and was forced to default, giving the Jerseyan the title without raising a racquet.

The tournament was the last among the juniors for McNeill, and was the first national title he has held. He is the eastern and western outdoor champion.

Charles T. Mattman of Forest Hills, L. I., and Peter Lauck of Montclair, N. J., won the junior doubles championship when they defeated Kantrowitz and Melvin Lapman of New York City, 5-7, 9-7, 6-2, 6-6.

Southern Grid Teams To Get Stiff Tests In 1937

Many Tough Intersectional Games On Schedule For Dixie Elevens

By Price Howard

ATLANTA, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Southern football will be tested thoroughly by practically every section of the country in 1937.

Most of the east's and southwest's outstanding elevens and a few in the midwest and far west are included among the south's 41 intersectional games, an Associated Press survey showed today. This is an increase of seven contests over 1936.

Southern teams will meet eastern opposition 30 times, including 24 trips into the east. They are booked for six games within the Southwest conference, four of them invasions of that section. Four engagements with midwestern opponents—three of them appearing in Dixie—and one trip to the Pacific coast complete the south's intersectional warfare.

Pittsburgh, Army (twice), Princeton, Pennsylvania, Fordham, Harvard, Colgate (twice), N. Y. U., Navy (three times), Syracuse, Penn State and Villanova are the most formidable eastern hurdles.

Chicago and Indiana in the Western conference, California of the Pacific Coast conference and S. M. U. Arkansas, Rice (twice), Texas and Texas A. and M. in the Southwest conference are other major foes.

The Southern conference made 12 changes in increasing its intersectional list from 14 to 19 games. The Southeastern conference, increasing its intersectional games from 17 to 18, made nine changes. All of the Southern's are with eastern elevens. The Southeastern scheduled nine with the east, six with the Southwest, two with the midwest and one with the far west.

Mississippi set the pace with four intersectional battles—Temple, Texas A. and M., St. Louis university and George Washington. Pop Warner's Temple Owls also will play Florida and V. M. I. The Maryland Old Liners are next with the three intersectionals—Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Penn State.

Duke's engagements with Pittsburgh and Colgate are outstanding. Other major games are Vanderbilt vs. Chicago and S. M. U., Georgia Tech vs. California, North Carolina vs Fordham and N. Y. U., Tulane vs Colgate, Auburn vs. Rice and Villanova, L. S. U. vs. Rice and Texas.

Both Kentucky and N. C. State will meet Manhattan and Boston college. Navy plays Virginia, Citadel and William and Mary. Army is booked by V. M. I. and Clemson.

Other intersectional games are:

Virginia vs. Princeton.

Mississippi State vs. Texas A. and M.

Davidson vs. Harvard.

South Carolina and Miami (Fla.) vs Catholic.

Alabama vs. George Washington.

Centre vs. Indiana.

Miami vs. Drake.

Richmond vs. Boston U.

Miami (Fla.) vs. Bucknell.

MANGRUM LEADS IN MIAMI GOLF

Dayton Pro Cards Sub-Par 67, To Top Manero By Three Strokes

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Ray Mangrum, 26-year-old Dayton, O., golfer, carded a 67, three under par, to dislodge Tony Manero, National Open champion, from the lead at the halfway mark of the Miami Open tournament today.

Mangrum, winner of two tournaments in 1936 and runner-up in four others, shot five birdies on the second round 18 to bring his total for 36 holes to 136.

Short on his chip shots and off on his putting Manero took a 74, nine strokes more than he used yesterday, for 139 and second place.

The remaining 36 holes over the Miami Springs course will be played tomorrow. Several players are in line to advance to the front if Mangrum and Manero are not shooting in top form during the last half of the $2,500 affair.

Last year's winner, Willie Klein of Miami Beach, appeared definitely out of the running today after shooting a 76 to make his total score 149. He has been ill with influenza recently.

Frank Walsh of Chicago carded a 71 for 141 and third place.

The leading amateur was Leon Pettigrew of Pendleton, Ind., with 142.

The field was cut to 76 today, 60 pros and 16 amateurs, with 150 as the qualifying score, lowest in the history of the 13-year-old tournament.

Approximately 30,537 full-blood Indians live in Oklahoma, according to a recent census.

DOUBLE MAIN EVENT FOR TUESDAY MAT CARD

Jim Clinkstock Tangles With Giant McClary In Other Half Of Card

Launching another year of wrestling programs at Roosevelt stadium following two weeks in which the stadium doors were closed for the Christmas holidays, Promoter Phil Lisotta has booked for Tuesday night's renewal of the mat wars here a double main event program of unusual interest.

Tuesday night will be homecoming night for Scotty Dawkins, Monroe's contribution to the mat game. He is matched to grapple Walter Podolak, Polish strong man and world's champion weight lifter.

Dawkins alone would be enough of unusual attraction to pack the stadium to near capacity, but Promoter Lisotta has booked for the other bout of the program two behemoths who insure plenty of action. The mammoth grapplers are Pat McClary, 290-pound Californian, and big Jim Clinkstock, 250-pound Indian who for some years has held a formidable place in ranks of the world's best wrestlers.

Just which bout will be presented first had not been decided last night. Neither can alone be termed the main event, since both are headline attractions. Promoter Lisotta announced them as a double main event, and let the matter go at that for the moment.

Ellis Bashara, the Oklahoma bad man, who was severely punished by the giant McClary in a match here several weeks ago, asked for and was granted the job of referee for the Tuesday night bouts. Bashara gave no reasons for requesting the assignment. Whether or not he is taking advantage of an opportunity to vent his spleen against the giant Californian is a matter that remains to be seen.

Dawkins, popular with his many friends here, will be making his first appearance at the local stadium in about two years. The last time he appeared he was suffering a knee injury and was unable to give a good account of himself. At the present time, however, Dawkins' knee is as good as ever. He has gained 20 pounds in the past two years, and is stronger than ever. Dawkins now weighs 220 pounds.

Podolak, the Polish weight lifter, also weighs 220 pounds. He lacks the wrestling skill of Dawkins, but makes up in strength what he lacks in science.

The Monroe grappler, popularly known over the country as King of the Louisiana Canebrakes, will certainly have his hands full of man when he tackles Podolak, whose strength is little short of amazing.

Dawkins became interested in wrestling some years ago when matches were held in the natatorium pavilion which has since burned down. He was only a 135-pound kid when he started learning the holds and subduing other lads in wrestling matches. Nature didn't give him stature in proportion to his wrestling ambition, but he gradually built up his body until he became a heavyweight. He has won renown as a smart grappler with plenty of determination.

Both McClary and Clinkstock have been major attractions wherever they have appeared over the nation. Clinkstock is a battle-scarred veteran who has kept many grapplers from winning the championship, while closely missing it, himself, on several occasions.

The double main event program will begin at the usual starting time, 8:30 p.m. Promoter Lisotta announced that there would be no increase in admission prices.

then tossed in the foul shot. Goza fouled Alford and the former Baylor star caged the free toss to send the Brownies' score to 31. Demmary fouled Hamilton just 30 seconds before the game ended and then the final whistle ended the thriller with the Porkers still two points behind.

The floor game of Hamilton, Robbins and Brodie was outstanding for the Razorbacks, while Bryski and Shaver covered plenty of ground for Brown. Bryski played a particularly hard game and was in most of the tangles on the court.

Brodie went out with four personals, and Gilliland, Hamilton and Robbins each made three for the Razorbacks. Bryski made three personals.

PANTHERS ELATED AT BOWL VICTORY

Pitt Team Praised As Series Of Parties Begins; Return Trip Predicted

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Golden Panthers of Pittsburgh, conquerors of Washington in the Rose Bowl, looked over the calendar today and promised to come back next New Year's day.

As the praises of Pitt echoed from here to there, the Panthers relaxed and enjoyed their first real experience of smiling after a solid month of stony-faced determination. Even Coach John B. Sutherland showed signs of restrained hilarity.

Washington was keenly disappointed over the 21 to 0 licking Pitt handed out yesterday in the annual Tournament of Roses gridiron battle, but Jimmy Phelan's outfit is hardly the brooding type.

Today Pittsburgh players were guests of the Los Angeles Turf club at the Santa Anita races, and the Washington squad made a round of the Hollywood studios, an annual event for Rose Bowl teams.

Washington will leave for home tomorrow night, and Pitt, after taking in the movie lots Monday morning, is scheduled to start back east early that afternoon.

Tournament of Roses officials beamed happily over the final outcome of their twenty-second football attraction. The 1937 edition, born in a storm of dissent over the selection of Pitt and its thrice-beaten record in the bowl, moved from one stage to another and finally into a tremendous success.

It drew the biggest crowd in bowl history, 87,196, in a sell-out accomplished in one week; it was played under the most ideal weather conditions after an all-week rain storm subsided, and the game itself was a smashing, bruising battle despite the 21 to 0 outcome.

The boys who said Louisiana State university should have been invited to the bowl had nothing to say today. Santa Clara took care of that yesterday.

Pitt backers firmly believe their team will be better than ever next year, and stands an excellent chance of coming back to Pasadena's bowl.

VINES READY FOR TEST WITH PERRY

Elly Bemoans Fact He's Never Able To Visit That Home He Built

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, tall man in the international tennis act of Vines and Perry, was very low today.

He was starting out on the unhappy task of making around $30,000 this year, and he was grieved.

It's a long story, as Mr. Vines said, so he slumped in his seat and began: "Four years ago Bill Tilden came to me and asked if I wanted to turn pro. He said I could make around $20,000 the first year.

"I had been married about a year then, and I'd never had a thousand dollars in my life. I wanted a house, and I figured if I could get $10,000 out of pro tennis, I'd be satisfied."

But even tennis stars have their worries, it seems, for the facts didn't follow the plan. Vines made the money for the house all right, and a lot more besides. So much more, in fact, that he seldom gets to see the house now.

And that's why Mr. Vines is low.

He is not saying just how much money he made that first year, but he does say:

"It was by far my best year, and I've made over $20,000 a year since the first one. But the original idea has certainly changed. I was away from home 10 months last year, and I've really spent only one summer home in the last 10 years."

At 25, he figures he's just coming into his best form. He may prefer living in California and playing with his two-year-old daughter Carol, but he's excited about his series against Fred Perry.

The tour starts Wednesday at Madison Square Garden, and Vines says, "If Perry beats me, he'll have to have one of his great nights."

Vines is an utterly forthright, completely frank competitor. He has analyzed pro tennis and his relation to it, and here's his reasoning:

"I have to beat Perry in this series if I want to stay in the big money. If he beats me, what happens? Next year Don Budge or somebody else will turn pro and there'll be a market for his services. If I beat Perry more than he beats me, the people will want to see me. If I don't, they'll want Perry."

Vines has no desire to make it look as if there's a feud between him and Perry. "We've had our battles, but everybody in tennis knows we're great friends."

The American will not, however, play singles against Perry in practice. They'll meet Wednesday for the first time in competition since 1931. They have met five times, all in 1931. Vines won four times, Perry once, but Vines admits that Perry now is a faster, incomparably better player.

Analyzing his chances of beating Perry, Vines says, "I think Fred reacts faster, and is faster on foot than any man in the game. I also think he has had better competition than I have had in the past year, but I've had greater experience indoors, and that may even it up."

MILLERS TO MEET STRONG QUINTET IN A. A. U. BATTLE

Star-Studded Stage Lines Five Plays Two-Game Series At Brown Gym

Brown Paper mill's basketball team swings into its home schedule of Missouri Valley A. A. U. league games Wednesday night when the strong Kansas City Stage Lines squad comes here for a two-game series at Brown gym. Brown was to have opened its home league schedule last Wednesday night against the St. Louis Range Riders but the game was postponed.

Denver K. C. Life	0	1	.000
Brown Paper Mill	0	2	.000

The Brownies and Kansas City met on December 19, with the Stage Liners winning by one point after a thrilling battle. Brown has played two league games, losing to Bartlesville in the other encounter, and Kansas City has only the Brown game under its belt in league competition.

Manager Cary Phillips and the Brown squad are planning revenge aplenty against the Kansas City entry and fans who turn out for the A. A. U. tilt are assured lots of action. The Brownies, of course, are anxious to break into the win column and they want to do it at the expense of the club that edged them out by a single point.

Kansas City is rated the second strongest team in the league in preseason dope. They're favored to fight it out with the powerful Bartlesville squad for the Missouri Valley title and the fact that Brown played the Stage Lines a close game sent the stock of the Paper Mill entry soaring.

Oustanding players on the Kansas City club are Herman Fischer, Pansy Ratzlaff, Jack Ozburn and Dick Ransom. Fischer is a five foot, 11 inch guard who weighs 170 pounds. He formerly starred with the famous Maryville Teachers college quintet. Ratzlaff will be remembered here as the former ace of the Hutchinson Renos. He's a forward who towers six feet and weighs 173 pounds. He played college basketball with the strong Pittsburgh Teachers quintet.

Ozburn was a sensation with the Denver Safeways last year and reports state that he's going even better this season. He's a forward, is six feet, one inch tall and weighs 175 pounds. He was a star with the Monmouth college squad of Illinois. Ransom is a six foot, five inch guard who tips the beam at 190 pounds. He attended Kansas university, and was rated one of the best cage prospects ever turned out by Phog Allen.

The Kansas City club also includes Kelly Boswell, former Kansas university forward who is six feet, two inches tall and weighs 190 pounds; Murray Brown, a guard who's six feet, two inches tall and weighs 195 pounds, from Rockhurst college, and R. E. "El" Weston, the former De Paul university star, who plays center and forward. Weston's height is six feet, four and a half inches tall and weighs 187 pounds.

The Brownies' starting lineup against the Stage Liners will include Phillips and Theo Alford at forwards, Gene Demmary at center, and Ed Shaver and Frank Bryski at guards.

DON M'NEILL WINS JUNIOR NET CROWN

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—East and west split tennis championships today as Don McNeill of Oklahoma City and Kenyon college won the junior national crown.

McNeill, top seeded in his division and odds-on favorite since the start of the tournament a week ago, came through with an impressive straight-set win over Marvin Kantrowitz of New York, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Umstaedter had an even easier time. His scheduled final round opponent, Melvin Schwartzman of New York, was stricken ill and was forced to default, giving the Jerseyan the title without raising a racquet.

The tournament was the last among the juniors for McNeill, and was the first national title he has held. He is the eastern and western outdoor champion.

Charles T. Mattman of Forest Hills, L. I., and Peter Lauck of Montclair, N. J., won the junior doubles championship when they defeated Kantrowitz and Melvin Lapman of New York City, 5-7, 9-7, 6-2, 6-0.

Southern Grid Teams To Get Stiff Tests In 1937

Many Tough Intersectional Games On Schedule For Dixie Elevens

By Price Howard

ATLANTA, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Southern football will be tested thoroughly by practically every section of the country in 1937.

Most of the east's and southwest's outstanding elevens and a few in the midwest and far west are included among the south's 41 intersectional games, an Associated Press survey showed today. This is an increase of seven contests over 1936.

Southern teams will meet eastern opposition 30 times, including 24 trips into the east. They are booked for six games within the Southwest conference, four of them invasions of that section. Four engagements with midwestern opponents—three of them appearing in Dixie—and one trip to the Pacific coast complete the south's intersectional warfare.

Pittsburgh, Army (twice), Princeton, Pennsylvania, Fordham, Harvard, Colgate (twice), N. Y. U., Navy (three times), Syracuse, Penn State and Villanova are the most formidable eastern hurdles.

Chicago and Indiana in the Western conference, California of the Pacific Coast conference and S. M. U., Arkansas, Rice (twice), Texas and Texas A. and M. in the Southwest conference are other major foes.

The Southern conference made 12 changes in increasing its intersectional list from 14 to 19 games. The Southeastern conference, increasing its intersectional games from 17 to 18, made nine changes. All of the Southern's are with eastern elevens. The Southeastern scheduled nine with the east, six with the Southwest, two with the midwest and one with the far west.

Mississippi set the pace with four intersectional battles—Temple, Texas A. and M., St. Louis university and George Washington. Pop Warner's Temple Owls also will play Florida and V. M. I. The Maryland Old Liners are next with the three intersectionals—Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Penn State.

Duke's engagements with Pittsburgh and Colgate are outstanding. Other major games are Vanderbilt vs. Chicago and S. M. U., Georgia Tech vs. California, North Carolina vs. Fordham and N. Y. U., Tulane vs. Colgate, Auburn vs. Rice and Villanova, L. S. U. vs. Rice and Texas.

Both Kentucky and N. C. State will meet Manhattan and Boston college. Navy plays Virginia, Citadel and William and Mary. Army is booked by V. M. I. and Clemson.

Other intersectional games are:

Virginia vs. Princeton.

Mississippi State vs. Texas A. and M.

Davidson vs. Harvard.

South Carolina and Miami (Fla.) vs. Catholic.

Alabama vs. George Washington.

Centre vs. Indiana.

Miami vs. Drake.

Richmond vs. Boston U.

Miami (Fla.) vs. Bucknell.

MANGRUM LEADS IN MIAMI GOLF

Dayton Pro Cards Sub-Par 67 To Top Manero By Three Strokes

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 2.—(AP)—Ray Mangrum, 26-year-old Dayton, O., golfer, carded a 67, three under par, to dislodge Tony Manero, National Open champion, from the lead at the halfway mark of the Miami Open tournament today.

Mangrum, winner of two tournaments in 1936 and runner-up in four others, shot five birdies on the second round 18 to bring his total for 36 holes to 136.

Short on his chip shots and off on his putting, Manero took a 74, nine strokes more than he used yesterday, for 139 and second place.

The remaining 36 holes over the Miami Springs course will be played tomorrow. Several players are in line to advance to the front if Mangrum and Manero are not shooting in top form during the last half of the $2,500 affair.

Last year's winner, Willie Klein of Miami Beach, appeared definitely out of the running today after shooting a 76 to make his total score 149. He has been ill with influenza recently.

Frank Walsh of Chicago carded a 71 for 141 and third place.

The leading amateur was Leon Pettigrew of Pendleton, Ind., with 142.

The field was cut to 76 today, 60 pros and 16 amateurs, with 150 as the qualifying score, lowest in the history of the 13-year-old tournament.

Approximately 36,307 full-blood Indians live in Oklahoma, according to a recent census.

MELLON OFFERS ART COLLECTION

Proposes To Give Articles Valued At $19,000,000 To Government

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The White House said tonight that Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury in the Hoover administration, had offered his $19,000,000 art collection to the government and that President Roosevelt would recommend that congress accept it.

Correspondence between the president and the Pittsburgh multi-millionaire disclosed that Mellon also had offered to build at his own expense an $8,000,000 or $9,000,000 "national gallery of art" here to house his famous collection and other art treasures.

Detailed terms of the offer were handed personally by Mellon to President Roosevelt New Year's eve. The chief executive in a letter previously had termed the offer a "wonderful" one.

Mellon and administration officials have been sharply at odds in the past over the proposed gift and other matters. In a suit which the United States board of tax appeals now has under advisement, the government has sought to collect $3,075,103 from the former treasury chief as back taxes and penalties.

During the tax litigation counsel for Mellon contended he should have been permitted some deduction in income payments for the $3,241,250 he paid in 1931 for five pictures bought from the famous Hermitage collection in Petrograd for the proposed gallery.

Mellon first suggested the proposed gift to the president in a long letter December 22. Replying four days later, the president said he was "not only completely taken by surprise but was delighted by your very wonderful offer to the people of the United States."

Mellon was asked to call to discuss the formal announcement and terms of the offer. In a letter he later handed Mr. Roosevelt, he enumerated nine conditions, to which the president responded under yesterday's date:

"The outline of the terms and conditions under which the proposed 'national gallery of art' is to be erected and maintained is admirably set forth in the letter you handed to me at our conference yesterday.

"In accordance with our understanding, I am referring the correspondence to the attorney general and the appropriate representatives of the Smithsonian institution.

"They will be able, I am sure, to work out, in conference with you, the details of this fine project and prepare the necessary papers, including a draft of enabling legislation.

"I shall be happy to submit the matter, with a favorable recommendation, to the congress at the first opportunity."

New Educational Program Now Under Way At L. T. I.

By John A. Jones

The present educational program at the Louisiana Training Institute was begun immediately after the selection of a new board of commissioners in July, 1936. This board, consisting of the late Senator B. F. Barnette, president, Arthur S. Tidwell, Jr., vice-president, and J. Lloyd Warren, secretary-treasurer, elected Dr. Harvey Dillon, superintendent. Dr. Dillon and the board then began a thorough study of the institution—its boys, its staff of employes, its physical plant, its educational program, and all other matters pertaining to it. They also visited other training schools and attended conferences of juvenile agencies. As a result of these studies the superintendent and the board decided that the institution could best serve the purpose for which it was intended, that of developing unfortunate boys into normal members of society, by setting up an entirely new educational program.

The board asked the state department of education to cooperate in formulating a program, and it readily did so. Superintendent Harris appointed a committee consisting of J. W. Brouillette, assistant state supervisor of elementary schools, S. M. Jackson, state supervisor of vocational agriculture, and John E. Coxe, state high school supervisor. This committee visited the institution, made a study of the various factors that would have to be considered in formulating an educational program for it, then prepared an outline for a suggested course of study. The preparation of this outline required several weeks of intensive study and work.

The educational program set forth in the outline is based on the idea that the purpose of the institution is to regenerate the boys mentally, morally, and socially, and to establish in them confidence in themselves as normal members of society. It makes a radical departure from the courses of study commonly found in the public schools of the country in at least three different ways.

1. It provides for the division of the pupils into groups on the basis of age and social adjustment rather than grades.

2. It provides for the organization of the school around three main fields of interest: vocational, recreational, and academic, the academic work being based largely on the other two.

3. It provides for a director for each phase of the work and an instructor for each group of pupils, the instructor accompanying and supervising his group in all of its educational activities, which have been planned by the directors. (This arrangement enables the instructors to better correlate and integrate the work in the various fields.)

The present organization and administration of the school follows in a general way the suggested plan. However, it has been necessary to make a number of modifications. For example, instead of having three fields of interest we have four: vocational, music, academic, and health and physical education. Music was made a separate field because of the great amount of interest which the boys showed in it. Also, the program calls for a formal school day of approximately six hours, during which time all the boys were to attend. This had to be changed because the boys do all the work of the institution. Half of the boys attend school in the morning and half in the afternoon. At present each boy is in school three hours and 50 minutes each day. In addition to this time all the boys have approximately two hours each evening for study, recreational reading and other forms of recreation. Some military drill is given to each boy.

Progress in the inauguration of the program has been slow because of a lack of equipment and the difficulty experienced in getting suitable teachers for the various positions. However, much has been done. The faculty has been completed, much of the equipment obtained, and the school is now operating full time. A brief survey of the work in the various fields will show what has been done and what is expected to be done.

Thirty-five instruments have been purchased for the band, and at present 70 boys are receiving instruction. This provides for two complete bands. The boys are taught in groups, each group receiving 40 minutes' instruction daily, the boys being taken from the various work crews rather than from the school. Each group of boys receives 20 minutes' instruction daily in group singing, and many others are receiving special instruction in quartet, chorus, and glee club work. This provides a very rich program in music, and the corrective results are very evident.

Much importance is attached to the vocational program because records of the institution show that a very large percentage of the boys are sent to it for petty thievery. Much of this would not have occurred had the boys had money with which to purchase the articles which they stole. Ability to earn money should correct much of this trouble, and the vocational program is designed to give them this ability. Present plans provide for training in forge work, cabinet work, carpentry, painting, masonry, automobile mechanics, elementary electricity, upholstering, tanning and leather work, field crops, poultry husbandry, animal husbandry, and horticulture. Much of this work will be done in connection with the regular program of work of the institution. Theory will be combined with practical application. Housing facilities for the shop work have been provided, and machinery and equipment are being installed daily. Delta equipment for cabinet work, consisting of a drill, a band saw, a table saw, a jointer and a lathe are already being used. Six forges and some of the equipment for leather work are about ready for use. Other equipment has been purchased and more will be as the program expands.

The program in health and physical education is similar to that recommended by the state department of education for the public schools of the state. Seasonal games and sports are employed, engaging every boy in the institution in some form of recreational activity. Inter-school competition is part of the program, and it is carried on in the same manner as in the public schools. Adequate time is devoted to health habits, first aid, safety education, and other matters pertaining to health. Regular physical examination, although a part of the institutional routine, is to be utilized, and an extensive corrective program employed. Plans for a modern, fully equipped gymnasium including a swimming pool have already been completed and construction is to start immediately. The program will be greatly enriched by these additions, and it will doubtless remove or alleviate many temperamental and physical maladjustments.

The academic program to the present has dealt largely with the development of skills in the fundamentals of reading, writing, and arithmetic. It has been difficult to correlate this work with the recreational and the vocational because they have not been sufficiently developed. However, enough has been done to reveal much of value in such a plan, and as time passes the major portion of the academic work can and will be built around the other phases of the educational program. Some time will, of course, have to be devoted to drill in the development of skills in the tool subjects. In order that the faculty might have a better understanding of the abilities and achievements of each boy in those subjects the Otis group intelligence test and the Metropolitan achievement tests in reading, language, and arithmetic were given to all the boys at the beginning of the school year. (The same tests are to be given to each boy when he enters the institution.) The I. Q. range was from 25 to about 125, with an average of about 80. The age-grade distribution was very abnormal. Boys of nearly all ages were found in each of the lower grades. For example, the third grade contained boys ranging in ages from nine to twenty years. This great difference in ages by grades accounts for the groupings being made largely on the basis of age and social adjustment. The groupings are very flexible, and a boy is changed from one group to another when it becomes evident that it is to his advantage to do so. An effort is made to give each boy work that fits his ability. High school work is given those who are entitled to do it. Twelve boys are now taking high school mathematics and English, in addition to their vocational work, physical education, and music.

A definite system of records has not been completed, but present plans call for a wide departure from the usual system in the public schools. A record of achievements and social adjustments—or lack of them—will be kept. For example, when a boy can play some musical instrument, make a certain kind of cabinet, do simple welding, do long division, sing creditably well, or do anything of a similar nature, a statement to that effort will be written into his record. Living up to some responsibility in a creditable way—or failure to do so—will be rewarded. Much importance is attached to any information about any boy which will better enable the faculty and other employes to direct him in his personal growth. The ultimate goal in the matter of records is a rather complete history of each boy before, during and following his term in the institution. The authorities of the institution feel that a case history should be brought with each boy when he is committed, that the length of time which a boy stays in the institution should be left to their judgment, and that an adequate system of probation and parole should be organized and put into operation. Such a plan is essential to a successful training program.

In conclusion, the educational program for the institution is designed to be a program of living as well as a preparation for life. It permeates the entire institution. It contemplates appropriate clothing for different occasions, a change in the dining room service which will be more conducive to healthful eating and good manners, proper attention to the religious phase of the boys' lives, and contact with life outside the institution by means of newspapers and magazines, the radio, and trips of various kinds in connection with the educational program. Such a program presents many new and difficult problems, and the authorities of the institution will welcome constructive criticism and cooperation from anyone who has an interest in boys that are in need of guidance. They greatly appreciate the fine cooperation which they have received from the officials and citizens of the city of Monroe and Ouachita parish, and the entire state.

MARINE OFFICER KILLS MOTHER, 80

Ends Own Life After Plunging Knife Into Aged Woman's Body

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—A 46-year-old marine corps officer and his 80-year-old mother were found stabbed to death today in the aged woman's uptown apartment.

Police said Major Peter C. Geyer, Jr., killed with a bread knife the mother friends said he "idolized" and then plunged the blade into his own stomach.

Mrs. Mary Gellin, a friend of Mrs. Geyer, and Lionell Mapp, elevator operators, found the bodies this afternoon when Mapp entered the apartment after Mrs. Gellin failed to get a response to the doorbell.

The tall, athletic marine officer lay partly dressed on the living room floor, the bread knife embedded in his stomach. His mother, dressed in a nightgown, was on a bed. She had been stabbed in the abdomen.

Police reported finding an unsigned note in the apartment which they said apparently was written by Geyer, It said:

"To whom it may concern; in case anything happens to me, I want no church service—no undertaker. I want a cheap coffin, and I want no flowers, no undue carriages or automobiles. I want to be buried in a nearby cemetery. I will be looking down upon you and see the land of the living and watch what you are doing. Even in hell the old stoker will let you look out."

Later police said the note was in the handwriting of Geyer's father, Peter C. Geyer, Sr., a retired naval officer, who is ill in a New York hospital. They said he apparently intended it to be forwarded to his son.

A fluent linguest, the marine officer served the United States as a spy behind the German lines during the World war. He was decorated with the navy cross.

Dr. Charles J. Dillon, the Geyer family physician, said Geyer arrived here Wednesday from Baltimore in response to a telegram from the physician informing him his father was critically ill.

Police said John Nolan, superintendent of the apartment building told them Geyer had been "acting queer" and had told several persons that somebody was "after him."

The board asked the state department of education to cooperate in formulating a program, and it readily did so. Superintendent Harris appointed a committee consisting of J. W. Brouillette, assistant state supervisor of elementary schools, S. M. Jackson, state supervisor of vocational agriculture, and John E. Coxe, state high school supervisor. This committee visited the institution, made a study of the various factors that would have to be considered in formulating an educational program for it, then prepared an outline for a suggested course of study. The preparation of this outline required several weeks of intensive study and work.

The educational program set forth in the outline is based on the idea that the purpose of the institution is to regenerate the boys mentally, morally, and socially, and to establish in them confidence in themselves as normal members of society. It makes a radical departure from the courses of study commonly found in the public schools of the country in at least three different ways.

1. It provides for the division of the pupils into groups on the basis of age and social adjustment rather than grades.

2. It provides for the organization of the school around three main fields of interest: vocational, recreational, and academic, the academic work being based largely on the other two.

3. It provides for a director for each phase of the work and an instructor for each group of pupils, the instructor accompanying and supervising his group in all of its educational activities, which have been planned by the directors. (This arrangement enables the instructors to better correlate and integrate the work in the various fields.)

The present organization and administration of the school follows in a general way the suggested plan. However, it has been necessary to make a number of modifications. For example, instead of having three fields of interest we have four: vocational, music, academic, and health and physical education. Music was made a separate field because of the great amount of interest which the boys showed in it. Also, the program calls for a formal school day of approximately six hours, during which time all the boys were to attend. This had to be changed because the boys do all the work of the institution. Half of the boys attend school in the morning and half in the afternoon. At present each boy is in school three hours and 50 minutes each day. In addition to this time all the boys have approximately two hours each evening for study, recreational reading and other forms of recreation. Some military drill is given to each boy.

Progress in the inauguration of the program has been slow because of a lack of equipment and the difficulty experienced in getting suitable teachers for the various positions. However, much has been done. The faculty has been completed, much of the equipment obtained, and the school is now operating full time. A brief survey of the work in the various fields will show what has been done and what is expected to be done.

Thirty-five instruments have been purchased for the band, and at present 70 boys are receiving instruction. This provides for two complete bands. The boys are taught in groups, each group receiving 40 minutes' instruction daily, the boys being taken from the various work crews rather than from the school. Each group of boys receives 20 minutes' instruction daily in group singing, and many others are receiving special instruction in quartet, chorus, and glee club work. This provides a very rich program in music, and the corrective results are very evident.

Much importance is attached to the vocational program because records of the institution show that a very large percentage of the boys are sent to it for petty thievery. Much of this would not have occurred had the boys had money with which to purchase the articles which they stole. Ability to earn money should correct much of this trouble, and the vocational program is designed to give them this ability. Present plans provide for training in forge work, cabinet work, carpentry, painting, masonry, automobile mechanics, elementary electricity, upholstering, tanning and leather work, field crops, poultry husbandry, animal husbandry, and horticulture. Much of this work will be done in connection with the regular program of work of the institution. Theory will be combined with practical application. Housing facilities for the shop work have been provided, and machinery and equipment are being installed daily. Delta equipment for cabinet work, consisting of a drill, a band saw, a table saw, a jointer and a lathe are already being used. Six forges and some of the equipment for leather work are about ready for use. Other equipment has been purchased and more will be as the program expands.

The program in health and physical education is similar to that recommended by the state department of education for the public schools of the state. Seasonal games and sports are employed, engaging every boy in the institution in some form of recreational activity. Inter-school competition is part of the program, and it is carried on in the same manner as in the public schools. Adequate time is devoted to health habits, first aid, safety education, and other matters pertaining to health. Regular physical examination, although a part of the institutional routine, is to be utilized, and an extensive corrective program employed. Plans for a modern, fully equipped gymnasium including a swimming pool have already been completed and construction is to start immediately. The program will be greatly enriched by these additions, and it will doubtless remove or alleviate many temperamental and physical maladjustments.

The academic program to the present has dealt largely with the development of skills in the fundamentals of reading, writing, and arithmetic. It has been difficult to correlate this work with the recreational and the vocational because they have not been sufficiently developed. However, enough has been done to reveal much of value in such a plan, and as time passes the major portion of the academic work can and will be built around the other phases of the educational program. Some time will, of course, have to be devoted to drill in the development of skills in the tool subjects. In order that the faculty might have a better understanding of the abilities and achievements of each boy in those subjects the Otis group intelligence test and the Metropolitan achievement tests in reading, language, and arithmetic were given to all the boys at the beginning of the school year. (The same tests are to be given to each boy when he enters the institution.) The I. Q. range was from 25 to about 125, with an average of about 80. The age-grade distribution was very abnormal. Boys of nearly all ages were found in each of the lower grades. For example, the third grade contained boys ranging in ages from nine to twenty years. This great difference in ages by grades accounts for the groupings being made largely on the basis of age and social adjustment. The groupings are very flexible, and a boy is changed from one group to another when it becomes evident that it is to his advantage to do so. An effort is made to give each boy work that fits his ability. High school work is given those who are entitled to do it. Twelve boys are now taking high school mathematics and English, in addition to their vocational work, physical education, and music.

A definite system of records has not been completed, but present plans call for a wide departure from the usual system in the public schools. A record of achievements and social adjustments—or lack of them—will be kept. For example, when a boy can play some musical instrument, make a certain kind of cabinet, do simple welding, do long division, sing creditably well, or do anything of a similar nature, a statement to that effort will be written into his record. Living up to some responsibility in a creditable way—or failure to do so—will be rewarded. Much importance is attached to any information about any boy which will better enable the faculty and other employes to direct him in his personal growth. The ultimate goal in the matter of records is a rather complete history of each boy before, during and following his term in the institution. The authorities of the institution feel that a case history should be brought with each boy when he is committed, that the length of time which a boy stays in the institution should be left to their judgment, and that an adequate system of probation and parole should be organized and put into operation. Such a plan is essential to a successful training program.

In conclusion, the educational program for the institution is designed to be a program of living as well as a preparation for life. It permeates the entire institution. It contemplates appropriate clothing for different occasions, a change in the dining room service which will be more conducive to healthful eating and good manners, proper attention to the religious phase of the boys' lives, and contact with life outside the institution by means of newspapers and magazines, the radio, and trips of various kinds in connection with the educational program. Such a program presents many new and difficult problems, and the authorities of the institution will welcome constructive criticism and cooperation from anyone who has an interest in boys that are in need of guidance. They greatly appreciate the fine cooperation which they have received from the officials and citizens of the city of Monroe and Ouachita parish, and the entire state.

MARINE OFFICER KILLS MOTHER, 80

Ends Own Life After Plunging Knife Into Aged Woman's Body

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—A 46-year-old marine corps officer and his 80-year-old mother were found stabbed to death today in the aged woman's uptown apartment.

Police said Major Peter C. Geyer, Jr., killed with a bread knife the mother friends said he "idolized" and then plunged the blade into his own stomach.

Mrs. Mary Gellin, a friend of Mrs. Geyer, and Lionell Mapp, elevator operators, found the bodies this afternoon when Mapp entered the apartment after Mrs. Gellin failed to get a response to the doorbell.

The tall, athletic marine officer lay partly dressed on the living room floor, the bread knife embedded in his stomach. His mother, dressed in a nightgown, was on a bed. She had been stabbed in the abdomen.

Police reported finding an unsigned note in the apartment which they said apparently was written by Geyer. It said:

"To whom it may concern; in case anything happens to me, I want no church service—no undertaker. I want a cheap coffin, and I want no flowers, no undue carriages or automobiles. I want to be buried in a nearby cemetery. I will be looking down upon you and see the land of the living and watch what you are doing. Even in hell the old stoker will let you look out."

Later police said the note was in the handwriting of Geyer's father, Peter C. Geyer, Sr., a retired naval officer, who is ill in a New York hospital. They said he apparently intended it to be forwarded to his son.

A fluent linguest, the marine officer served the United States as a spy behind the German lines during the World war. He was decorated with the navy cross.

Dr. Charles J. Dillon, the Geyer family physician, said Geyer arrived here Wednesday from Baltimore in response to a telegram from the physician informing him his father was critically ill.

Police said John Nolan, superintendent of the apartment building told them Geyer had been "acting queer" and had told several persons that somebody was "after him."

Although British unemployment figures for November increased by over 11,000, the number of persons in work rose to a new high, the apparent unemployed increase explained by extension of unemployment insurance to 9,000 agricultural workers not previously registered.

Many Activities Will Claim Interest Of Monroe Clubwomen During 1937

Groups Look Forward To Successful Year

Din Of Holiday Celebrations Still Ringing; Resolutions Made And Will Soon Be Forgotten

By Eve Bradford

HAPPY NEW YEAR! May the year 1937 bring the fulfillment of your fondest desires and may it bring, too, an abundance of happiness and faith in deeds worth doing. In your hearts and in your homes may peace and good will abide.

The ancient who began the practice of making New Year's resolutions certainly had either a sublime faith in human nature or a sense of humor. Gullible persons annually follow in his footsteps and the first of the year finds the average family planning to clean the slate of life and begin the year with marked changes in philosophy and behavior. Unfortunately, as the days pass, something happens. The resolutions are not kept and usually for a good reason.

On the threshold of a new year we look in retrospect on what has been accomplished and with prospect on new and greater goals. Looking back is a gratifying experience for the clubs in this city to which women devote their time and effort, but looking forward is an experience that holds even keener interest. Some outstanding work has been accomplished in the federated clubs where women are striving to make a better nation for the youth of today who are the hope of tomorrow. Educate, educate! Educate for better citizens, better homemakers, better club women, that in a nutshell is the outlook for 1937. The plans of Monroe club women for the coming year are not fallacies; neither are they idealogies. Alert, intelligent women find themselves talking less about discriminations against women and more about how fairly the men treat women on the whole.

The year just past has left a pleasant chain of memories with the din of New Year's eve still vibrating in our ears. Drifts of red balloons—grotesque hats on the heads of sedate gentlemen who tooted horns to their hearts' content—champagne for those who thirsted—blaring of trumpets and crashing of cymbals when the hour of midnight witnessed the passing of the old year.

The New Year's eve balls were brilliant and gay but none equalled in interest the Phi Kappa ball Tuesday night when society, all ages, met on the terrace of the Frances hotel for this annual event. All the superlatives at our command are necessary to describe the enchanting frocks worn by the feminine guests at this ball and several others during Christmas week. Clara Virginia Terzia looked like one of Godet's prints in a long princess coat of silver and gold brocade with high standing collar—Sara Cole Morrison all wrapped up in shining silver with rhinestone cap—Gay Noe in flaming gown patterned from the one worn by Scarlett in "Gone With the Wind"—Lorraine Matthews in rose taupe with full skirted coat of black velvet—Betty Isaacman in Grecian draperies of white chiffon that floated out in the most alluring manner when she danced—Clayton Knowles in a black cire evening model the very essence of chic—Dell Payne in cerise moire with crimson roses at her throat—Louise Kellogg in orchid chiffon—Anna Lee Russell's pale blonde beauty accentuated by a rose velvet gown—Adelaide Parker at the tea dansante on Monday was quite a beauty in dark colored velvet frock, very short as to skirt, according to dictates of fashion—Betty Reily with shining hair topped with a Juliet cap of white pearls and wearing a silver lame jacket over a long skirt—Virginia Abernathy suddenly grown into lovely young womanhood, wearing a metallic blouse and dark velvet skirt—Roberta Neel was looking particularly fascinating in a dark colored velvet—Scads of young things, all beautiful and all having the time of their young lives floated by, but so grown up have they suddenly become we were at a loss to call them by name.

If you arise early tomorrow morning and make your way out DeSiard street you'll most probably see a lovely young lady riding like the wind on a spirited horse. For your information the young lady is Winnie Graham Breard, and she is home from St. Mary-of-the-Woods, Indiana, for her Christmas vacation. Horsemanship is one of the things she is pursuing and as a result she has developed into a remarkable horsewoman. After hours at the piano (she is specializing in music), there is nothing more invigorating (so she says) than a swift canter in the frosty air. Speaking of frosty air reminds us of Edith Meyer, who writes us from Lake Placid, where Walter and Violet, ski addicts, are drinking in deep drafts of the cold, snappy ozone in that beautiful snow country. No doubt they quaffed deeply of sterner stuff indoors the Lake Placid clubhouse, where all guests attend the "ski-ball" in their ski pants and boots if they like. A "ski-ball," served at this famous resort, is a concoction of hot tea, spices and rum for exhausted snowbirds. While the Meyer family is skiing over the powder puff hills of Lake Placid, the George Trousdales are witnessing the rose festival at Pasadena. Mrs. A. L. Smith was to head south at an early hour this morning for the sun-drenched shores of Miami, and the Walter Kelloggs (so we hear) are waiting for fair weather so that they can fly to sunny California. William and Marie Bendel will soon be off for their eagerly anticipated cruise, going first to Mexico City and then to Panama.

Can spring be far behind when narcissi are blooming in Cherrie Bernstein's yard and Joy Steele is wearing a smart little spring hat? Joy, always just one step ahead of the average person, is also wearing a printed dress very much like Joseph's coat of many colors. She will be off this week for the University of Alabama, returning in June with her well-earned sheepskin.

New Year's Message Sent To Club Women

Miss Charl Ormond Williams, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, has sent the following new year's message to the organization's 1,500 clubs, which have a membership of 1,000:

"To me the advent of the new year means new hopes and opportunities. Personally I always feel as the new year draws near that I am very grateful for having another clean, white page upon which I can write a record which will be better than the record of the year just ending.

"Those of us who live in the United States have a great opportunity ahead of us in 1937. All of the indices of business show that we are well out of the depression and that our country is facing a period of real expansion, and so the bugaboo of unemployment and want will cease to stalk our footsteps and we can go on with a real program of development.

"As we start the new year the whole world is in a turmoil, with war in progress in Europe and Asia and talk of war to be heard on all sides. It is the special task of business and professional women to interest themselves in international relations and use their influence to bring about peaceful settlement of international difficulties.

"This international interest is right in line with 'The Business Woman as Citizen,' the theme which we adopted at the board meeting in Chicago last July. It is quite as important that we be good citizens of the world as that we should be good citizens in the town and state and country in which we live.

"March 14 to 20 the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs will celebrate its tenth anniversary of National Business Women's week. Let us unite to make that week the occasion for a real demonstration in every community in which we are organized, and prove that business women are effective citizens. The federation is recommending to each club that it engage in one of four activities outlined in the December issue of the Independent Woman. Appointive offices for women, educational facilities, jury service and the merit system.

"Through a united goal, a unified program and through mutual understanding and helpfulness we will progress both as individuals, as citizens and as members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs. May the year 1937 give each and every one of us new opportunities for service."

Miss Neill Marries C. A. De Jersey, Jr.

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Neill, former residents of West Monroe, where Rev. Neill was pastor of the First Baptist church for several years, will be interested in the announcement of their daughter's marriage in Shreveport. The following article appeared in a recent issue of the Shreveport Times:

"The marriage of Miss Edna Ireine Neill and Mr. Claude Albert De Jersey, Jr., was quietly solemnized Thursday, December 24, in the home of the bride's parents, 735 Wilkerson street, with Dr. James Owens officiating.

"Mrs. De Jersey is the lovely daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Neill of Shreveport. She was graduated from Kidd Key college in Sherman, Tex., and Centenary college, Shreveport.

"Mr. De Jersey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. De Jersey, also of Shreveport, attended Western Military academy, Alton, Ill., and Western Military academy, Gainesville, Ga. He is now connected with the geological department of the Gulf Refining company.

"The bride wore a chic blue wool trimmed in grey squirrel and her accessories were grey. The wedding was attended by relatives and a few friends.

Miss Irene Upton Weds Mr. Le Brocq

Of interest to a wide circle of friends in Louisiana and Mississippi is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Irene Upton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Calhoun Upton, of Rayville, to Mr. Eric Francis LeBrocq, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick LeBrocq of Monroe.

The wedding was solemnized in the Methodist Episcopal church in Rayville, on Saturday morning, December 26, at 10 o'clock. Only a few close friends and relatives were present.

In keeping with the Christmas season, the altar was banked with smilax and holly and decorated with poinsettias.

The nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. J. T. Selby, of Hattiesburg, Miss., sister of the bride, who sang "Because," by D'Hardelot. Mrs. W. L. Calhoun played the wedding march from Lohengrin. "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" was played during the ceremony and Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as a recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a becoming gray tailleur with gray accessories and a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Upton, who was becomingly attired in a lovely gown of dubonnet crepe with black accessories. Her corsage was of Talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

The groom had as his best man Mr. Clarence Adkinson of Monroe, and as groomsmen Mr. J. T. Selby of Hattiesburg, Miss., and Mr. E. C. Upton, Jr., brother of the bride.

Rev. L. M. Hoffpauir read the marriage service, using the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Le Brocq is a member of the faculty of the high school of Picayune, Miss., and Mr. Le Brocq is field scout executive in the DeSoto council, and is located in Monticello, Ark.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Le Brocq left for a wedding trip to the gulf coast and New Orleans.

Meeting Held By Ladies' Auxiliary

The ladies' auxiliary to the Rodney J. Hobbs post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held the regular meeting in the new V. F. W. club rooms on DeSiard street Thursday night, with 20 members present. President Lena M. Morrow presided.

Mrs. Gladys K. Miller, Mrs. Martha P. Newman, Mrs. Pearl Madsen and Mrs. Armandi Liles were welcomed as new members.

Report was made on the welfare work done by the auxiliary during the holidays. Baskets of groceries were prepared at an approximate cost of $50 and distributed among needy families Christmas eve.

A report was read from the department hospital chairman, Mrs. Mildred Duggan, Alexandria, who reported having distributed 400 boxes of candy with individual cards to the veterans at the United States hospital at Alexandria on Armistice day.

Report of treats furnished the veterans by the ladies' auxiliary, department of Louisiana, will be furnished each auxiliary by January 15. This hospital work has been carried on by the department for a number of years. Much interest has been shown and each auxiliary in the state contributes monthly to the fund. Every year is a busy one for the auxiliaries to the Veterans of Foreign Wars whose aim is to assist their post and render aid to needy veterans and their families. Much work can be done along this line and mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of men who have had overseas service are invited to join the organization and assist in this work.

The next regular meeting of the auxiliary will be held in the new club rooms Thursday night, January 14.

Boss, Henry MiChaud, Melba Boss, C. L. Kelley, E. W. Stewart, J. C. Shows, John MiChaud, E. Mobley, Wes Suttle and E. W. Cox.

After several hours of bridge games, Mrs. J. A. Whittemore, assisted by Mrs. E. Mobley, served sandwiches, eggnog and fruit cake on lovely trays decorated with silver vases of white carnations. Mrs. Whittemore then presented her mother-in-law with a bottle of perfume. Mrs. J. C. Shows was presented with dusting powder and toilet water for high score; and Mrs. Wes Suttle was presented a lovely cut glass perfume bottle for high spade cut.

Civic Music Concert To Be Given Monday

Florence Austral, Famed Soprano, And John Amadio, Noted Flutist, Will Appear At Parish School

The Monroe Civic Music association's opening concert of the season will be given Monday night at the Ouachita Parish High school auditorium, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. The recital promises to be one of the greatest musical events of many years. The artists are Florence Austral, famed coloratura soprano, and her equally gifted husband, John Amadio, the flutist.

Following is the program:

Recitative and Aria from "Nabucco," (Verdi), Miss Austral.

Sonata No. 4 (flute and piano), (Bach), Andante-Allegro, Menuetto-Vivace, Mr. Amadio.

Feldeinsamkeit, (Brahms); Meine Liebe ist grun (Brahms); Sandmannchen, (Brahms); O liebliche Wangen, (Brahms), Miss Austral.

Ave Maria (with flute), (Kahn); Maria Wiegenlied, (Max Reger); Ballad (edited by Olin Downes), (Lichina), Miss Austral.

The Whirlwind, (Krantz); Habanera, (Ravel); Gypsy Dance (from Suite), (Edward German), Mr. Amadio.

Sea Rapture, (Eric Coates); A Piper (with flute), (Michael Head); The Song of the Smuggler's Lass, (M. Phillips), Miss Austral.

Miss Austral is Australian by birth, and followed the precedent set by Melba in using a modified form of her birthplace for her professional name. She did not discover her voice until she was about 18 years old, and then it was by accident. Over her own protests, she was persuaded to sing a song in a Christmas play, and when she came out to do her act, opened her mouth and sang, her parents in the audience were so impressed with the beauty of her singing voice that they insisted that she study with the best teacher available. Two years of study in Melbourne were followed by two years more of study in England, then she made her debut in London with phenomenal success. On a return trip to her native Australia, she met and was married to John Amadio, distinguished flutist, and before long the couple began giving joint recitals. Now they spend half the year on concert tours, and the rest of the time in England.

Miss Austral has won encomiums from music critics all over the world. Of her concert in New York, the Herald-Tribune said: "A soprano voice, which for sheer beauty of timbre, volume, range and ease of production is probably without a superior anywhere in the world today. Edward Moor, in the Chicago Tribune, said of her: "Florence Austral never showed herself a more distinguished artist than when she appeared last night, one of the finest soprano voices of the generation."

Her husband, John Amadio, is recognized as the peer of all flutists.

Of his Detroit recital, in which he appeared with Austral and Tito Schipa, the editor of "The Flutist" says: "There is no denying John Amadio is one of the greatest flutists of his generation. Schipa is a fine artist, yet Amadio and his flute quite completely overshadowed Schipa during the first half of the program. He was awarded four calls. His playing of the andante, minuetto and allegro from Bach's "Sonata No. 4" was a revelation. He played it superbly. Mr. Amadio's performance fairly startled the natives out of their seats."

John Amadio is one of the few men alive who can meet a coloratura soprano on the stage and talk back at her. Not only that, but he can trill back at her, mock her and carry on a pyrotechnic dispute with her in the region of the high C's and make her like it. With flutes of gold, silver and wood, he has been flutist extraordinary to almost all the greatest queens of song who have toured the seven seas. Melba, Calve, Tetrazzini, Hempel, Austral—to mention a few—have stood before their thousands with Amadio on their right, and in priceless topnotes have trilled about his being an echo, a bird or a purling brook.

Many Activities Will Claim Interest Of Monroe Clubwomen During 1937

Groups Look Forward To Successful Year

Din Of Holiday Celebrations Still Ringing; Resolutions Made And Will Soon Be Forgotten

By Eve Bradford

HAPPY NEW YEAR! May the year 1937 bring the fulfillment of your fondest desires and may it bring, too, an abundance of happiness and faith in deeds worth doing. In your hearts and in your homes may peace and good will abide.

The ancient who began the practice of making New Year's resolutions certainly had either a sublime faith in human nature or a sense of humor. Gullible persons annually follow in his footsteps and the first of the year finds the average family planning to clean the slate of life and begin the year with marked changes in philosophy and behavior. Unfortunately, as the days pass, something happens. The resolutions are not kept and usually for a good reason.

On the threshold of a new year we look in retrospect on what has been accomplished and with prospect on new and greater goals. Looking back is a gratifying experience for the clubs in this city to which women devote their time and effort, but looking forward is an experience that holds even keener interest. Some outstanding work has been accomplished in the federated clubs where women are striving to make a better nation for the youth of today who are the hope of tomorrow. Educate, educate! Educate for better citizens, better homemakers, better club women, that in a nutshell is the outlook for 1937. The plans of Monroe club women for the coming year are not fallacies; neither are they idealogies. Alert, intelligent women find themselves talking less about discriminations against women and more about how fairly the men treat women on the whole.

The year just past has left a pleasant chain of memories with the din of New Year's eve still vibrating in our ears. Drifts of red balloons—grotesque hats on the heads of sedate gentlemen who tooted horns to their hearts' content—champagne for those who thirsted—blaring of trumpets and crashing of cymbals when the hour of midnight witnessed the passing of the old year.

The New Year's eve balls were brilliant and gay but none equalled in interest the Phi Kappa ball Tuesday night when society, all ages, met on the terrace of the Frances hotel for this annual event. All the superlatives at our command are necessary to describe the enchanting frocks worn by the feminine guests at this ball and several others during Christmas week. Clara Virginia Terzia looked like one of Godet's prints in a long princess coat of silver and gold brocade with high standing collar—Sara Cole Morrison all wrapped up in shining silver with rhinestone cap—Gay Noe in flaming gown patterned from the one worn by Scarlett in "Gone With the Wind"—Lorraine Matthews in rose taupe with full skirted coat of black velvet—Betty Isaacman in Grecian draperies of white chiffon that floated out in the most alluring manner when she danced—Clayton Knowles in a black cire evening model the very essence of chic—Dell Payne in cerise moire with crimson roses at her throat—Louise Kellogg in orchid chiffon—Anna Lee Russell's pale blonde beauty accentuated by a rose velvet gown—Adelaide Parker at the tea dansante on Monday was quite a beauty in dark colored velvet frock, very short as to skirt, according to dictates of fashion—Betty Reily with shining hair topped with a Juliet cap of white pearls and wearing a silver lame jacket over a long skirt—Virginia Abernathy suddenly grown into lovely young womanhood, wearing a metallic blouse and dark velvet skirt—Roberta Neel was looking particularly fascinating in a dark colored velvet—Scads of young things, all beautiful and all having the time of their young lives floated by, but so grown up have they suddenly become we were at a loss to call them by name.

If you arise early tomorrow morning and make your way out DeSiard street you'll most probably see a lovely young lady riding like the wind on a spirited horse. For your information the young lady is Winnie Graham Breard, and she is home from St. Mary-of-the-Woods, Indiana, for her Christmas vacation. Horsemanship is one of the things she is pursuing and as a result she has developed into a remarkable horsewoman. After hours at the piano (she is specializing in music), there is nothing more invigorating (so she says) than a swift canter in the frosty air. Speaking of frosty air reminds us of Edith Meyer, who writes us from Lake Placid, where Walter and Violet, ski addicts, are drinking in deep drafts of the cold, snappy ozone in that beautiful snow country. No doubt they quaffed deeply of sterner stuff indoors the Lake Placid clubhouse, where all guests attend the "ski-ball" in their ski pants and boots if they like. A "ski-ball," served at this famous resort, is a concoction of hot tea, spices and rum for exhausted snowbirds. While the Meyer family is skiing over the powder puff hills of Lake Placid, the George Trousdales are witnessing the rose festival at Pasadena. Mrs. A. L. Smith was to head south at an early hour this morning for the sun-drenched shores of Miami, and the Walter Kelloggs (so we hear) are waiting for fair weather so that they can fly to sunny California. William and Marie Bendel will soon be off for their eagerly anticipated cruise, going first to Mexico City and then to Panama.

Can spring be far behind when narcissi are blooming in Cherrie Bernstein's yard and Joy Steele is wearing a smart little spring hat? Joy, always just one step ahead of the average person, is also wearing a printed dress very much like Joseph's coat of many colors. She will be off this week for the University of Alabama, returning in June with her well-earned sheepskin.

New Year's Message Sent To Club Women

Miss Charl Ormond Williams, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, has sent the following new year's message to the organization's 1,500 clubs, which have a membership of 1,000:

"To me the advent of the new year means new hopes and opportunities. Personally I always feel as the new year draws near that I am very grateful for having another clean, white page upon which I can write a record which will be better than the record of the year just ending.

"Those of us who live in the United States have a great opportunity ahead of us in 1937. All of the indices of business show that we are well out of the depression and that our country is facing a period of real expansion, and so the bugaboo of unemployment and want will cease to stalk our footsteps and we can go on with a real program of development.

"As we start the new year the whole world is in a turmoil, with war in progress in Europe and Asia and talk of war to be heard on all sides. It is the special task of business and professional women to interest themselves in international relations and use their influence to bring about peaceful settlement of international difficulties.

"This international interest is right in line with 'The Business Woman as Citizen,' the theme which we adopted at the board meeting in Chicago last July. It is quite as important that we be good citizens of the world as that we should be good citizens in the town and state and country in which we live.

"March 14 to 20 the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs will celebrate its tenth anniversary of National Business Women's week. Let us unite to make that week the occasion for a real demonstration in every community in which we are organized, and prove that business women are effective citizens. The federation is recommending to each club that it engage in one of four activities outlined in the December issue of the Independent Woman. Appointive offices for women, educational facilities, jury service and the merit system.

"Through a united goal, a unified program and through mutual understanding and helpfulness we will progress both as individuals, as citizens and as members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs. May the year 1937 give each and every one of us new opportunities for service."

Miss Neill Marries C. A. De Jersey, Jr.

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Neill, former residents of West Monroe, where Rev. Neill was pastor of the First Baptist church for several years, will be interested in the announcement of their daughter's marriage in Shreveport. The following article appeared in a recent issue of the Shreveport Times:

"The marriage of Miss Edna Ireine Neill and Mr. Claude Albert De Jersey, Jr., was quietly solemnized Thursday, December 24, in the home of the bride's parents, 735 Wilkerson street, with Dr. James Owens officiating.

"Mrs. De Jersey is the lovely daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Neill of Shreveport. She was graduated from Kidd Key college in Sherman, Tex., and Centenary college, Shreveport.

"Mr. De Jersey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. De Jersey, also of Shreveport, attended Western Military academy, Alton, Ill., and Western Military academy, Gainesville, Ga. He is now connected with the geological department of the Gulf Refining company.

"The bride wore a chic blue wool trimmed in grey squirrel and her accessories were grey. The wedding was attended by relatives and a few friends.

Miss Irene Upton Weds Mr. Le Brocq

Of interest to a wide circle of friends in Louisiana and Mississippi is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Irene Upton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Calhoun Upton, of Rayville, to Mr. Eric Francis LeBrocq, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick LeBrocq of Monroe.

The wedding was solemnized in the Methodist Episcopal church in Rayville, on Saturday morning, December 26, at 10 o'clock. Only a few close friends and relatives were present.

In keeping with the Christmas season, the altar was banked with smilax and holly and decorated with poinsettias.

The nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. J. T. Selby, of Hattiesburg, Miss., sister of the bride, who sang "Because," by D'Hardelot. Mrs. W. L. Calhoun played the wedding march from Lohengrin. "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms" was played during the ceremony and Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as a recessional.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a becoming gray tailleur with gray accessories and a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Upton, who was becomingly attired in a lovely gown of dubonnet crepe with black accessories. Her corsage was of Talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

The groom had as his best man Mr. Clarence Adkinson of Monroe, and as groomsmen Mr. J. T. Selby of Hattiesburg, Miss., and Mr. E. C. Upton, Jr., brother of the bride.

Rev. L. M. Hoffpauir read the marriage service, using the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Le Brocq is a member of the faculty of the high school of Picayune, Miss., and Mr. Le Brocq is field scout executive in the DeSoto council, and is located in Monticello, Ark.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Le Brocq left for a wedding trip to the gulf coast and New Orleans.

Meeting Held By Ladies' Auxiliary

The ladies' auxiliary to the Rodney J. Hobbs post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held the regular meeting in the new V. F. W. club rooms on DeSiard street Thursday night, with 20 members present. President Lena M. Morrow presided.

Mrs. Gladys K. Miller, Mrs. Martha P. Newman, Mrs. Pearl Madsen and Mrs. Armandi Liles were welcomed as new members.

Report was made on the welfare work done by the auxiliary during the holidays. Baskets of groceries were prepared at an approximate cost of $50 and distributed among needy families Christmas eve.

A report was read from the department hospital chairman, Mrs. Mildred Duggan, Alexandria, who reported having distributed 400 boxes of candy with individual cards to the veterans at the United States hospital at Alexandria on Armistice day.

Report of treats furnished the veterans by the ladies' auxiliary, department of Louisiana, will be furnished each auxiliary by January 15. This hospital work has been carried on by the department for a number of years. Much interest has been shown and each auxiliary in the state contributes monthly to the fund. Every year is a busy one for the auxiliaries to the Veterans of Foreign Wars whose aim is to assist their post and render aid to needy veterans and their families. Much work can be done along this line and mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of men who have had overseas service are invited to join the organization and assist in this work.

The next regular meeting of the auxiliary will be held in the new club rooms Thursday night, January 14.

Civic Music Concert To Be Given Monday

Florence Austral, Famed Soprano, And John Amadio, Noted Flutist, Will Appear At Parish School

The Monroe Civic Music association's opening concert of the season will be given Monday night at the Ouachita Parish High school auditorium, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. The recital promises to be one of the greatest musical events of many years. The artists are Florence Austral, famed coloratura soprano, and her equally gifted husband, John Amadio, the flutist.

Following is the program:

Recitative and Aria from "Nabucco," (Verdi), Miss Austral.

Sonata No. 4 (flute and piano), (Bach), Andante-Allegro, Menuetto-Vivace, Mr. Amadio.

Feldeinsamkeit, (Brahms); Meine Liebe ist grun (Brahms); Sandmannchen, (Brahms); O liebliche Wangen, (Brahms), Miss Austral.

The Whirlwind, (Krantz); Habanera, (Ravel); Gypsy Dance (from Suite), (Edward German), Mr. Amadio.

Sea Rapture, (Eric Coates); A Piper (with flute), (Michael Head); The Song of the Smuggler's Lass, (M. Phillips), Miss Austral.

Miss Austral is Australian by birth, and followed the precedent set by Melba in using a modified form of her birthplace for her professional name. She did not discover her voice until she was about 18 years old, and then it was by accident. Over her own protests, she was persuaded to sing a song in a Christmas play, and when she came out to do her act, opened her mouth and sang, her parents in the audience were so impressed with the beauty of her singing voice that they insisted that she study with the best teacher available. Two years of study in Melbourne were followed by two years more of study in England, then she made her debut in London with phenomenal success. On a return trip to her native Australia, she met and was married to John Amadio, distinguished flutist, and before long the couple began giving joint recitals. Now they spend half the year on concert tours, and the rest of the time in England.

Miss Austral has won encomiums from music critics all over the world. Of her concert in New York, the Herald-Tribune said: "A soprano voice, which for sheer beauty of timbre, volume, range and ease of production is probably without a superior anywhere in the world today. Edward Moor, in the Chicago Tribune, said of her: "Florence Austral never showed herself a more distinguished artist than when she appeared last night, one of the finest soprano voices of the generation."

Her husband, John Amadio, is recognized as the peer of all flutists.

Of his Detroit recital, in which he appeared with Austral and Tito Schipa, the editor of "The Flutist" says: "There is no denying John Amadio is one of the greatest flutists of his generation. Schipa is a fine artist, yet Amadio and his flute quite completely overshadowed Schipa during the first half of the program. He was awarded four calls. His playing of the andante, minuetto and allegro from Bach's "Sonata No. 4" was a revelation. He played it superbly. Mr. Amadio's performance fairly startled the natives out of their seats."

John Amadio is one of the few men alive who can meet a coloratura soprano on the stage and talk back at her. Not only that, but he can trill back at her, mock her and carry on a pyrotechnic dispute with her in the region of the high C's and make her like it. With flutes of gold, silver and wood, he has been flutist extraordinary to almost all the greatest queens of song who have toured the seven seas. Melba, Calve, Tetrazzini, Hempel, Austral—to mention a few—have stood before their thousands with Amadio on their right, and in priceless topnotes have trilled about his being an echo, a bird or a purling brook.

Miss Mary Mosely Weds Bert Newsom

A wedding of interest to a large circle of friends throughout the state was that of Miss Mary Mosely, attractive and accomplished daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Mosely of Arcadia, La., and Mr. Lewis Albertus Newsom, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Newsom of Shreveport, which was celebrated in beautiful simplicity at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York City on Friday, December 25, at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, in the presence of a few close friends.

The bride wore an advance spring ensemble of black with harmonizing accessories and a corsage of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Newsom, one of Arcadia's loveliest girls, studied at the Louisiana State Normal college, at Centenary college, and received her B. A. degree from George Peabody college. Mr. Newcom, a graduate of the law school of the Louisiana State university, is an attorney-at-law and at present is connected with the department of justice. Mrs. Newsom has often visited in Monroe.

After an extended trip which will include Philadelphia, Washington, Jacksonville and Miami, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Newsom will be established at the George Washington hotel in New York city.

Phi Kappa's Annual Ball Proves Most Brilliant In Local Chapter's History

Misses Haynes, Husted Honored As Sponsors

Grand March Led By Miss Dorothy Mae Sherrouse And Durwood Griffin; Dance Held At Frances

Down the corridors of time echoes the laughter, the lilting music and the babble of happy voices associated for the past 10 years with the annual Christmas ball of Phi Kappa.

This gallant company of hosts, members of Eta chapter of Phi Kappa fraternity, add fresh laurels to their social achievements each year with this year's ball the most brilliant in history.

The ball, as customary, was held on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel, with all Phi Kappa fraternity men in immaculate evening attire and wearing the customary broad band of purple satin across the white expanse of shirt front. They also wore white gardenia boutonnieres centered with tiny electrics which set them apart from their masculine guests.

The grand march, led by Mr. Durwood Griffin and Miss Dorothy Mae Sherrouse, a beautiful figure in horizon blue taffeta, with long full skirt, was a spectacular pageant, featuring a dazzling array of beautiful girls in shimmering frocks and young men in evening attire.

The Phi Kappa special, with lights lowered and only the hosts of the evening and their partners on the floor, was one of the highlights of the evening.

The two lovely sponsors, Miss Elizabeth Haynes and Miss Virginia Husted, wearing white satin models of classic design, were officially introduced by Mr. Griffin, who presented them with sheaves of white carnations and beautiful pins.

Last year's sponsors, Miss Nan Buckner and Mrs. Milton Gorn, were aso introduced. They were presented with handsome pendants, bearing the Phi Kappa insignia. Mr. Griffin, in behalf of the fraternity, spoke of the pleasure derived from entertaining their friends each year and the effort put forth to make each ball more brilliant and more enjoyable than the preceding one.

There is always a mingling of young and old at each Phi Kappa ball with this year's attendance the largest in history. From the sidelines a gay company of guests watched the panoramic scene and enjoyed to the fullest the social interlude at 12 o'clock. In many homes cocktail intermission parties were featured, but the great majority remained on the terrace until dancing was resumed at 1 o'clock.

The chaperones selected by the hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Harry St. John, Mr. and Mrs. Green Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Terzia, Mr. and Mrs. John Sherrouse, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Carpenter, Mr. and Ms. J. W. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Grofto, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Surguine, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Collens, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Beaman, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Prophit, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Miss Marie Chandler Weds Grover C. Orth

Miss Inez Smith And E. S. Tucker, Jr., Marry In Texas; Miss Helen Louise Zeigler Bride Of Leon Owens

Heart interest always runs high at this season, with the wedding march sounding above the Christmas carol and orange blossoms more popular than ever before as manifested in the number of nuptial events and the number of betrothals engaging the interest of friends last week.

A wedding characterized by considerable beauty of detail and one in which the interest of friends in this section of the state is centered, was that of Miss Marie Chandler, lovely young daughter of Mrs. J. E. Chandler and the late James E. Chandler, and Mr. Grover C. Orth, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Orth of Baltimore, Md., on December 27, at the First Baptist church of Pollock, La., at 9 o'clock in the morning, with the pastor, Rev. J. O. Fogleman, performing the double ring ceremony.

The setting was unusually beautiful with a vaulted arch entwined with southern smilax and studded with white chrysanthemums directly over the altar. A wedding bell was suspended from the arch, flanked with tall baskets overflowing with superb white chrysanthemums. Myriad cathedral tapers burned in the background.

While the guests were being seated by the ushers, Messrs. Dee and Herbert Chandler of Monroe, and Charles Earl Turrentine of Pollock, Greenwald's "The Arrival of the Guests" was beautifully rendered by Miss Maxine Kelly, violinist, Mr. R. H. Ferguson, clarinetist, and Mr. Charles Till, pianist. Wagner's bridal chorus was used for the processional.

The bridegroom and his best man, his brother, Mr. Roland Orth of Baltimore, waited at the altar.

Jacquetta Chandler of Monroe, niece of the bride, gowned in a navy blue mohair taffeta frock with a poke bonnet to match, served as junior bridesmaid. She carried a colonial bouquet. She was followed by the bridesmaids, the bride's sisters, Miss Ottie Chandler of Shreveport, and Miss Ava Chandler of Pollock, who wore gowns of navy blue mohair taffeta with turbans of silver metallic cloth and silver sandals. They carried arm bouquets of pink carnations tied with pink tulle.

The matron of honor, Mrs. F. N. Chandler, of Shreveport, sister-in-law of the bride, was becomingly attired in a picturesque taffeta gown and gold sandals. She wore a wreath of gold flowers flaunting a short veil of maline and carried a bouquet of rose colored carnations.

The bride entered with her eldest brother, Mr. D. W. Chandler, of Monroe, who gave her in marriage. She wore a beautiful blue velvet high neckline model with self covered buttons down the center back to the waistline. The long sleeves, buttoned to the elbow with self covered buttons, had insets of metallic cloth. The full skirt, flaring from the hips, was floor length. A smart silver metallic turban with short silver veil and an arm bouquet of shell pink bride's roses and valley lilies completed the distinctive toilette. For sentiment, the bride's bouquet was tied with the white ribbons adorning the wedding bouquet of the bridegroom's mother.

During the ceremony Handel's "Lieberstraum" was beautifully rendered and later Miss Jo Foster of Pollock sang "I Love You Truly."

A reception was held at the bride's home immediately following the ceremony.

The bride's mother was beautifully gowned in black crepe and wore a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Orth, the groom's mother, was attired in a rust colored frock with a pink carnation corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Orth left on a short motor trip to south Louisiana, and after their return will be at home to friends in Pollock. Mrs. Orth traveled in a handsome advanced spring model of gray with crimson and gray accessories.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Grover Orth, Sr., Mr. Roland Orth, Mrs. Dora Seff and Miss Virginia Harris of Baltimore, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lee, Jr., New Orleans; Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Chandler, Baton Rouge; Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Chandler, Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Jule Chandler, West Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Chandler and family, Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Flowers, Jena; Mr. W. K. Knight, Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gray, Mr. Pete Cerenelli, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Lewis and daughters, and Miss Ruth Bratton of Alexandria; Mrs. R. Williamson and son, and Miss Notrie Singuefield of Dry Prong, La.; and Miss Marie Hart of Shreveport.

Of affectionate interest to friends is the announcement of the marriage on Christmas eve of Miss Inez Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith of Commerce, Tex., and Mr. E. S. Tucker, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Tucker of this city, at the Baptist church parsonage, Kilgore, Tex. The ceremony was performed at 11 o'clock in the presence of a few intimate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker left immediately following the ceremony for this city, where they spent several days in the home of Mr. Tucker's parents on DeSiard street, before continuing their honeymoon trip to New Orleans.

The interest of friends is centered in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Helen Louise Zeigler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Zeigler of Eros, La., and Mr. Leon Owens, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Owens of Calhoun, on Christmas day, December 25.

Of interest to many friends is the marriage of Miss Verne Mae Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams of Swartz, La., to Vernon Martin Wolfe, son of Mrs. F. A. Wolfe and the late Mr. F. A. Wolfe. The wedding was quietly solemnized in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elton J. Wolfe in Shreveport, Saturday, December 19. Rev. R. D. Littleton of the Presbyterian church performed the ceremony in the presence of the relatives and close friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The living room was beautifully decorated with fern and flowers and the improvised altar was lighted with tall tapers in branched candelabra. Following the ceremony an informal reception was held in the dining room. Mrs. J. Primos, Mrs. Elton J. Wolfe and Mrs. F. A. Wolfe, mother of the groom, served from a table which was decorated in the bridal motif and centered with the large wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe will be at home in Swartz after the first of the year. Mrs. Wolfe attended the Ouachita Parish High school in Monroe. Mr. Wolfe attended Byrd High school and Centenary college, where he was a well known athlete.

Claiming the affectionate interest of friends in the Twin Cities is the marriage of Miss Dorothy Williams and Mr. Guy Armstrong, which was beautifully solemnized on Christmas afternoon, with Rev. I. L. Yeager, pastor of the Methodist Protestant church, officiating.

Mrs. Armstrong was becomingly gowned in a dubonnet model with black accessories. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams of Swartz, and was graduated from Ouachita Parish High school with the class of 1936.

Mr. Armstrong is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Armstrong of Linderman avenue, West Monroe.

The young couple are receiving the hearty congratulations of their many friends in this parish. They are now at home at 303 Filhiol avenue.

Miss Monaco Weds Eugene Bruscato

Of interest to many friends is the marriage of Miss Rosa Lee Monaco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Monaco, and Mr. Eugene Bruscato, at St. Matthew's Catholic church Sunday, December 27.

The ceremony was performed in a setting of beautiful flowers, with Rev. Father N. F. Vandegaer officiating, in the presence of friends and relatives.

Mr. Don Breitenmoser, organist, rendered a nuptial concert and while the guests were being seated by the ushers, Messrs. John Varino, John Carso and Rocco Monaco. The best man was Mr. Nick Bruscato.

The bridesmaids, Miss Katie Cascio, Miss Katherine Ferlito of Shreveport, and the maid of honor, Miss Katherine Monaco, were beautiful blue taffeta models with silver accessories and carried arm bouquets of Talisman roses. The matron of honor, Mrs. A. Varino, wore a gown similar to those worn by the bridesmaids and carried an arm bouquet of Columbia roses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful white satin wedding gown with lace sleeves and high neckline. Self covered buttons formed the trimming in the back. A veil of illusion caught at the head in cap effect, with orange blossoms fell to the edge of the long train.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the C. S. C. hall, where dancing was continued until a late hour. The cutting of the wedding cake was one of the features of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruscato are both graduates of St. Matthew's Parochial school, class of 1933. Mr. Bruscato is also a graduate of Northeast Center of Louisiana State university. They are now occupying their new home on DeSiard.

Among the many out-of-town guests attending the wedding were: Mrs. Leon Ferlito, Miss Katherine Ferlito, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Phi Kappa's Annual Ball Proves Most Brilliant In Local Chapter's History

Misses Haynes, Husted Honored As Sponsors

Grand March Led By Miss Dorothy Mae Sherrouse And Durwood Griffin; Dance Held At Frances

Down the corridors of time echoes the laughter, the lilting music and the babble of happy voices associated for the past 10 years with the annual Christmas ball of Phi Kappa.

This gallant company of hosts, members of Eta chapter of Phi Kappa fraternity, add fresh laurels to their social achievements each year with this year's ball the most brilliant in history.

The ball, as customary, was held on the Cherokee terrace of the Frances hotel, with all Phi Kappa fraternity men in immaculate evening attire and wearing the customary broad band of purple satin across the white expanse of shirt front. They also wore white gardenia boutonnieres centered with tiny electrics which set them apart from their masculine guests.

The grand march, led by Mr. Durwood Griffin and Miss Dorothy Mae Sherrouse, a beautiful figure in horizon blue taffeta, with long full skirt, was a spectacular pageant, featuring a dazzling array of beautiful girls in shimmering frocks and young men in evening attire.

The Phi Kappa special, with lights lowered and only the hosts of the evening and their partners on the floor, was one of the highlights of the evening.

The two lovely sponsors, Miss Elizabeth Haynes and Miss Virginia Husted, wearing white satin models of classic design, were officially introduced by Mr. Griffin, who presented them with sheaves of white carnations and beautiful pins.

Last year's sponsors, Miss Nan Buckner and Mrs. Milton Gorn, were aso introduced. They were presented with handsome pendants, bearing the Phi Kappa insignia. Mr. Griffin, in behalf of the fraternity, spoke of the pleasure derived from entertaining their friends each year and the effort put forth to make each ball more brilliant and more enjoyable than the preceding one.

There is always a mingling of young and old at each Phi Kappa ball with this year's attendance the largest in history. From the sidelines a gay company of guests watched the panoramic scene and enjoyed to the fullest the social interlude at 12 o'clock. In many homes cocktail intermission parties were featured, but the great majority remained on the terrace until dancing was resumed at 1 o'clock.

The chaperones selected by the hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Harry St. John, Mr. and Mrs. Green Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Terzia, Mr. and Mrs. John Sherrouse, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Carpenter, Mr. and Ms. J. Miss Marie Chandler Weds Grover C. Orth

Heart interest always runs high at this season, with the wedding march sounding above the Christmas carol and orange blossoms more popular than ever before as manifested in the number of nuptial events and the number of betrothals engaging the interest of friends last week.

A wedding characterized by considerable beauty of detail and one in which the interest of friends in this section of the state is centered, was that of Miss Marie Chandler, lovely young daughter of Mrs. J. E. Chandler and the late James E. Chandler, and Mr. Grover C. Orth, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Orth of Baltimore, Md., on December 27, at the Frst Baptist church of Pollock, La., at 9 o'clock in the morning, with the pastor, Rev. J. O. Fogleman, performing the double ring ceremony.

The setting was unusually beautiful with a vaulted arch entwined with southern smilax and studded with white chrysanthemums directly over the altar. A wedding bell was suspended from the arch, flanked with tall baskets overflowing with superb white chrysanthemums. Myriad cathedral tapers burned in the background.

While the guests were being seated by the ushers, Messrs. Dee and Herbert Chandler of Monroe, and Charles Earl Turrentine of Pollock, Greenwald's "The Arrival of the Guests" was beautifully rendered by Miss Maxine Kelly, violinist, Mr. R. H. Ferguson, clarinetist, and Mrs. Charles Till, pianist. Wagner's bridal chorus was used for the processional.

The bridegroom and his best man, his brother, Mr. Roland Orth of Baltimore, waited at the altar.

Jacquetta Chandler of Monroe, niece of the bride, gowned in a navy blue mohair taffeta frock with a poke bonnet to match, served as junior bridesmaid. She carried a colonial bouquet. She was followed by the bridesmaids, the bride's sisters, Miss Ottie Chandler of Shreveport, and Miss Ava Chandler of Pollock, who wore gowns of navy blue mohair taffeta with turbans of silver metallic cloth and silver sandals. They carried arm bouquets of pink carnations tied with pink tulle.

The matron of honor, Mrs. F. N. Chandler, of Shreveport, sister-in-law of the bride, was becomingly attired in a picturesque taffeta gown and gold sandals. She wore a wreath of gold flowers flaunting a short veil of maline and carried a bouquet of rose colored carnations.

The bride entered with her eldest brother, Mr. D. W. Chandler, of Monroe, who gave her in marriage. She wore a beautiful blue velvet high neckline model with self covered buttons down the center back to the waistline. The long sleeves, buttoned to the elbow with self covered buttons, had insets of metallic cloth. The full skirt, flaring from the hips, was floor length A smart silver metallic turban with short silver veil and an arm bouquet of shell pink bride's roses and valley lilies completed the distinctive toilette. For sentiment, the bride's bouquet was tied with the white ribbons adorning the wedding bouquet of the bridegroom's mother.

During the ceremony Handel's "Lieberstraum" was beautifully rendered and later Miss Jo Foster of Pollock sang "I Love You Truly."

A reception was held at the bride's home immediately following the ceremony.

The bride's mother was beautifully gowned in black crepe and wore a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Orth, the groom's mother, was attired in a rust colored frock with a pink carnation corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Orth left on a short motor trip to south Louisiana, and after their return will be at home to friends in Pollock. Mrs. Orth traveled in a handsome advanced spring model of gray with crimson and gray accessories.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Grover Orth, Sr., Mr. Roland Orth, Mrs. Dora Seff and Miss Virginia Harris of Baltimore, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lee, Jr., New Orleans; Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Chandler, Baton Rouge; Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Chandler, Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Jude Chandler, West Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Chandler and family, Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Flowers, Jena; Mr. W. K. Knight, Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gray, Mr. Pete Cerenello, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Lewis and daughters, and Miss Ruth Bratton of Alexandria; Mrs. R. Of interest to many friends is the marriage of Miss Verne Mae Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams of Swartz, La., to Vernon Martin Wolfe, son of Mrs. F. A. Wolfe and the late Mr. F. A. Wolfe. The wedding was quietly solemnized in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elton J. Wolfe in Shreveport, Saturday, December 19. Rev. R. D. Littleton of the Presbyterian church performed the ceremony in the presence of the relatives and close friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The living room was beautifully decorated with fern and flowers and the improvised altar was lighted with tall tapers in branched candelabra. Following the ceremony an informal reception was held in the dining room. Mrs. J. Primos, Mrs. Elton J. Wolfe and Mrs. F. A. Wolfe, mother of the groom, served from a table which was decorated in the bridal motif and centered with the large wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe will be at home in Swartz after the first of the year.

Mrs. Wolfe attended the Ouachita Parish High school in Monroe. Mr. Wolfe attended Byrd High school and Centenary college, where he was a well known athlete.

Miss Monaco Weds Eugene Bruscato

Of interest to many friends is the marriage of Miss Rosa Lee Monaco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Monaco, and Mr. Eugene Bruscato, at St. Matthew's Catholic church Sunday, December 27.

The ceremony was performed in a setting of beautiful flowers, with Rev. Father N. F. Vandegaer officiating, in the presence of friends and relatives.

Mr. Don Breitenmoser, organist, rendered a nuptial concert and while the guests were being seated by the ushers, Messrs. John Varino, John Carso and Rocco Monaco. The best man was Mr. Nick Bruscato.

The bridesmaids, Miss Katie Cascio, Miss Katherine Ferlito of Shreveport, and the maid of honor, Miss Katherine Monaco, wore beautiful blue taffeta models with silver accessories and carried arm bouquets of Talisman roses. The matron of honor, Mrs. A. Varino, wore a gown similar to those worn by the bridesmaids and carried an arm bouquet of Columbia roses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a beautiful white satin wedding gown with lace sleeves and high neckline. Self covered buttons formed the trimming in the back. A veil of illusion, caught at the hair, cap effect, with orange blossoms fell to the edge of the long train.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the C. S. C. hall, where dancing was continued until a late hour. The cutting of the wedding cake was one of the features of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruscato are both graduates of St. Matthew's Parochial school, class of 1933. Mr. Bruscato is also a graduate of Northeast Center of Louisiana State university. They are now occupying their new home on DeSiard.

Among the many out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. Leon Ferlito, Miss Katherine Ferlito, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Fulco, Mr. Frank Parrino, and Mr. Leon Candella of Shreveport; Mrs. Sam Paola, Mrs. Leon Cascio, Mrs. George Feducia, and Miss Mauda Adair of Winnsboro; Mrs. Charles Serio, Mr. Sam Delin and Mr. Sam Domico of Alexandria; Mrs. Rosa Papa, Mary and Pete Papa, Ester Papa, Vince Matassa and Rose Matassa, Mrs. Tony Mandina and daughter of Shreveport.

Guests Honored In Brooks Home

The home of Rev. and Mrs. Crayton S. Brooks was thronging with friends when they introduced their interesting house guests, Dr. Jacob J. Kennedy, house physician at the University of Alabama, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Tydings and their daughter, Miss Clara Mae Tydings, and Miss Margaret Nevins of Moberly, Mo.

Charming courtesies were extended throughout the afternoon by the hosts, who stood with their guests of honor the central figures.

The reception suite was in festive attire with crimson carnations and silver leaves overflowing from urns placed at vantage points.

The candlelit refreshment table, overlaid with Renaissance lace and centered with a spray of silver leaves in flaring silver bowl, attracted the guests to the dining room.

Mrs. L. H. Carter, wearing a lovely black velvet model, and Mrs. Merl Padgett, wearing handsome blue velvet model, presided over the silver coffee urns gracing either end of the table. Silver platters held a vast assortment of delicious confections.

Mrs. Brooks, a charming figure in black velvet, floor length model, introduced two talented entertainers, Beverly Glenn Martin and Carol Jean Williamson, who were enthusiastically received.

Wedding Plans Made By Miss O'Donnell

Marriage Of Popular Girl To Frederick Seaman Will Take Place At Frances Hotel January 11

The attention of society is focused at this time on a brilliant nuptial event which will claim in marriage Miss Mary Louise O'Donnell and Mr. Frederick Seaman on January 11.

Miss O'Donnell has completed all the details for her wedding, which will take place on the terrace of the Frances hotel, with Rev. Father N. F. Vandegaer of St. Matthew's church, officiating.

Mrs. K. W. Brown of Oklahoma City, will act as matron of honor, and Miss Louise Morrison as maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Suzanne Hirsch and Miss O'Donnell's attractive sister, Mrs. James R. Leake of Opelousas. The ring bearer will be Clayton Bennett and the flower girl will be Amelia Leake.

Mr. Seaman will be attended by his brother, Mr. Gaines Seaman of New Orleans, and the groomsmen will be Messrs. Frank Breese, Jack Alford, Prioleau Ellis, Laurence Alexander and Dr. Prentice Gray, Jr.

Mrs. Clyde Sanders will be the soloist, Mr. Don Breitenmoser the accompanist, and Mrs. Dean Selig the violinist.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, Dr. R. W. O'Donnell.

Many charming pre-nuptial affairs have been planned for Miss O'Donnell and Mr. Seaman, including the tea this afternoon with Mrs. James C. Liner, Mrs. F. C. Bennett and Miss Melba Liner as hostesses.

INDUSTRIAL AND BUSINESS REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES NORTH LOUISIANA'S COMMERCIAL CENTER

JAMES SHOP HAD SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Machine Works Reports Best Business In History; New Equipment Added

The James Machine Works, 1515 DeSiard street, has just closed the most prosperous and successful year in its history, H. M. James, owner of the company, announced yesterday.

The James concern, which employed 15 to 18 men throughout the entire year in its spacious new plant, handled a greater volume of business than in any previous year and Mr. James is expecting an even greater year in 1937. Indications point to evenly increased prosperity throughout the nation, Mr. James said, and the Monroe territory particularly gives promise of enjoying excellent business conditions.

One reason for the increased business at the James plant is their larger and better equipped shop, with ample parking space around the plant. The new brick building houses the latest equipment, including an enormous traveling crane which transports large and heavy machinery from the front door to the back of the shop, thus eliminating considerable work in unloading cumbersome material from trucks of their customers.

The welding and blacksmith shop at the James plant is most modern and up-to-date. The equipment consists of four heavy duty electric welding machines, one of which is portable and can be carried anywhere. In addition, the James plant has several oxy-acetylene welding outfits. One recent addition to this department is a power hammer for use in heavy blacksmith work.

The welding department has developed a method of successfully electric welding cast iron motor blocks, pumps and other parts. This has resulted in great economy to owners of automobiles and other machines that have been damaged by freezing as the welding can be done without the expense of dismantling parts.

Many outstanding and unusual jobs were handled by the James machine shop department during the past year. Foremost among such jobs was the boring out of a large number of usually large iron castings for the paper mill now being erected at Crossett, Ark. An error was made in their New York state factory on these castings, and one of the James boring castings over six feet in diameter was able to do this job, thus saving them the delay and expense of returning them to the factory.

The James plant is called upon to execute many unusual contracts and the local concern is proud that it has built an ever-growing list of satisfied clients by successfully completing the most difficult jobs.

NEW WILLYS CAR PROVES SENSATION

America And Europe Acclaim 1937 Model; Boyce-Kendall Shows Car

All Europe, which has been waiting for some manufacturer to design an automobile that provides, in addition to economy, great roominess and good looks, now is clamoring for the new Willys 37 as the car that suits the needs abroad, according to Leslie Hooley, European field representative for Willys-Overland Motors, Inc.

Mr. Hooley, who has been associated with Willys-Overland Motors for 15 years, arrived in Toledo this week to ascertain what can be done to increase deliveries of the new cars abroad.

"The new Willys has been given a great deal of publicity in Europe," Mr. Hooley said, "and Europeans have been keen to possess a Willys because their own manufacturers do not build the same efficient, comfortable type at anywhere near its low price.

"Dealer applications are pouring in from all over the continent to Willys distributors in the various European countries to such an extent that the situation has developed into a race against time. The race has become so intent that some applicants for dealerships have resorted to the trans-atlantic telephone to make applications direct to the Willys-Overland plant in Toledo.

"Economy transportation is paramount in Europe because of the high price of fuel and now that Willys-Overland is offering a car that gives up to 35 miles per gallon of gasoline (40 miles to the imperial gallon used in Europe) and in addition provides a motor car that has a standard tread, long and wide bodies, and distinctive lines, it has found the solution to European motorists' transportation problems.

"I predict that the sales volumes of the Willys 37 cars in Europe will be increased tenfold during the next 12 months as compared with sales there during the last year."

First shipments of export cars abroad have been going forward this week, Ralph J. Archer, vice-president and manager of the Willys Export corporation, said today.

"We have started shipments this week to New York where the Willys 37's are being loaded aboard ocean liners bound for various foreign destinations and by the end of the month we will have filled initial orders from 56 countries," Mr. Archer said.

"Dealer applications are being received daily from all parts of the world and our office has resumed its old-time activity."

Production at the Toledo plant of the Willys-Overland began three weeks ago and the Los Angeles plant got under operation December 15. Multi-shift operation at Toledo are scheduled to begin next month with additional increases in production scheduled for February.

Boyce-Kendall garage, Monroe dealer, recently received its first shipment of these sensational Willys cars, which are now on display.

PRESIDENTIAL SWEEPSTAKES WINNER

C. M. WOMEN PREFER NEW DODGE CAR

Feminine Drivers Recognize Achievements Of Makers Of Modern Cars

Observers who have attended automobile shows for many years and thus have learned to analyze the mass interest of great crowds of visitors, confess to being impressed by the alertness with which the American women have followed automobile development and become controlling factors in the purchase of thousands of motor cars.

This manifestation is of relatively recent origin and was brought about chiefly by the success with which the motor car itself was improved to the point where its operation no longer called for physical stamina of the masculine type. The day that saw the abolition of the starting crank also marked the emancipation of woman from the back seat.

One of the things that gives woman a voice and often the vote in the choice of the new model family car, is her more intimate understanding of such matters as style, upholstering, seating comfort, and colors. The present color trend, in furniture, clothing, home decorations, etc., is the expression of an aroused color consciousness promoted almost wholly by women. To woman's realization that well selected colors please the eye, manufacturers and merchants shrewdly added the observation that colors also make goods more attractive to large groups of buyers.

The perfection of new lacquers and new finishing methods, enabling motorists to choose their car colors almost with the freedom with which they might pick the colors of a suit, hat or scarf, has done a good deal to arouse active automobile driving and buying interest in women.

It is the woman whose urge toward individuality and desire to own things that are recognized as different and uncommon who finds satisfaction in the liberty with which she may switch from the present drab car to one finished in a new and attractive color combination. Many a sale that would remain in the balance is clinched with the aid of the color chart and the assurance to Mrs. Jones that her car can be totally different from the cars owned by friends and neighbors.

Another factor, which makes the new models of considerable interest to the woman motorist is represented by safety features that have been built into the interior of the 1937 lines and appeal with special force to motorists traveling with children.

In the front comparts of Dodge cars, for instance, such details as switch buttons, control knobs and other projections, are recessed. The result is an instrument panel presenting an unbroken surface from which nothing protrudes. The small crank operating the windshield is made to fold upon itself, the switches controlling the lighting and throttle setting are incorporated in the lower curve of the instrument panel. Even the ignition key is set back into a niche.

Door handles, against which children might be thrown in romping about the car interior, are rounded off, offering no points. The backs of the front seats are provided with a special "safety roll," incorporating a spong rubber padding protecting rear seat occupants from remotely possible injury.

INDUSTRIAL AND BUSINESS REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES NORTH LOUISIANA'S COMMERCIAL CENTER

JAMES SHOP HAD SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Machine Works Reports Best Business In History; New Equipment Added

The James Machine Works, 1515 DeSiard street, has just closed the most prosperous and successful year in its history, H. M. James, owner of the company, announced yesterday.

The James concern, which employed 15 to 18 men throughout the entire year in its spacious new plant, handled a greater volume of business than in any previous year and Mr. James is expecting an even greater year in 1937. Indications point to evenly increased prosperity throughout the nation, Mr. James said, and the Monroe territory particularly gives promise of enjoying excellent business conditions.

One reason for the increased business at the James plant is their larger and better equipped shop, with ample parking space around the plant. The new brick building houses the latest equipment, including an enormous traveling crane which transports large and heavy machinery from the front door to the back of the shop, thus eliminating considerable work in unloading cumbersome material from trucks of their customers.

The welding and blacksmith shop at the James plant is most modern and up-to-date. The equipment consists of four heavy duty electric welding machines, one of which is portable and can be carried anywhere. In addition, the James plant has several oxy-acetylene welding outfits. One recent addition to this department is a power hammer for use in heavy blacksmith work.

The welding department has developed a method of successfully electric welding cast iron motor blocks, pumps and other parts. This has resulted in great economy to owners of automobiles and other machines that have been damaged by freezing as the welding can be done without the expense of dismantling parts.

Many outstanding and unusual jobs were handled by the James machine shop department during the past year. Foremost among such jobs was the boring out of a large number of usually large iron castings for the paper mill now being erected at Crossett, Ark. An error was made in their New York state factory on these castings, and one of the James boring castings over six feet in diameter was able to do this job, thus saving them the delay and expense of returning them to the factory.

The James plant is called upon to execute many unusual contracts and the local concern is proud that it has built an ever-growing list of satisfied clients by successfully completing the most difficult jobs.

NEW WILLYS CAR PROVES SENSATION

America And Europe Acclaim 1937 Model; Boyce-Kendall Shows Car

All Europe, which has been waiting for some manufacturer to design an automobile that provides, in addition to economy, great roominess and good looks, now is clamoring for the new Willys 37 as the car that suits the needs abroad, according to Leslie Hooley, European field representative for Willys-Overland Motors, Inc.

Mr. Hooley, who has been associated with Willys-Overland Motors for 15 years, arrived in Toledo this week to ascertain what can be done to increase deliveries of the new cars abroad.

"The new Willys has been given a great deal of publicity in Europe," Mr. Hooley said, "and Europeans have been keen to possess a Willys because their own manufacturers do not build the same efficient, comfortable type at anywhere near its low price.

"Dealer applications are pouring in from all over the continent to Willys distributors in the various European countries to such an extent that the situation has developed into a race against time. The race has become so intent that some applicants for dealerships have resorted to the transatlantic telephone to make applications direct to the Willys-Overland plant in Toledo.

"Economy transportation is paramount in Europe because of the high price of fuel and now that Willys-Overland is offering a car that gives up to 35 miles per gallon of gasoline (40 miles to the imperial gallon used in Europe) and in addition provides a motor car that has a standard tread, long and wide bodies, and distinctive lines, it has found the solution to European motorists' transportation problems.

"I predict that the sales volumes of the Willys 37 cars in Europe will be increased tenfold during the next 12 months as compared with sales there during the last year."

First shipments of export cars abroad have been going forward this week, Ralph J. Archer, vice-president and manager of the Willys Export corporation, said today.

"We have started shipments this week to New York where the Willys 37's are being loaded aboard ocean liners bound for various foreign destinations and by the end of the month we will have filled initial orders from 56 countries," Mr. Archer said.

"Dealer applications are being received daily from all parts of the world and our office has resumed its old-time activity."

Production at the Toledo plant of the Willys-Overland began three weeks ago and the Los Angeles plant got under operation December 15. Multi-shift operation at Toledo are scheduled to begin next month with additional increases in production scheduled for February.

Boyce-Kendall garage, Monroe dealer, recently received its first shipment of these sensational Willys cars, which are now on display.

PRESIDENTIAL SWEEPSTAKES WINNER

C. M. Stewart, 410 South Second street, was one of five persons in the United States who were awarded Studebaker President Eights in the recent Presidential Sweepstakes sponsored by the Studebaker corporation. At the top, Mr. Stewart, the smiling gentleman nearest the radio, is shown listening to the good news as his friends crowd around him. And below, Mr. Stewart is proudly exhibiting his prize, which was driven to his home by "Stickey" Steele, manager of the Central Auto company, just before the announcement of the winners was made over a coast-to-coast radio hookup.

WOMEN PREFER NEW DODGE CAR

Feminine Drivers Recognize Achievements Of Makers Of Modern Cars

Observers who have attended automobile shows for many years and thus have learned to analyze the mass interest of great crowds of visitors, confess to being impressed by the alertness with which the American women have followed automobile development and become controlling factors in the purchase of thousands of motor cars.

This manifestation is of relatively recent origin and was brought about chiefly by the success with which the motor car itself was improved to the point where its operation no longer called for physical stamina of the masculine type. The day that saw the abolition of the starting crank also marked the emancipation of woman from the back seat.

One of the things that gives woman a voice and often the vote in the choice of the new model family car, is her more intimate understanding of such matters as style, upholstering, seating comfort, and colors. The present color trend, in furniture, clothing, home decorations, etc., is the expression of an aroused color consciousness promoted almost wholly by women. To woman's realization that well selected colors please the eye, manufacturers and merchants shrewdly added the observation that colors also make goods more attractive to large groups of buyers.

The perfection of new lacquers and new finishing methods, enabling motorists to choose their car colors almost with the freedom with which they might pick the colors of a suit, hat or scarf, has done a good deal to arouse active automobile driving and buying interest in women.

It is the woman whose urge toward individuality and desire to own things that are recognized as different and uncommon who finds satisfaction in the liberty with which she may switch from the present drab car to one finished in a new and attractive color combination. Many a sale that would remain in the balance is clinched with the aid of the color chart and the assurance to Mrs. Jones that her car can be totally different from the cars owned by friends and neighbors.

Another factor, which makes the new models of considerable interest to the woman motorist is represented by safety features that have been built into the interior of the 1937 lines and appeal with special force to motorists traveling with children.

In the front comparts of Dodge cars, for instance, such details as switch buttons, control knobs and other projections, are recessed. The result is an instrument panel presenting an unbroken surface from which nothing protrudes. The small crank operating the windshield is made to fold upon itself, the switches controlling the lighting and throttle setting are incorporated in the lower curve of the instrument panel. Even the ignition key is set back into a niche.

Door handles, against which children might be thrown in romping about the car interior, are rounded off, offering no points. The backs of the front seats are provided with a special "safety roll," incorporating a spong rubber padding protecting rear seat occupants from remotely possible injury.

Mae West Scores Again In Hilarious Barnyard Comedy

Star's New Picture At Paramount

Stellar Cast Supports Curvaceous Blonde In 'Go West, Young Man'

MAE WEST among the cows and chickens! Romance in a barnyard and love among the hayricks! That's "Go West Young Man," Miss West's latest starring vehicle with Warren William, Randolph Scott, Lyle Talbot and many others, which came to the Paramount theater last night and treated the audience to one of of the most hilarious and clever comedies of recent years.

With Miss West cast as a high strung and romantic movie actress enjoined by her contract from indulging in romance, and with Warren William as the press agent who accompanies her to make sure she doesn't violate the contract, "Go West Young Man" deals with the curvaceous actress' attempts to find love and William's efforts to frustrate her.

After a personal appearance in Washington, Miss West meets Talbot, an old flame, and makes a date with him. This is "crabbed" by William who invites the press to the tete-a-tete. She promises to meet Talbot in Harrisburg where she is to make her next appearance. On the way her car breaks down and she is forced to put up at the farm of Alice Brady while Scott, a mechanic, fixes it. She is furious at the delay but when she sees the handsome mechanic she decides to remain.

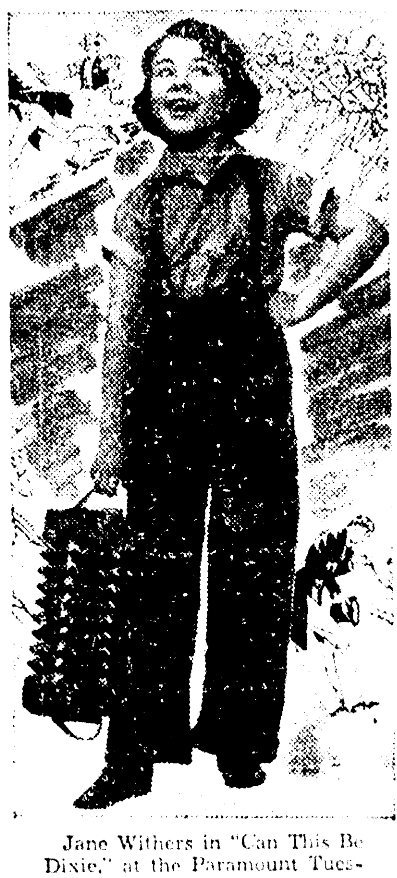
She learns that Scott is working on an invention for talking pictures and she accepts his invitation to inspect the invention in his workshop. He fails to fall for her obvious play for him. Tongues begin to babble, and Margaret Perry, Scott's sweetheart, is broken-hearted at the turn of events.

William prevents a private meeting between Miss West and Scott by inviting the entire countryside to the farm to get the star's autograph. Later, when Miss West comes to Scott's room to inspect his plans for the invention, he breaks it up again.

In the meantime Talbot has been trying to locate Miss West. He gets the impression that she has been kidnaped and an alarm is broadcast for her. Isabel Jewell, maid-of-all-work at the Brady farm, hears the alarm. She gets her boy friend to go for the police, believing William to be the kidnaper. The police arrive and in order to get even with William, Miss West tells them he kidnaped her. With her three swains around her, Miss West makes her choice. It wouldn't be fair to tell who it was nor why, since the solution is one of the high spots in the delightful comedy.

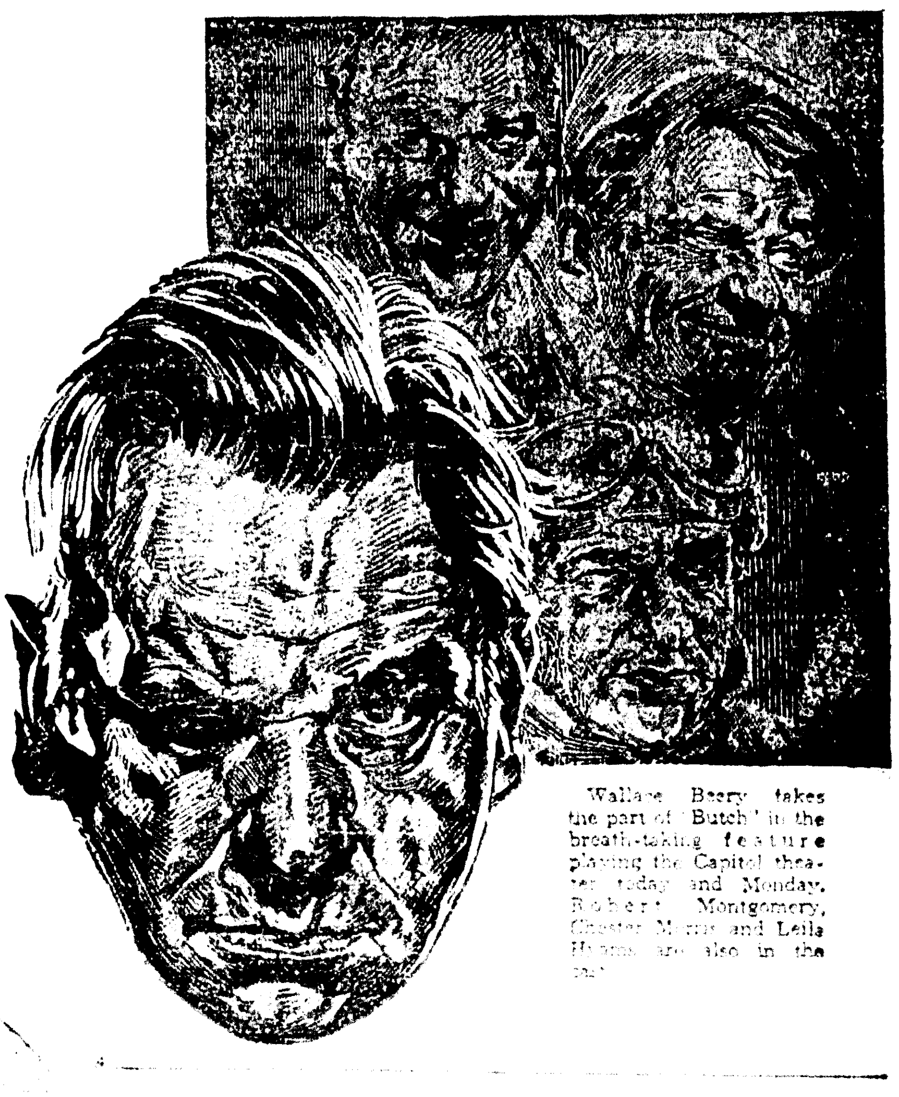
Especially worthy of note is the work of Miss Jewell.

Mae West, curvaceous blonde star, will be seen today and Monday at the Paramount theater in her latest comedy, "Go West Young Man."



Jane Withers in "Can This Be Dixie," at the Paramount Tuesday and Wednesday.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Our Relations," a fast, furious, funny full length feature playing the Paramount theater next Thursday and Friday.



Wallace Beery takes the part of "Butch" in the breath-taking feature playing the Capitol theater today and Monday. Robert Montgomery, Chester Morris and Leila Hyams are also in the cast.

MRS. J. C. SALMON, WIFE OF RICHLAND COURT CLERK, DIES

RAYVILLE, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—Mrs. J. C. Salmon, 64, wife of the Richland parish clerk of court and one of the most prominent women of the community, died at her home here early Saturday. She had been in her usual health until Wednesday when she was suddenly stricken. The funeral will be held at the Baptist church here Sunday at 2:30 p.m., and interment will be made in a cemetery here.

Mrs. Salmon was born in Raymond, Miss., and came to Rayville to reside in 1903. She was actively identified with Baptist church circles and was president of the missionary society for 20 years or more, and she also was active in club and community work.

Surviving are the husband, one daughter, Mrs. H. J. Stodgill of Rayville, one son, J. C. Salmon, Jr., of Little Rock, Ark., and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. May Lundy, New York City; Mrs. Maggie Justice and Mrs. Eva Shaw, Washington, D. C.; J. T. Tingren, Tucson, Ariz.; Dr. Frank Goodwin and Will Goodwin, Raymond, Miss., and a number of nephews and nieces.

The Capitol plays "The Last of the Mohicans" next Tuesday. Randolph Scott, Binnie Barnes and Henry Wilcoxon have the stellar roles.

Zane Grey's "Arizona Mahoney" will be seen at the Capitol next Wednesday. The cast includes Joe Cook, Robert Cummings, June Martel, Larry Crabbe and John Miljan.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY TEFLIS GROTTO

O. D. Gowins was elected monarch of Teflis Grotto at the annual meeting on Friday night. Other officers elected were: William Perhamus, chief justice; E. O. Ratcliff, master of ceremonies; Henry Haas, treasurer; F. M. Culver, secretary; F. A. Patterson, venerable prophet; W. C. Fisher, marshal; J. M. Marshall, captain of guard; F. L. Speakman, sentinel; Dr. B. M. McKoin, trustee.

Members expressed their appreciation of the services rendered the past three years by Henry C. Ray, Jr., as monarch.

Plans wre tentatively outlined for the holding of the 1937 convention of the Southwest Grotto association and at the next meeting in February the group will discuss further the plans for the holding of the meeting here which it is expected will be largely attended.

BECOMES ASSESSOR

JENA, La., Jan. 2—(Special)—On Saturday, W. W. Brewton took office as assessor for LaSalle parish, which position he was elected to in the past January election. Mr. Brewton, a banker, holds his first politically-elected office, though he has been active in politics in LaSalle parish for a good many years. He is well suited for the position, due to his knowledge of the land and people of the parish. Mr. Brewton defeated W. L. Parker in the primary election last year, whom he succeeded in the office.

SCHOOLS TO RE-OPEN

FERRIDAY, La., Jan. 2—(Special)—Catahoula parish schools, which have been closed for the Christmas holidays since December 18, will re-open Monday, according to an announcement made by J. S. Burris, parish superintendent of education.

Buck Jones and Louise Brooks in a scene from "Empty Saddles," a western feature playing the Capitol theater next Saturday.

ELECTION COMPLETED BY COMMERCE GROUP

The election of members of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe closed New Year's day, when ballots were required to be returned properly marked to the office of the chamber.

Tabulation of the returns was being made Saturday and announcement of the outcome will be made Monday.

With the junior and senior boards completed, each will meet in a few days time to elect officers who will serve during the ensuing year.

WELFARE BOARD NAMED

JENA, La., Jan. 2—(Special)—At a called meeting of the LaSalle parish police jury this week, five LaSalle parish citizens were chosen members of the LaSalle parish welfare board. The board is to assist Dick Stewart, director of the parish welfare unit, in handling the old age pensions and other social security matters. The five are: L. U. Manchester, president of the police jury; Mrs. George Hayes of Urania, Clarence Doyle of Good-Pine, J. E. Harris of Olla, E. N. Duke, Jena. Also at the meeting J. H. Bradford, secretary of the jury, was authorized to purchase necessary parts for the tractor owned by ward four, which tractor is to be used for work on the highways throughout the parish.

TO ELECT SUPERINTENDENT

JENA, La., Jan. 2—(Special)—In their regular quarterly meeting on Monday, the LaSalle parish school board will elect a superintendent of education for this parish. At the present, J. D. Russell, Jr., is holding the position. The superintendent is also secretary-treasurer of the board. From all reports, Mr. Russell will again be nominated to carry on in the position for another four-year term. At the meeting a president of the board will also be elected. The present official is Q. T. Hartzner of ward two.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS WAR VETERANS' DANCE

A large number of veterans and their friends attended the New Year's dance [illegible] of the Rainey J. H. [illegible] post of Veterans of Foreign Wars at the new quarters located on De[illegible] street [illegible] west of the S[illegible].

Among the guests present were Senator and Mrs. James A. Noe. After [illegible] of the new quarters, [illegible] well pleased that he [illegible] check for $25, which with the proceeds of the dance will be devoted [illegible].

C. A. H[illegible], commander, announced that [illegible] will be held every Friday [illegible]. He stated that [illegible] desires to thank [illegible] assisted in the removal of [illegible]'s headquarters to the present [illegible].

TO AMEND BUDGET

JENA, La., Jan. 2—(Special)—When the LaSalle parish police jury meets Monday in regular quarterly session its budget is to be amended to take care of the $1[illegible] estimated amount to be derived of the gasoline tax in 1937. The money is to be used to defray LaSalle's portion of handling the parish welfare unit and building farm-to-market roads. Arrangements have already been made for the Works Progress administration to furnish part of the materials and labor to be put on these roads. Due to these arrangements the parish will have only a small amount to pay on the graveling and [illegible] of several miles of roads in 1937. The officers will not be [illegible] until July and serve for [illegible] year term.

Mae West Scores Again In Hilarious Barnyard Comedy

Star's New Picture At Paramount

Stellar Cast Supports Curvaceous Blonde In 'Go West, Young Man'

MAE WEST among the cows and chickens! Romance in a barnyard and love among the hayricks! That's "Go West Young Man," Miss West's latest starring vehicle with Warren William, Randolph Scott, Lyle Talbot and many others, which came to the Paramount theater last night and treated the audience to one of of the most hilarious and clever comedies of recent years.

With Miss West cast as a high strung and romantic movie actress enjoined by her contract from indulging in romance, and with Warren William as the press agent who accompanies her to make sure she doesn't violate the contract, "Go West Young Man" deals with the curvaceous actress' attempts to find love and William's efforts to frustrate her.

After a personal appearance in Washington, Miss West meets Talbot, an old flame, and makes a date with him. This is "crabbed" by William who invites the press to the tete-a-tete. She promises to meet Talbot in Harrisburg where she is to make her next appearance. On the way her car breaks down and she is forced to put up at the farm of Alice Brady while Scott, a mechanic, fixes it. She is furious at the delay but when she sees the handsome mechanic she decides to remain.

She learns that Scott is working on an invention for talking pictures and she accepts his invitation to inspect the invention in his workshop. He fails to fall for her obvious play for him. Tongues begin to babble, and Margaret Perry, Scott's sweetheart, is broken-hearted at the turn of events.

William prevents a private meeting between Miss West and Scott by inviting the entire countryside to the farm to get the star's autograph. Later, when Miss West comes to Scott's room to inspect his plans for the invention, he breaks it up again.

In the meantime Talbot has been trying to locate Miss West. He gets the impression that she has been kidnaped and an alarm is broadcast for her. Isabel Jewell, maid-of-all-work at the Brady farm, hears the alarm. She gets her boy friend to go for the police, believing William to be the kidnaper. The police arrive and in order to get even with William, Miss West tells them he kidnaped her. With her three swains around her, Miss West makes her choice. It wouldn't be fair to tell who it was nor why, since the solution is one of the high spots in the delightful comedy.

Especially worthy of note is the work of Miss Jewell.

Mae West, curvaceous blonde star, will be seen today and Monday at the Paramount theater in her latest comedy, "Go West Young Man."

Jane Withers in "Can This Be Dixie," at the Paramount Tuesday and Wednesday.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Our Relations," a fast, furious, funny full length feature playing the Paramount theater next Thursday and Friday.

Wallace Beery takes the part of "Butch" in the breath-taking feature playing the Capitol theater today and Monday. Robert Montgomery, Chester Morris and Leila Hyams are also in the cast.

MRS. J. C. SALMON, WIFE OF RICHLAND COURT CLERK, DIES

RAYVILLE, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—Mrs. J. C. Salmon, 64, wife of the Richland parish clerk of court and one of the most prominent women of the community, died at her home here early Saturday. She had been in her usual health until Wednesday when she was suddenly stricken. The funeral will be held at the Baptist church here Sunday at 2:30 p.m., and interment will be made in a cemetery here.

Mrs. Salmon was born in Raymond, Miss., and came to Rayville to reside in 1903. She was actively identified with Baptist church circles and was president of the missionary society for 20 years or more, and she also was active in club and community work.

Surviving are the husband, one daughter, Mrs. H. J. Stodgill of Rayville, one son, J. C. Salmon, Jr., of Little Rock, Ark., and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. May Lundy, New York City; Mrs. Maggie Justice and Mrs. Eva Shaw, Washington, D. C.; J. T. Thigpen, Tucson, Ariz.; Dr. Frank Goodwin and Will Goodwin, Raymond, Miss., and a number of nephews and nieces.

The Capitol plays "The Last of the Mohicans" next Tuesday. Randolph Scott, Binnie Barnes and Henry Wilcoxon have the stellar roles.

Zane Grey's "Arizona Mahoney" will be seen at the Capitol next Wednesday. The cast includes Joe Cook, Robert Cummings, June Martel, Larry Crabbe and John Miljan.

A sensational scene from the Capitol's Thursday feature "Fugitive in the Sky," with Warren Hull and Jean Muir.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY TEFLIS GROTTO

O. D. Gowins was elected monarch of Teflis Grotto at the annual meeting on Friday night. Other officers elected were: William Perhamus, chief justice; E. O. Ratcliff, master of ceremonies; Henry Haas, treasurer; F. M. Culver, secretary; F. A. Patterson, venerable prophet; W. C. Fisher, marshal; J. M. Marshall, captain of guard; F. L. Speakman, sentinel; Dr. B. M. McKoin, trustee.

Members expressed their appreciation of the services rendered the past three years by Henry C. Ray, Jr., as monarch.

Plans wre tentatively outlined for the holding of the 1937 convention of the Southwest Grotto association and at the next meeting in February the group will discuss further the plans for the holding of the meeting here which it is expected will be largely attended.

BECOMES ASSESSOR

JENA, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—On Saturday, W. W. Brewton took office as assessor for LaSalle parish, which position he was elected to in the past January election. Mr. Brewton, a banker, holds his first politically-elected office, though he has been active in politics in LaSalle parish for a good many years. He is well suited for the position, due to his knowledge of the land and people of the parish. Mr. Brewton defeated W. L. Parker in the primary election last year, whom he succeeded in the office.

SCHOOLS TO RE-OPEN

FERRIDAY, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—Catahoula parish schools, which have been closed for the Christmas holidays since December 18, will re-open Monday, according to an announcement made by J. S. Burris, parish superintendent of education.

Buck Jones and Louise Brooks in a scene from "Empty Saddles," a western feature playing the Capitol theater next Saturday.

ELECTION COMPLETED BY COMMERCE GROUP

The election of members of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe closed New Year's day, when ballots were required to be returned properly marked to the office of the chamber.

Tabulation of the returns was being made Saturday and announcement of the outcome will be made Monday.

With the junior and senior boards completed, each will meet in a few days time to elect officers who will serve during the ensuing year.

WELFARE BOARD NAMED

JENA, Li., Jan. 2.—(Special)—At a called meeting of the LaSalle parish police jury this week, five LaSalle parish citizens were chosen members of the LaSalle parish welfare board. The board is to assist Dick Stewart, director of the parish welfare unit, in handling the old age pensions and other social security matters. The five are: L. U. Manchester, president of the police jury; Mrs. George Hayes of Urania, Clarence Doyle of Good-Pine, J. E. Harris of Olla, E. N. Duke, Jena. Also at the meeting, J. H. Bradford, secretary of the jury, was authorized to purchase necessary parts for the tractor owned by ward four, which tractor is to be used for work on the highways throughout the parish.

TO ELECT SUPERINTENDENT

JENA, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—In their regular quarterly meeting on Monday, the LaSalle parish school board will elect a superintendent of education for this parish. At the present, J. D. Russell, Jr., is holding the position. The superintendent is also secretary-treasurer of the board. From all reports, Mr. Russell will again be nominated to carry on in the position for another four-year term. At the meeting, a president of the board will also be elected. The present official is Q. T. Hardtner of ward two.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS WAR VETERANS' DANCE

A large number of veterans and their friends attended the New Year's dance and open house of the Rodney J. Hobbs post of Veterans of Foreign Wars at the new quarters located on DeSiard street, immediately west of the Siegle theater.

Among the guests present were Senator and Mrs. James A. Noe. After an inspection of the new quarters, the former was so well pleased that he presented a check for $25, which with the proceeds of the dance will be devoted to the relief fund.

C. A. Hunt, past commander, announced that a dance will be held every Friday night. He stated that through the press he desires to "thank all comrades who so ably assisted in the removal of the post's headquarters to its present site."

TO AMEND BUDGET

JENA, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—When the LaSalle parish police jury meets Monday in regular quarterly session, its budget is to be amended to take care of the $13,000 estimated amount to be derived of the gasoline tax in 1937. The money is to be used to defray LaSalle's portion of handling the parish welfare unit and building farm-to-market roads. Arrangements have already been made for the Works Progress administration to furnish part of the materials and labor to be put on these roads. Due to these arrangements, the parish will have only a small amount to pay on the graveling and grading of several miles of roads in 1937. The officers will not be elected by the board until July and serve for only a one year term.

CLASSES RESUMED

WINNSBORO, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—All schools in Franklin parish re-opened on Wednesday, December 30, after having been closed for the Christmas holidays.

'Big House' Comes Back To Capitol

Stirring Penitentiary Film Presents Dramatic Story With Fine Cast

"THE BIG HOUSE," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-talking drama of penitentiary riots, now playing at the Capitol theater, might, in a way, be compared to "The Big Parade." Three central characters work out a dramatic story against seething hates and a desperate prison riot quelled with machine guns and tanks. A sympathetic love story of a boy and a girl is adroitly woven into the thrills, realisms, horrors and heart throbs of the massive play.

The three central characters are played by Chester Morris, Wallace Beery and Robert Montgomery, as three cellmates in the penitentiary. Friendship, jealousy, the corrosion of souls, and regeneration through love and turmoil are elements of the picture.

George Hill directed the production with the deft actualities that marked "Tell It to the Marines" and "The Flying Fleet." The story is by Frances Marion.

Leila Hyams plays the heroine, and the cast includes Lewis Stone, Karl Dane, George Marion, J. C. Nugent, De Witt Jennings and Claire MacDowell. More than a thousand ex-service men took part in the prison yard and cell house scenes.

The thrills include gun battles, tanks battering down steel doors to quell the rioters, the mad demonstration in the cell house, the dramatic death scene of Wallace Beery. Remarkable recording and effective light and shadows in photography do much to heighten the effect of the unusual photoplay.

Crows have been known to fly as high as 6,000 feet.

OFFICERS OF EASTERN STAR ASSUME DUTIES

The installation of officers of Dixie chapter No. 179, Order of the Eastern Star, was conducted the past week in the lodge rooms by Miss May Gardner, grand Adah of the grand chapter of Louisiana as installing officer. Others who assisted were Mrs. Mary Wilder, marshal; Mrs. Avarice Simpson, chaplain, and Mrs. Georgie Cornett, organist.

Officers installed were: Mrs. Blanche Parsons, worthy matron; Earl Johnson, worthy patron; Mrs. Eddie Carkuff, associate matron; F. K. Carkuff, associate patron; Miss May Gardner, secretary; Mrs. Mildred Schraeder, treasurer; Mrs. Mary Castles, conductress; Mrs. Flo Ham, associate conductress; Mrs. Evelyn Sackett, chaplain; Mrs. Evelyn Chilton, marshal; Mrs. Georgie Cornett, organist; Mrs. Willie Pumphrey, Adah; Mrs. Annie Douglas, Ruth; Mrs. Bessie Wood, Esther; Mrs. Emma Zufall, Martha; Mrs. Myrtle Evans, Electa; Mrs. Irene Goza, warden; Fred Speakman, sentinel.

arlo Stellicci had fled Bobbs Neck thout considering consequences, er than that he was likely to go to ion by remaining. Neither his in-d father nor Tony had been an n in his mind; he had paid so little attention to his brother and parent so many years that it was only ural to ignore their interest in his cipitate flight.

Carlo had paused long enough in his ght to telephone a warning to his rage employes that their secret was t. This kindness, however, was ompted only by his desire to have e two meet him in the city with rtain monies and property secreted the garage. They repaid him by rrying the little hoard to New York d, instead of joining Carlo where waited at a hastily appointed rendezvous, continuing their journey in ight to farther destinations.

Carlo at length surmised the truth. e had been cheated.

Sadly he counted the money in his ocket, sadly abandoned his car, fearg the emblem of guilt now etched y police intelligence across its license lates.

And he vanished among New York's nillions for a period of meditation.

During this lonely time he even eglected his four acquaintances in he city, for he felt a vast distaste for hem. When, at last, he emerged from iding, although he had never been alled the answer to any one's prayer, he did indeed appear at the moment when profane questions were being asked as to his whereabouts.

It was on a Saturday afternoon. Three of his friends were gathered in the apartment which Carlo had frequently visited. They were rolling dice without enthusiasm.

At a proper signal from the doorbell one of the men opened the door and a fourth man entered. He it was who had acted as chairman of the last meeting which Carlo attended in these rooms.

"Well, I found out something," he said, slamming the door. "That Stellicci rat has beat it. That's why we haven't got any answer when we called his garage. The two tramps who worked for him have scrammed too, I guess. I telephoned the police out there from a booth at the corner; told them I was American Express and we couldn't find Stellicci to deliver a package of auto parts. Asked them if they could tell me anything. The cop I talked with said they'd like to know where he is, too. So I guess that tells the story. He got scared somehow and ran.

"The four of us can do the job. One car instead of two. One man outside, three inside. What was the layout Stellicci gave us? Park at that door on the side street, he said. Come out that door, into the car, straight down that street. What was the next turn?"

No one remembered the answer. They had depended on Carlo and his men more than they had appreciated. And all knew the danger of attempting the job without an easy route for escape.

They grew profane as they called on Providence to deliver Carlo Stellicci into their hands.

And then the doorbell rang with the answer to their supplications. Carlo Stellicci entered. An abject Carlo. A needy Carlo.

A Carlo who knew not where else to look for funds.

When the Osborn car stopped in front of the house, Bruce McDougall was ready. Turning out the lights and pulling on his overcoat, he ran downstairs, patting his pockets in a quick inventory. Keys, cigarets, change, wallet—darn the luck! He had forgotten to go to the bank this morning and cash a check on his new account. Now he had only a bit of silver, and faced a Sunday broke. What if Dorothy Osborn cared to see a movie tonight.

But as he walked toward the car he remembered having heard someone—Mike, probably—remark that the Bobbs Neck bank was open on Saturday evenings, largely for the convenience of shopkeepers who wished to deposit the receipts of their heaviest selling day. He'd ask Dorothy to stop at the bank; it would take only a moment.

Introduced to Mrs. Osborn, McDougall climbed in beside Dorothy and she turned the car.

"We have just one stop to make," she said. "I hope you won't mind waiting a moment while Mother gets something on Main street.

"As a matter of fact," said McDougall, "I have an errand, too, and I'll do it while you're stopping for Mrs. Osborn. I want to dash into the bank."

Bobbs Neck was at dinner, and Main street, soon to be busy with Saturday night shoppers and movie-goers, was comparatively deserted, so that Dorothy found parking space in front of the bank. McDougall helped Mrs. Osborn out of the car and she disappeared into a store a door or two away, while he excused himself from Dorothy and entered the bank building.

Inside the street doors was a marble vestibule, where a stairway gave access to offices on the second floor. Beyond was another set of doors, to the bank itself, unlocked now for the evening's business but closed on the January weather. About to push his way through the inner doors, McDougall fell back.

There was no mistaking the scene. Four men were at another door, set in a far wall of the banking room, the side street entrance. Three were tugging desperately at the handle; the fourth, holding a gun, faced the tellers, who stood in apparent impotence at their windows, with hands raised.

In a momentary paralysis, before he could recover to act, McDougall heard a sudden and tremendous clangor from over the outside doors. One of the tellers had reached an alarm button with a cautious foot.

The four men gave up the struggle with the side door and sprinted toward the vestibule, and McDougall retreated before them, horribly aware that Dorothy sat in her car immediately in front of the building and that her mother might even now be emerging from the store a door or two away.

He burst on to the street.

"Pull ahead!" he yelled, waving imperatively. "Step on it! Go on—go on!"

Dorothy already had recognized the alarm. A glance assured her that McDougall had turned toward the store her mother had entered. She sent the car forward with a jerk, her foot hard down on the throttle as she let the clutch pedal fly back.

The four men came through the bank doors and looked out from the cover provided where the stone walls of the building projected a foot beyond the entrance. Half a block away, running heavily toward them, was a policeman.

The alarm had called people from the stores along the street. The policeman was closing in rapidly.

The four men darted from the bank's doorway and sped around the corner. A shot followed them, and then another, but they reached their car. Roaring, but without lights, it sped away down the dark street, Carlo Stellicci at the wheel, with familiar roads ahead.

There had been a mistake in Carlo's plans. The bank's side door was never unlocked for the Saturday evening business.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The stock market inaugurated the new year today with generally declining prices.

With motors and steels in the lead, losses of fractions to 2 or more points were recorded for a wide assortment of issues.

The unionization conflict in the automobile field, threatening a tie-up of all General Motors plants, helped to chill speculative and investment sentiment. The activity was small, however, transfers approximating 700,000 shares.

In view of the brief Saturday session, many traders extended their holiday. Few customers appeared at the boardrooms and attendance was sparse on the floor of the stock exchange.

With the principal commodity markets suspended, the share list had nothing from this direction to aid it. Bonds were mixed.

Conspicuous on the offside were Chrysler, General Motors, United States Steel, Bethlehem, Nash, Libby-Owens, Stone & Webster, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, American Smelting, United States Smelting, Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, Goodyear, United States Rubber, Crown Cork, Barber Co., Paramount and Loew's.

Issues that gave ground grudgingly included North American, American Water Works, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Consolidated Oil, Santa Fe, New York Central, Pennsylvania, National Distillers and Continental Can. A few, such as American Telephone, Western Pacific preferred, Kennecott, Socony Vacuum, General Bronze, Schenley and Seaboard Air Line managed to register small advances.

The steels were backward from the beginning. While the magazine "Steel" estimated world output of the metal in 1936 set a new high record, the current outlook was said to be clouded by possible repercussions from the sharp curtailment of automobile production.

Rubber company shares also moved indifferently for the same reason. Pared orders from the motor makers, it was argued, may cut into profits of the tire industry, necessitate layoffs of workers and, consequently, result in fresh difficulties with the unions. The rubber concerns, however, were understood to have sufficiently large inventories on hand at present to enable them to cope with protracted walk-outs if these should occur.

The utilities were fairly resistant despite the expectation many new laws regarding power companies will be introduced in the coming session of congress. Holders of these stocks also were awaiting with some hope pending supreme court decisions.

Although carrier issues were inclined to follow the rest of the list the volume here was limited. Heavy holiday traffic and expanding earnings for a number of the roads were helpful for this department.

MANY MARKETS CLOSED

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(P)—The New York stock and curb exchanges were among the few markets open for trading today.

Most exchanges in this country, Canada and Europe remained closed for an extended New Year's weekend.

Foreign exchange trading resumed. Also open was the Chicago cattle market. Among those remaining closed were the New York cotton exchange, Chicago Board of Trade, Liverpool grain market, Paris Bourse and the New York commodity exchanges.

'READING FUN' CONTEST ENDED

Annual Awards Made In Elementary Ouachita Parish School Event

Mrs. Crissie Williams, supervisor of elementary education of the parish schools, announced on Saturday the winners for 1936 in the "Reading Fun" contest. First place was awarded to Miss Fannie Oxford, of the Ransom school; second place to Miss Olive Gunby, of the Ouachita Parish Grammar school; third place to Miss Marie Filhiol, of Fondale school.

Each teacher makes and posts a colorful chart on which to place each pupil's score to be watched week by week. At the end of the year, these charts are brought to the superintendent's office and placed on display. These are voted on by all the first grade teachers and the three teachers judged to have the most meaningful and attractive charts are presented with some needed equipment for their rooms.

Pupils making a perfect score on the 20 exercises are presented with a new story book. First grade pupils making perfect scores and receiving books in 1936 were: Ouachita Parish Grammar school, Martha Gray Prentice; Ransom school, Opal Hicks, Maurice Rawls, Gerald Jordan, Hobson Norris, Carline May and Norris Roberts; Mt. Vernon school, Elysie Hindmon; Lenwil school, Juanita Ober, Vera Rawls, Leotha Cooper, C. L. Weaver; Swartz school, Maggie Mae Ludlow, Jamie Smith; Drew school, Robert Lee Ingram, Lonnie Dee Johnston; Crosley school, Billie Frances Blazier, Jimmie Dee Johnston, Mayton Bourgeois, and Billie Ruth Swindell; Mitchell school, Heloise Wood; A. L. Smith school, Donald Parser, James Gordon Waugh, Mabel Bonner and Catherine Barlow.

In the contest a booklet of 20 original stories are made by the teachers with a controlled vocabulary including only review words. With each story is an exercise with five responses to see how well the story is understood.

"Reading Fun" was first started in 1932 and one has been conducted each year ever since.

CHAPTER XVIII

arlo Stellicci had fled Bobbs Neck thout considering consequences, er than that he was likely to go to son by remaining. Neither his in-d father nor Tony had been an n in his mind; he had paid so lit- attention to his brother and parent so many years that it was only ural to ignore their interest in his cipitate flight.

Carlo had paused long enough in his ght to telephone a warning to his rage employes that their secret was t. This kindness, however, was ompted only by his desire to have e two meet him in the city with rtain monies and property secreted the garage. They repaid him by rrying the little hoard to New York d, instead of joining Carlo where waited at a hastily appointed ren-ezvous, continuing their journey in ight to farther destinations.

Carlo at length surmised the truth. e had been cheated.

Sadly he counted the money in his ocket, sadly abandoned his car, fear-ng the emblem of guilt now etched y police intelligence across its license lates.

And he vanished among New York's nillions for a period of meditation.

During this lonely time he even eglected his four acquaintances in he city, for he felt a vast distaste for hem. When, at last, he emerged from hiding, although he had never been called the answer to any one's prayer, he did indeed appear at the moment when profane questions were being asked as to his whereabouts.

It was on a Saturday afternoon. Three of his friends were gathered in the apartment which Carlo had frequently visited. They were rolling dice without enthusiasm.

At a proper signal from the doorbell one of the men opened the door and a fourth man entered. He it was who had acted as chairman of the last meeting which Carlo attended in these rooms.

"Well, I found out something," he said, slamming the door. "That Stellicci rat has beat it. That's why we haven't got any answer when we called his garage. The two tramps who worked for him have scrammed too, I guess. I telephoned the police out there from a booth at the corner; told them I was American Express and we couldn't find Stellicci to deliver a package of auto parts. Asked them if they could tell me anything. The cop I talked with said they'd like to know where he is, too. So I guess that tells the story. He got scared somehow and ran.

"The four of us can do the job. One car instead of two. One man outside, three inside. What was the layout Stellicci gave us? Park at that door on the side street, he said. Come out that door, into the car, straight down that street. What was the next turn?"

No one remembered the answer. They had depended on Carlo and his men more than they had appreciated. And all knew the danger of attempting the job without an easy route for escape.

They grew profane as they called on Providence to deliver Carlo Stellicci into their hands.

And then the doorbell rang with the answer to their supplications. Carlo Stellicci entered. An abject Carlo. A needy Carlo.

A Carlo who knew not where else to look for funds.

When the Osborn car stopped in front of the house, Bruce McDougall was ready. Turning out the lights and pulling on his overcoat, he ran downstairs, patting his pockets in a quick inventory. Keys, cigarets, change, wallet—darn the luck! He had forgotten to go to the bank this morning and cash a check on his new account. Now he had only a bit of silver, and faced a Sunday broke. What if Dorothy Osborn cared to see a movie tonight.

But as he walked toward the car he remembered having heard someone—Mike, probably—remark that the Bobbs Neck bank was open on Saturday evenings, largely for the convenience of shopkeepers who wished to deposit the receipts of their heaviest selling day. He'd ask Dorothy to stop at the bank; it would take only a moment.

Introduced to Mrs. Osborn, McDougall climbed in beside Dorothy and she turned the car.

"We have just one stop to make," she said. "I hope you won't mind waiting a moment while Mother gets something on Main street."

"As a matter of fact," said McDougall, "I have an errand, too, and I'll do it while you're stopping for Mrs. Osborn. I want to dash into the bank."

Bobbs Neck was at dinner, and Main street, soon to be busy with Saturday night shoppers and movie-goers, was comparatively deserted, so that Dorothy found parking space in front of the bank. McDougall helped Mrs. Osborn out of the car and she disappeared into a store a door or two away, while he excused himself from Dorothy and entered the bank building.

Inside the street doors was a marble vestibule, where a stairway gave access to offices on the second floor. Beyond was another set of doors, to the bank itself, unlocked now for the evening's business but closed on the January weather. About to push his way through the inner doors, McDougall fell back.

There was no mistaking the scene. Four men were at another door, set in a far wall of the banking room, the side street entrance. Three were tugging desperately at the handle; the fourth, holding a gun, faced the tellers, who stood in apparent impotence at their windows, with hands raised.

In a momentary paralysis, before he could recover to act, McDougall heard a sudden and tremendous clangor from over the outside doors. One of the tellers had reached an alarm button with a cautious foot.

The four men gave up the struggle with the side door and sprinted toward the vestibule, and McDougall retreated before them, horribly aware that Dorothy sat in her car immediately in front of the building and that her mother might even now be emerging from the store a door or two away.

He burst on to the street.

"Pull ahead!" he yelled, waving imperatively. "Step on it! Go on—go on!"

Dorothy already had recognized the alarm. A glance assured her that McDougall had turned toward the store her mother had entered. She sent the car forward with a jerk, her foot hard down on the throttle as she let the clutch pedal fly back.

The four men came through the bank doors and looked out from the cover provided where the stone walls of the building projected a foot beyond the entrance. Half a block away, running heavily toward them, was a policeman.

The alarm had called people from the stores along the street. The policeman was closing in rapidly.

The four men darted from the bank's doorway and sped around the corner. A shot followed them, and then another, but they reached their car. Roaring, but without lights, it sped away down the dark street, Carlo Stellicci at the wheel, with familiar roads ahead.

There had been a mistake in Carlo's plans. The bank's side door was never unlocked for the Saturday evening business.

Markets--Financial

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Stocks, heavy; motors, steels lead decline. Bonds, uneven; Latin Americans bought. Curb, easy; slight general recessions. Foreign exchanges, narrow; most rates unchanged. Cotton, sugar and coffee closed.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The stock market inaugurated the new year today with generally declining prices.

With motors and steels in the lead, losses of fractions to 2 or more points were recorded for a wide assortment of issues.

The unionization conflict in the automobile field, threatening a tie-up of all General Motors plants, helped to chill speculative and investment sentiment. The activity was small, however, transfers approximating 700,000 shares.

In view of the brief Saturday session, many traders extended their holiday. Few customers appeared at the boardrooms and attendance was sparse on the floor of the stock exchange.

With the principal commodity markets suspended, the share list had nothing from this direction to aid it. Bonds were mixed.

Conspicuous on the offside were Chrysler, General Motors, United States Steel, Bethlehem, Nash, Libby-Owens, Stone & Webster, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, American Smelting, United States Smelting, Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, Goodyear, United States Rubber, Crown Cork, Barber Co., Paramount and Loew's.

Issues that gave ground grudgingly included North American, American Water Works, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Consolidated Oil, Santa Fe, New York Central, Pennsylvania, National Distillers and Continental Can. A few, such as American Telephone, Western Pacific preferred, Kennecott, Socony Vacuum, General Bronze, Schenley and Seaboard Air Line managed to register small advances.

The steels were backward from the beginning. While the magazine "steel" estimated world output of the metal in 1936 set a new high record, the current outlook was said to be clouded by possible repercussions from the sharp curtailment of automobile production.

Rubber company shares also moved indifferently for the same reason. Pared orders from the motor makers, it was argued, may cut into profits of the tire industry, necessitate layoffs of workers and, consequently, result in fresh difficulties with the unions. The rubber concerns, however, were understood to have sufficiently large inventories on hand at present to enable them to cope with protracted walk-outs if these should occur.

The utilities were fairly resistant despite the expectation many new laws regarding power companies will be introduced in the coming sessions of congress. Holders of these stocks also were awaiting with some hope pending supreme court decisions.

Although carrier issues were inclined to follow the rest of the list, the volume here was limited. Heavy holiday traffic and expanding earnings for a number of the roads were helpful for this department.

MANY MARKETS CLOSED

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The New York stock and curb exchanges were among the few markets open for trading today.

Most exchanges in this country, Canada and Europe remained closed for an extended New Year's weekend.

Foreign exchange trading resumed. Also open was the Chicago cattle market. Among those remaining closed were the New York cotton exchange, Chicago Board of Trade, Liverpool grain market, Paris Bourse and the New York commodity exchanges.

'READING FUN' CONTEST ENDED

Annual Awards Made In Elementary Ouachita Parish School Event

Mrs. Crissie Williams, supervisor of elementary education of the parish schools, announced on Saturday the winners for 1936 in the "Reading Fun" contest. First place was awarded to Miss Fannie Oxford, of the Ransom school; second place to Miss Olive Gunby, of the Ouachita Parish Grammar school; third place to Miss Marie Filhiol, of Fondale school.

Each teacher makes and posts a colorful chart on which to place each pupil's score to be watched week by week. At the end of the year, these charts are brought to the superintendent's office and placed on display. These are voted on by all the first grade teachers and the three teachers judged to have the most meaningful and attractive charts are presented with some needed equipment for their rooms.

Pupils making a perfect score on the 20 exercises are presented with a new story book. First grade pupils making perfect scores and receiving books in 1936 were: Ouachita Parish Grammar school, Martha Gray Prentice; Ransom school, Opal Hicks, Maurice Rawls, Gerald Jordan, Hobson Norris, Carline May and Norris Roberts; Mt. Vernon school, Elysie Hindmon; Lenwil school, Juanita Ober, Vera Rawls, Leathia Cooper, C. L. Weaver; Swartz school, Maggie Mae Ludlow, Jamie Smith; Drew school, Robert Lee Ingram, Lonnie Dee Johnston; Crosley school, Billie Frances Blazier, Jimmie Dee Johnston, Mayton Bourgeois, and Billie Ruth Swindell; Mitchell school, Heloise Wood; A. L. Smith school, Donald Purser, James Gordon Waugh, Mabel Bonner and Catherine Barlow.

In the contest a booklet of 20 original stories are made by the teachers with a controlled vocabulary including only review words. With each story is an exercise with five responses to see how well the story is understood.

"Reading Fun" was first started in 1932 and one has been conducted each year ever since.

TRAFFIC BUREAU LISTS 1937 AIMS

Group To Continue Fight To Get More Favorable Freight Rates For City

A definite program of activity for 1937 on the part of the Monroe Traffic bureau has been outlined by the executive committee, headed by M. S. Biedenharn, chairman, in a report made to the membership and released for publication Saturday.

The traffic bureau, which was reorganized about two months ago, is devoting itself especially to the task of more favorable traffic rates for the Monroe trade area, the report shows.

During the past four or five years, numerous changes have taken place in practically all freight rates, a large number of which have proved detrimental to the best interests of Monroe and its immediate vicinity.

It is pointed out that a continuance of these unfavorable changes would no doubt finally result in the business of the city and vicinity being seriously limited. In order to protect this territory, the directors of the traffic bureau made a survey of the situation and found that unreasonable rates and discriminations existed and immediately proceeded to endeavor to correct these. There are a large number of matters still pending, the most important of which are the following:

Elimination of discrimination existing in the rates in favor of Shreveport as against Monroe applying to points on the Y. and M. V. railroad west of Vicksburg.

The cancellation of carload rates established on less-than-carload shipments from New Orleans to Monroe.

The establishment of the same relative rates from Monroe to points in Louisiana and Arkansas as apply from Arkansas shipping points to points in Arkansas and Louisiana.

Intervention in a case pending before the Louisiana public service commission involving relatively lower rates from New Orleans to Louisiana points than apply from Monroe to the same points.

The establishment of the same rates on cotton seed from points in Mississippi to Monroe as apply from points west of the Mississippi river to Mississippi oil mill points.

Reduction in rates on citrus fruits from Florida points to Monroe so as to be more on a parity with competitors.

Reduction in rates on iron and steel articles from the Birmingham district to Monroe.

Opposition has been filed to the spreading of the fourth class rates on practically all merchandise for fear it will create discrimination in favor of one point as against another.

The interstate commerce commission some time ago rendered a decision readjusting the rates on practically all commodities and as a result of this decision, communities hereabouts were placed in a more favorable position in which to do business as against the city's competitors. The readjustment contemplates a reduction of about 10 per cent in present current rates. The decision has been attacked by other communities that were not so favorably treated; therefore the effectiveness of the rates has been postponed from time to time, but it is expected that rates will soon be operative.

As is well known, there has been a burden placed in the exacting of a so-called emergency charge amounting to from seven to 10 per cent of the freight charges. These charges were officially eliminated on December 31, last. However the railroads, by formal petition, have asked the commission to continue the emergency charges on practically all of the carload traffic. The commission will continue taking testimony in connection with this petition on January 6, 1937 and continue to do so until the case is closed.

An autograph letter by Louisa May Alcott, referring to characters in her book, "Little Women," recently brought $480 at an auction in New York City.

Reading room, 602 Ouachita National bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "God" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, January 3, 1937. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." (Deut. 6.) The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love. Question: Are these terms synonymous? Answer: They are. They refer to one absolute God. They are also intended to express the nature, essence, and wholeness of Deity." (p. 465.)

PENIEL BAPTIST CHURCH
Between Brownville and Baucomville on Jonesboro Road

W. D. Combs, superintendent of the Sunday school, invites everyone to attend Sunday school at 10 a.m. We are greatly pleased with the attendance that has been and the interest shown during the past year. Now that the new year is beginning, we would like to see an increase in all departments and we hope that at the end of this year we will have made as much progress as we have had in the last few months of last year. Rev. W. E. Jones will be with us at the 11 o'clock hour and will bring a message, the subject of which will be "The Beginning of Years." The B. T. U., under the leadership of Lloyd Mercer, director, will begin at 6:30 p.m., and the evening service at 7:30. The subject of the evening message will be "The Wilderness of Sin." You are cordially invited to be with us at all services of the day.

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH
812 Mississippi Street
I. J. Brooks, Pastor

The pastor's morning message will be especially for the church; the subject, "Bearing and Sharing," from Heb. 11:18. It is earnestly desired that every resident member be present at this service. Visitors are always welcome. Rev. Wallace and a group of children from the Children's home will be with us at the evening hour. Come enjoy their program and bring your friends with you.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

We have listened to the Gloria in Excelsis Deo in the fields of Bethlehem on Christmas morning; we have worshipped with the shepherds the young child in the manger; and again and again we have meditated with wonder and awe upon this revelation that Almighty God has made of Himself. And we need to fix our faith firmly on this rock—the dogma of the Incarnation—before we go on to consider the significant manifestations of the Incarnate life which the church puts before us week after week in the Epiphany season. Services for this Sunday, the second after Christmas, are a celebration of the Holy Eucharist at 7:30 a.m., church school at 9:30 a.m., and a second celebration (choral) and sermon at 11 o'clock. Evensong and sermon at St. David's, Rayville, 4:30 p.m. The Epiphany, or the manifestation, falls on Wednesday, January 6. The manifestation of the Saviour King was made to humble Jewish shepherds, but the old Prophets had foretold, "The Gentiles shall come to thy light and kings to the brightness of thy rising." Epiphany celebrates the fulfillment of this prophecy—the coming of the Wise Men to worship at the manger, and the catholicity of the Messiah's Kingdom. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 9 o'clock. The church is open daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in, rest and pray.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Director of Music and Education

"What Think Ye of Christ?" will be the pastor's sermon subject for the morning hour. The choir, under Mr. Black's direction, will sing "The King of Love My Shepherd Is" (Shelley). "What Does Christ Think of You?" will be the question for the evening service. Sunday school meets at 9:45 a.m., B. T. U. at 6:10 p.m. Begin the new year aright by attending all the services.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH
Jackson at Wood Street
W. C. Scott, Pastor

There is no better way to start the new year than by attending church. If you have no church home, you are cordially invited to worship at this church at all services. Church school begins promptly at 9:30 a.m. in the children's division and 9:45 a.m. in all other departments. There is a well-organized class for every age group. Join your group Sunday for an hour of Bible study and Christian fellowship. This being the first Sunday, the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered. For the evening sermon, the pastor has chosen the subject, "A Tragic Failure." On Monday night at 7:30, the finance committee of the board of stewards will meet at the church office. All members of the committee are urged to be present. The Woman's Missionary society will meet at the church on Tuesday at 3 p.m. for the first business meeting of the year.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Oak And St. John Streets
Creyton S. Brooks, Minister

The church school enters upon a New Year. Think on this. What can you do to help? Enlarge its influence to reach more boys and girls, to make character, to prevent crime and save loss. 9:45 in the morning is the hour. New Year's sermon, 10:50 a.m. "Sandals for the Journey." Another at 7:30 p.m. "A New Road." The two Christian Endeavor societies meet at 6:30 p.m. Monday night is the usual time for the monthly meeting of the board of officers. Teachers' meeting on Tuesday night. Bible Study club on Wednesday night. Those interested should be present and on time with practical, constructive suggestions.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa
Ernest Duncan Holloway, Minister

"Another year is dawning!
Dear Father, let it be,
In working or in waiting, Another year with Thee,
Another year of leaning, upon Thy loving breast,
Another year of trusting, of quiet, happy rest.

Another year of service, of witness for Thy love;
Another year of training for holier work above.
Another year is dawning, dear Father, let it be
On earth, or else in heaven, another year for Thee."

The communion of the Lord's supper will be observed at the morning worship hour. Our meditation is "Passing But Once," based upon the words found in Joshua 3:4. How appropriate that the New Year should begin at the table, indicative of God's love for men and women and a Power commensurate with the demands of the days! God expects His people to be present. Shall we fail Him? Shall we disobey His revealed will? At the evening worship our minds will be given to one of the Greathearts of the Faith, and his ideas of The Christ. He was one of the big men of the cause. His statement is: "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." Sunday afternoon, January 10, at 2:30 o'clock, a standard training school for teachers and officials of the Sabbath schools will begin in our building. Five able teachers have been obtained. The courses are intended to prepare all leaders for better work. The general Bible unit should prove of interest to all people. An urgent appeal is made to the teachers of the Sabbath school and the folk of the congregation to enroll. We are counting on you.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH
Harrison and D'Arbonne
Sherrouse Addition

Sunday school and Bible class at 9:45 a.m. Church service at 10:45 a.m. The gospel lesson for this Sunday is found in St. Luke 2:21. The church as such does not recognize the calendar year in the order of her festival days. She numbers her days not by the sun and moon, but is guided in her course by the sun of righteousness. Yet it so happens that "the eighth day" after Christmas is also the first day of the year. The name of Jesus is inscribed in golden letters over the portal of the new year. The sermon will be based upon the 90th Psalm, verse 12. "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." All are cordially invited to worship with us.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH
3400 Lee Avenue
D. D. Cantrell, Pastor

The new year is here and Sunday is Victory day for Central Baptist church. The morning service is especially dedicated to the church members. Every one is urged to be present. Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. B. T. U. at 6:30 p.m. This is the time for new year resolutions. Make yours now to attend all church services. The church this year will endeavor to enlist all members in actual service. The every-member canvass for financial support begins Sunday. All members are expected to make their subscriptions on this day. The morning message of the pastor will be devoted to the church membership. The evening subject will be "The Challenge of the New Year."

COMPENSATION FOR FATAL FALL ASKED

A suit for compensation of $3,510 for the death of Fred Huffman, who died in a fall from the state highway bridge across the Ouachita river here while he was working on the bridge January 3 of last year, had been filed in the district court here yesterday by Huffman's step-mother, Mrs. Viola Huffman, of LaSalle parish. The Vincennes Bridge company, of Vincennes, Ind., builder of the bridge, was named defendant in the suit.

Mrs. Huffman's petition for damages set forth that her step-son was employed as a laborer by the bridge company, and that at the time of the accident he was engaged in pulling wooden forms from some concrete work. The petition declared that young Huffman was "knocked from his footing" and fell 55 feet to his death in the river. A heavy wooden form which also fell was believed to have struck Huffman during his fall.

The petitioner declared that she is the widow of young Huffman's father, Ben Huffman, who died in May, 1929. She listed her five minor children as co-petitioners.

The $3,510 sought as compensation is claimed due under the workmen's compensation act on the basis of 65 per cent of young Huffman's weekly salary of $18 for 300 weeks.

In another compensation case, in which a settlement was recorded yesterday through mutual agreement, Charles M. Godwin received $72.80 for injuries of two fingers received last August 9 while he was employed by the Loper Machine works.

BROTHERHOOD ELECTS

JENA, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—Officers for the first quarter of 1937 have been elected by the Baptist Brotherhood of Tullos. They are Hardtner Huffman, president; P. C. Prescott, first vice-president; Carlie Floyd, second vice-president; H. F. Hawthorne, secretary; and Mrs. T. O. Fields, pianist.

FEWER VOTERS SIGN

JENA, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—A total of 3,663 people signed the poll books in LaSalle parish before the deadline at midnight Thursday, stated Sheriff Barlow Thompson. This number is exactly 580 shy of that of 1935, when a total of 4,243 signed the books.

The Association of British Importers from Italy has sent a petition to Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, pressing the claims of British importers for compensation for losses due to imposition of sanctions against Italy.

STATEMENT MADE ON THREE BANKS

Depositors' Association Reports Progress Made In Liquidation

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Joseph A. Airey, chairman of the New Orleans Depositors' Association, Inc., today issued a statement showing the condition and progress in liquidation of three New Orleans banks as of December 31, 1936.

The banks in liquidation were the Canal Bank and Trust company, the Hibernia Bank and Trust company and the Interstate Trust and Banking company.

The statement showed that frozen deposits of the Canal Bank and Trust company amounted to $19,246,344.85 on December 31, 1936, compared with $21,277,506.09 on May 20, 1933, when the bank was placed in liquidation.

Assets of the Canal bank pledged with the Reconstruction Finance corporation at the end of 1936 was $38,775,531.54 compared with $58,445,965.45 pledged to the RFC and to the Chase National bank of New York when the Canal bank was closed in May, 1933.

Total gross liquidation of liabilities during the period amounted to $26,098,176.10 for the Canal bank, the statement showed.

The Hibernia Bank and Trust company showed deposit liability of the bank of $8,922,354.84 at the end of 1936, compared with $9,992,345.50 on May 20, 1933, when that bank was placed in liquidation.

The amount of collateral pledged to the Reconstruction Finance corporation at the end of 1936 was stated as $15,888,058.21, the amount pledged to others was reported at $185,728.20, while other assets were listed as $8,636,187.01.

The statement of the Interstate Trust and Banking company showed that all loans due the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Federal Reserve bank had been paid off during the liquidation.

Interstate deposits as of December 31, 1936, were given as $5,137,867.17 as compared with $12,909,774.34 on January 4, 1934, when this bank was placed in liquidation.

The amount of Interstate bank assets at the close of 1936 was given as $9,447,058.63, compared with $16,372,769.58 at the time the bank was closed.

J. ARTHUR SMITH, JR., VISITING IN MONROE

J. Arthur Smith, Jr., of Tallulah, who has been spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Arthur Smith, Sr., in Monroe, also included a trip to New Orleans where he saw the Sugar Bowl football game Friday.

The trip to New Orleans was financed by his insurance company as he had made a high record for sales the past year. He was accompanied to the game by Dr. C. Prentice Gray of Monroe and Mike Smith of Farmerville.

OFFICERS NAMED BY SCHOOL BOARD

Joe Renwick And Others Reelected To Serve During Coming Year

The Ouachita parish school board held its first 1937 meeting in the offices of Superintendent T. O. Brown Saturday at 10 a.m. All officers were re-elected for another year. They are as follows: Joe Renwick, president; Fred G. Thatcher, vice-president; T. O. Brown, secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Crissie Williams was re-elected as assistant superintendent and supervisor of parish elementary education.

J. C. Jordan, new member from ward 9, assumed his duties, succeeding T. G. Jones, who had served for many years.

No announcement was made as to the construction of the proposed new physical education building which is planned to be erected on the site owned by the school board on St. John street at Bry avenue. A government loan is being sought to assist in the financing of the structure.

SCHOOL MEETS STANDARDS

WINNSBORO, La., Jan. 2.—(Special)—W. B. Glover, principal of the Winnsboro High school, has been notified by John E. Cox, chairman of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Louisiana division, that the annual report of the high school here has been accepted by the association and that the condition of the school meets the standards of that organization.

A set of 21 proof plates drawn and engraved by William Blake in 1825 for "The Book of Job" sold for $5,000 at a sale in New York City.

SMALL DAMAGE DONE BY FIRES

West Monroe Closes Third Successive Year With Trifling Loss

For three years in succession fire losses in West Monroe have been less than $10,000 each year, according to Earl Taylor, chief of the department in that city.

During 1936, the department made 69 runs, listed as follows: Grass fires 16, car fires 16, house fires 18, miscellaneous runs 19. Value of the buildings in which fires occurred is given as $16,650, with $10,100 of insurance; the value of contents is placed at $14,550, with $11,500 of insurance. The loss of buildings is given as $3,045, and loss on contents $5,500, a total of $8,545.

In fighting the fires that occurred in 1936, 7,100 feet of hose were laid, and 43 hours and 51 minutes were spent in actual fire-fighting.

The department comprises two full-time men, Earl Taylor, chief, and A. G. Richardson, truck driver, and a force of volunteers who are paid on the basis of the number of fires on which they are called out.

Real Estate Transfers

Wayland W. McDonald sold to Francis L. Cantrell, yesterday, 110 acres of land located in section 13, township 16 north, range 3 east, and in section 18, township 16 north, range 4 east, for a consideration of $5,500, it was learned at the office of the parish clerk of court.

MUSICAL COMEDY TO BE PRESENTED AT SCHOOL

"Paints and Patches," a two-act musical comedy, will be presented at the Ouachita Parish High school auditorium Friday, January 15, at 8 p. m. by the parish glee club and the members of the parish band. Mrs. George Moffett and W. C. Minnicar will direct the production.

The cast will number approximately 35 members and there is said to be much talent shown in the personnel that has been selected.

Money that is netted at the entertainment will be devoted to the fund for the glee club and the parish band, Mr. Minnicar stated.

TRAFFIC BUREAU LISTS 1937 AIMS

Group To Continue Fight To Get More Favorable Freight Rates For City

A definite program of activity for 1937 on the part of the Monroe Traffic bureau has been outlined by the executive committee, headed by M. S. Biedenharn, chairman, in a report made to the membership and released for publication Saturday.

The traffic bureau, which was reorganized about two months ago, is devoting itself especially to the task of more favorable traffic rates for the Monroe trade area, the report shows.

During the past four or five years, numerous changes have taken place in practically all freight rates, a large number of which have proved detrimental to the best interests of Monroe and its immediate vicinity.

It is pointed out that a continuance of these unfavorable changes would no doubt finally result in the business of the city and vicinity being seriously limited. In order to protect this territory, the directors of the traffic bureau made a survey of the situation and found that unreasonable rates and discriminations existed and immediately proceeded to endeavor to correct these. There are a large number of matters still pending, the most important of which are the following:

Elimination of discrimination existing in the rates in favor of Shreveport as against Monroe applying to points on the Y. and M. V. railroad west of Vicksburg.

The cancellation of carload rates established on less-than-carload shipments from New Orleans to Monroe.

The establishment of the same relative rates from Monroe to points in Louisiana and Arkansas as apply from Arkansas shipping points to points in Arkansas and Louisiana.

Intervention in a case pending before the Louisiana public service commission involving relatively lower rates from New Orleans to Louisiana points than apply from Monroe to the same points.

The establishment of the same rates on cotton seed from points in Mississippi to Monroe as apply from points west of the Mississippi river to Mississippi oil mill points.

Reduction in rates on citrus fruits from Florida points to Monroe so as to be more on a parity with competitors.

Reduction in rates on iron and steel articles from the Birmingham district to Monroe.

Opposition has been filed to the spreading of the fourth class rates on practically all merchandise for fear it will create discrimination in favor of one point as against another.

The interstate commerce commission some time ago rendered a decision readjusting the rates on practically all commodities and as a result of this decision, communities hereabouts were placed in a more favorable position in which to do business as against the city's competitors. The readjustment contemplates a reduction of about 10 per cent in present current rates. The decision has been attacked by other communities that were not so favorably treated; therefore the effectiveness of the rates has been postponed from time to time, but it is expected that rates will soon be operative.

As is well known, there has been a burden placed in the exacting of a so-called emergency charge amounting to from seven to 10 per cent of the freight charges. These charges were officially eliminated on December 31, last. However the railroads, by formal petition, have asked the commission to continue the emergency charges on practically all of the carload traffic. The commission will continue taking testimony in connection with this petition on January 6, 1937 and continue to do so until the case is closed.

The foregoing matters are some of the larger ones that will receive attention during 1937.

CHURCHES

CHURCH OF CHRIST
South Second and Apple
J. P. Lowery, Minister

Bible study, 9:45 a.m. Preaching and worship 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Ladies' Bible study Tuesday, 2:30 p.m. Prayer meeting Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. In this day of glamour and sham, and pretention and ostentation, and shallowness, it is refreshing to find a place of worship where every spiritual element abounds and thrives. Such is the Church of Christ.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
Corner Auburn Avenue and North Second Street

Sunday services 11 a.m., Sunday school 9:30 a.m., Wednesday evening testimony meetings 8 o'clock. Reading room, 602 Ouachita National bank building, open daily, except Sunday and holidays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "God" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, January 3, 1937. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." (Deut. 6.) The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love. Question: Are these terms synonymous? Answer: They are. They refer to one absolute God. They are also intended to express the nature, essence, and wholeness of Deity." (p. 465.)

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE
Thomas and Richmond Streets
G. M. and Ina Lee Akin, Pastors

Sunday school at 9:45 a.m., Mr. S. P. Quigley, superintendent. Preaching by the pastor at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Mrs. E. L. Hoskins will sing at each service. The junior N. Y. P. S. will meet at 4 p.m. Mrs. Wallas Joiner and Miss Norma Thornhill will be in charge. The senior N. Y. P. S. will render an interesting program at 6:30 p.m. Mr. O. L. Hoskins is president. The W. M. S. will meet Monday at 2 p.m., with Mrs. Ina Lee Akin, president, in charge. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. An interesting musical program will be given and helpful talks will be made. The public is cordially invited to attend all these services.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH
Stone Avenue and South Third St.
I. L. Yeager, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Christian Endeavor at 6:45 p.m., Grace Zufall, leader of meeting. Evening service at 7:30. Circle No. 1 to meet as usual Tuesday afternoon at 3. Circle No. 2 to meet with Mrs. R. W. Irby, 4500 Jackson street, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Choir practice Tuesday evening at 7:30. Midweek prayer service Thursday evening at 7:30. Mrs. R. W. Irby will direct the service. Remembering your New Year's resolution, put it into practice. Attend church services Sunday.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
West Monroe
E. E. Huntsberry, Pastor
O. J. Thompson, Educational Director

The two messages for the first Sunday in the new year by Rev. Huntsberry will be "The Militant Church" for the morning hour, and "Take Cognizance of God," for the evening hour. The regular teachers' and officers' council meeting will be held Monday evening in the banquet hall of the church at 7 o'clock. Bible school 9:45 a.m., preaching hours 10:50 a.m. and 7 p.m. B. T. U. 6 p.m. Deacons' meeting Tuesday 7:30 p.m. Prayer and praise service Wednesday 7:30 p.m. Choir rehearsal Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

PENIEL BAPTIST CHURCH
Between Brownville and Baucomville on Jonesboro Road

W. D. Combs, superintendent of the Sunday school, invites everyone to attend Sunday school at 10 a.m. We are greatly pleased with the attendance that has been and the interest shown during the past year. Now that the new year is beginning, we would like to see an increase in all departments and we hope that at the end of this year we will have made as much progress as we have had in the last few months of last year. Rev. W. E. James will be with us at the 11 o'clock hour and will bring a message, the subject of which will be "The Beginning of Years." The B. T. U., under the leadership of Lloyd Mercer, director, will begin at 6:30 p.m., and the evening service at 7:30. The subject of the evening message will be "The Wilderness of Sin." You are cordially invited to be with us at all services of the day.

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH
812 Mississippi Street
I. J. Brooks, Pastor

The pastor's morning message will be especially for the church; the subject, "Bearing and Sharing," from Heb. 11:18. It is earnestly desired that every resident member be present at this service. Visitors are always welcome. Rev. Wallace and a group of children from the Children's home will be with us at the evening hour. Come enjoy their program and bring your friends with you.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

We have listened to the Gloria in Excelsis Deo in the fields of Bethlehem on Christmas morning; we have worshipped with the shepherds the young child in the manger; and again and again we have meditated with wonder and awe upon this revelation that Almighty God has made of Himself. And we need to fix our faith firmly on this rock—the dogma of the Incarnation—before we go on to consider the significant manifestations of the Incarnate life which the church puts before us week after week in the Epiphany season. Services for this Sunday, the second after Christmas, are a celebration of the Holy Eucharist at 7:30 a.m., church school at 9:30 a.m., and a second celebration (choral) and sermon at 11 o'clock. Evensong and sermon at St. David's, Rayville, 4:30 p.m. The Epiphany, or the manifestation, falls on Wednesday, January 6. The manifestation of the Saviour King was made to humble Jewish shepherds, but the old Prophets had foretold, "The Gentiles shall come to thy light and kings to the brightness of thy rising." Epiphany celebrates the fulfillment of this prophecy—the coming of the Wise Men to worship at the manger, and the catholicity of the Messiah's Kingdom. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 9 o'clock. The church is open daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in, rest and pray.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Director of Music and Education

"What Think Ye of Christ?" will be the pastor's sermon subject for the morning hour. The choir, under Mr. Black's direction, will sing "The King of Love My Shepherd Is" (Shelley). "What Does Christ Think of You?" will be the question for the evening service. Sunday school meets at 9:45 a.m., B. T. U. at 6:10 p.m. Begin the new year aright by attending all the services.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH
Jackson at Wood Street
W. C. Scott, Pastor

There is no better way to start the new year than by attending church. If you have no church home, you are cordially invited to worship at this church at all services. Church school begins promptly at 9:30 a.m. in the children's division and 9:45 a.m. in all other departments. There is a well-organized class for every age group. Join your group Sunday for an hour of Bible study and Christian fellowship. This being the first Sunday, the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered. For the evening sermon, the pastor has chosen the subject, "A Tragic Failure." On Monday night at 7:30, the finance committee of the board of stewards will meet at the church office. All members of the committee are urged to be present. The Woman's Missionary society will meet at the church on Tuesday at 3 p.m. for the first business meeting of the year.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Crayton S. Brooks, Minister

The church school enters upon a New Year. Think on this. What can you do to help? Enlarge its influence to reach more boys and girls, to make character, to prevent crime and save loss. 9:45 in the morning is the hour. New Year's sermon, 10:50 a.m., "Sandals for the Journey." Another at 7:30 p.m. "A New Road." The two Christian Endeavor societies meet at 6:30 p.m. Monday night is the usual time for the monthtly meeting of the board of officers. Teachers' meeting on Tuesday night. Bible Study club on Wednesday night. Those interested should be present and on time with practical, constructive suggestions.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Grammont at Catalpa
Ernest Duncan Holloway, Minister

"Another year is dawning!
Dear Father, let it be,
In working or in waiting, Another year with Thee,
Another year of leaning, upon Thy loving breast,
Another year of trusting, of quiet,
happy rest.

Another year of service, of witness for Thy love;
Another year of training, for holier
work above.
Another year is dawning, dear Father,
let it be
On earth, or else in heaven, another year for Thee."

The communion of the Lord's supper will be observed at the morning worship hour. Our meditation is "Passing But Once," based upon the words found in Joshua 3:4. How appropriate that the New Year should begin at the table, indicative of God's love for men and women and a Power commensurate with the demands of the days! God expects His people to be present. Shall we fail Him? Shall we disobey His revealed will? At the evening worship our minds will be given to one of the Greathearts of the Faith, and his ideas of The Christ. He was one of the big men of the cause. His statement is: "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away: behold, all things are become new." Sunday afternoon, January 10, at 2:30 o'clock, a standard training school for teachers and officials of the Sabbath schools will begin in our building. Five able teachers have been obtained. The courses are intended to prepare all leaders for better work. The general Bible unit should prove of interest to all people. An urgent appeal is made to the teachers of the Sabbath school and the folk of the congregation to enroll. We are counting on you.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH
Sherrouse Addition

Sunday school and Bible class at 9:45 a.m. Church service at 10:45 a.m. The gospel lesson for this Sunday is found in St. Luke 2:21. The church as such does not recognize the calendar year in the order of her festival days. She numbers her days not by the sun and moon, but is guided in her course by the sun of righteousness. Yet it so happens that "the eighth day" after Christmas is also the first day of the year. The name of Jesus is inscribed in golden letters over the portal of the new year. The sermon will be based upon the 90th Psalm, verse 12. "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." All are cordially invited to worship with us.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH
3400 Lee Avenue
D. D. Cantrell, Pastor

The new year is here and Sunday is Victory day for Central Baptist church. The morning service is especially dedicated to the church members. Every one is urged to be present. Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. B. T. U. at 6:30 p.m. This is the time for new year resolutions. Make yours now to attend all church services. The church this year will endeavor to enlist all members in actual service. The every-member canvass for financial support begins Sunday. All members are expected to make their subscriptions on this day. The morning message of the pastor will be devoted to the church membership. The evening subject will be "The Challenge of the New Year."

COMPENSATION FOR FATAL FALL ASKED

A suit for compensation of $3,510 for the death of Fred Huffman, who died in a fall from the state highway bridge across the Ouachita river here while he was working on the bridge January 3 of last year, had been filed in the district court here yesterday by Huffman's step-mother, Mrs. Viola Huffman, of LaSalle parish. The Vincennes Bridge company, of Vincennes, Ind., builder of the bridge, was named defendant in the suit.

Mrs. Huffman's petition for damages set forth that her step-son was employed as a laborer by the bridge company, and that at the time of the accident he was engaged in pulling wooden forms from some concrete work. The petition declared that young Huffman was "knocked from his footing" and fell 55 feet to his death in the river. A heavy wooden form which also fell was believed to have struck Huffman during his fall.

The petitioner declared that she is the widow of young Huffman's father, Ben Huffman, who died in May, 1929. She listed her five minor children as co-petitioners.

The $3,510 sought as compensation is claimed due under the workmen's compensation act on the basis of 65 per cent of young Huffman's weekly salary of $18 for 300 weeks.

In another compensation case, in which a settlement was recorded yesterday through mutual agreement, Charles M. Godwin received $72.80 for injuries of two fingers received last August 9 while he was employed by the Loper Machine works.

STATEMENT MADE ON THREE BANKS

Depositors' Association Reports Progress Made In Liquidation

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Joseph A. Airey, chairman of the New Orleans Depositors' Association, Inc., today issued a statement showing the condition and progress in liquidation of three New Orleans banks as of December 31, 1936.

The banks in liquidation were the Canal Bank and Trust company, the Hibernia Bank and Trust company and the Interstate Trust and Banking company.

The statement showed that frozen deposits of the Canal Bank and Trust company amounted to $19,246,344.85 on December 31, 1936, compared with $21,277,506.09 on May 20, 1933, when the bank was placed in liquidation.

Assets of the Canal bank pledged with the Reconstruction Finance corporation at the end of 1936 was $38,775,531.54 compared with $58,445,965.45 pledged to the RFC and to the Chase National bank of New York when the Canal bank was closed in May, 1933.

Total gross liquidation of liabilities during the period amounted to $26,098,176.10 for the Canal bank, the statement showed.

The Hibernia Bank and Trust company showed deposit liability of the bank of $8,922,354.84 at the end of 1936, compared with $9,992,345.50 on May 20, 1933, when that bank was placed in liquidation.

The amount of collateral pledged to the Reconstruction Finance corporation at the end of 1936 was stated as $15,888,058.21, the amount pledged to others was reported at $185,728.20, while other assets were listed as $8,636,187.01.

The statement of the Interstate Trust and Banking company showed that all loans due the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Federal Reserve bank had been paid off during the liquidation.

Interstate deposits as of December 31, 1936, were given as $5,137,867.17 as compared with $12,909,774.34 on January 4, 1934, when this bank was placed in liquidation.

The amount of Interstate bank assets at the close of 1936 was given as $9,447,058.63, compared with $16,372,769.58 at the time the bank was closed.

SMALL DAMAGE DONE BY FIRES

West Monroe Closes Third Successive Year With Trifling Loss

For three years in succession fire losses in West Monroe have been less than $10,000 each year, according to Earl Taylor, chief of the department in that city.

During 1936, the department made 69 runs, listed as follows: Grass fires 16, car fires 16, house fires 18, miscellaneous runs 19. Value of the buildings in which fires occurred is given as $16,650, with $10,100 of insurance; the value of contents is placed at $14,550, with $11,500 of insurance. The loss of buildings is given as $3,045, and loss on contents $5,500, a total of $8,545.

In fighting the fires that occurred in 1936, 7,100 feet of hose were laid, and 43 hours and 51 minutes were spent in actual fire-fighting.

The department comprises two full-time men, Earl Taylor, chief, and A. G. Richardson, truck driver, and a force of volunteers who are paid on the basis of the number of fires on which they are called out.

BUT THE ALERT JUNGLE LORD WAS NOT SO EASILY TRICKED. "GIVE ME YOUR PARACHUTE!" HE ORDERED.
BUCKLING ON THE HARNESS, HE CLIMBED INTO THE AFT COCKPIT AND TRAINED THE MACHINE GUN ON RATLOW, THE SULLEN PILOT.
"SEEK OUT THE PLANES OF YOUR FRIENDS--WHO ARE MY ENEMIES!" HE COMMANDED; "ONE FALSE MOVE AND YOU DIE!"

WHAT DO YOU MEAN — NUMBER 4 CAN'T BE HERE? WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH HIM?
HE'S SICK, BOSS.
HE CALLED ME OVER THE PHONE AND TOLD ME HE WAS IN BED. IT'S HIS STOMACH.
IT'S FUNNY HIS STOMACH BOTHERED HIM JUST AS WE WERE READY TO DO THAT LAST BANK JOB.
LISTEN, 2, GO TO NUMBER 4'S FLAT. FIND OUT IF HE'S IN BED. I'D LIKE TO KNOW MORE OF THE DETAILS.
YES, SIR.
MEANWHILE
I SHADOWED THE LITTLE GIRL AND HER AUNT — AND SAW THEM MEET THE KID'S FATHER.
I GOT A GOOD LOOK AT HIS FACE, CHIEF! HE'S "BALDY" STARK, PAROLED CONVICT, WHO WAS RELEASED FROM THE STATE PEN IN 1932.

YOU SHOULD HAVE NABBED HIM. HE'S A KILLER.
EASY, CHIEF! WE'RE GOING TO TAIL HIM UNTIL WE CAN NAB THE WHOLE PURPLE CROSS GANG!
NOW LET US LOOK IN ON A WOODLAND SCENE, JUST A FEW MILES BEYOND THE CITY LIMITS —
OH, DADDY. I'M SO GLAD YOU BROUGHT ME OUT IN THE COUNTRY. WE CAN MAKE A SNOW MAN.
SURE.
WHY DON'T YOU LIVE AT AUNTIE'S HOUSE WITH ME LIKE OTHER KIDS' DADDIES DO.
I'M GOING TO DO THAT SOON, ANGELINE.
ONLY WE'RE GOING AWAY TO LIVE. I'M GOING TO BREAK AWAY FROM THE OLD — — I MEAN - I'M GOING TO GET A NEW JOB - A JOB WHERE I CAN - - -
YOU MEAN — YOU'LL COME HOME EVERY EVENING -
YEAH — SOMETHING LIKE THAT - - - - A REAL JOB - - - - - - OH - ER - - -
HEL-LO, 4.

I SHADOWED THE LITTLE GIRL AND HER AUNT—AND SAW THEM MEET THE KID'S FATHER.
I GOT A GOOD LOOK AT HIS FACE, CHIEF! HE'S "BALDY" STARK, PAROLED CONVICT, WHO WAS RELEASED FROM THE STATE PEN IN 1932.
YOU SHOULD HAVE NABBED HIM. HE'S A KILLER.
EASY, CHIEF! WE'RE GOING TO TAIL HIM UNTIL WE CAN NAB THE WHOLE PURPLE CROSS GANG!
NOW LET US LOOK IN ON A WOODLAND SCENE, JUST A FEW MILES BEYOND THE CITY LIMITS—
OH, DADDY. I'M SO GLAD YOU BROUGHT ME OUT IN THE COUNTRY. WE CAN MAKE A SNOW MAN.
SURE.
WHY DON'T YOU LIVE AT AUNTIE'S HOUSE WITH ME LIKE OTHER KIDS' DADDIES DO.
I'M GOING TO DO THAT SOON, ANGELINE.
ONLY WE'RE GOING AWAY TO LIVE. I'M GOING TO BREAK AWAY FROM THE OLD— —I MEAN—I'M GOING TO GET A NEW JOB—A JOB WHERE I CAN---
YOU MEAN— YOU'LL COME HOME EVERY EVENING—
YEAH—SOMETHING LIKE THAT---- A REAL JOB------OH—ER---
HEL-LO, 4.
I THOUGHT YOU WAS SICK. WENT TO YOUR FLAT TO BRING YOU SOME ICE CREAM---- ---JUST IN TIME TO SEE YOUR CAR PULL AWAY DOWN THE ALLEY!
GET IN THAT CAR— AND GET BACK TO TOWN! THE BOSS WANTS TO SEE YOU—AND HE AINT KIDDING.
DADDY— DADDY!

IT AIN'T NOTHING TO GO GETTING EXCITED ABOUT, OFFICER- MY NEIGHBOR JEST MET WITH A ACCIDENT.
YES, BUT WHAT HAPPENED?
SHE WAS THE ACCIDENT!
NATURALLY WHEN I HEARD SOMEBODY FUMBLIN' AROUND THE DOOR AT THIS HOUR OF THE NIGHT I THOUGHT IT WAS EITHER A BURGLAR OR MY HUSBAND.
WELL?
WELL, I GREETED THE GOOF ACCORDINGLY.
I WAS MERELY CALLING TO DELIVER A MESSAGE - MR. MULLINS PHONED ME TO TELL HIS OLD LADY THAT-"OLD LADY?" NOBODY CAN CALL ME THAT AND STAY ON THEIR FEET!

THE Queen's Dragoons of Napoleon's army were advancing on Clausen in the Austrian Tyrol, in 1796. At their head rode a swarthy-skinned, athletic giant. He was Gen. Thomas Alexandre Dumas, son of a marquis and a Haitian negress, and father of the great French author, Alexandre Dumas.

Behind a barricade of upturned carts, blocking a narrow bridge, the Austrians stood ready with cocked rifles. Dumas, powerful and impetuous, did not hesitate. At the head of 25 volunteers, he rushed the bridge. Bullets rained on him and his men, but they hurled the carts into the river and swept across the bridge.

The enemy fled; the dragoons pursued. Suddenly Dumas' aide stopped him. He was being led into a trap. A new Austrian cavalry detachment was approaching. But as they crossed the bridge in pairs, Dumas, standing alone, mowed them down with that mighty saber until aid arrived. He had killed eight men, he had been wounded three times, his horse had been shot from under him, and seven bullets had pierced his cloak. For such feats he was known as "the black devil."

A Haitian stamp of 1936 pictures the valiant general, together with his illustrious son and his almost as famous grandson. It is shown here.

HAH! ANOTHER SPINACH-EATER!!— THE TERRIBLE "KID MUSTARD" CAN POPEYE TAKE HIM ???
I DON'T MIND GETTIN' LICKED IN THE RING IF IT'S A FAIR FIGHT
WHAT I YAM ASCARED OF IS—IF KID MUSTARD LICKS ME I YAM AFRAID YA WON'T BE ME SWEETY ANYMORE
BUT YOU MUST WIN
IF YOU DON'T LICK HIM I'LL GIVE YOU THE AIR! I DON'T LIKE FAILURES
OH, MY GORSH !!!
AND YOU'D BETTER BE CAREFUL BECAUSE I HEAR THAT KID MUSTARD EATS SPINACH
YEAH, THA'S WHAT I HEARS, TOO
HMM—I SUSPOSE HE'S GOT A RIGHT TO EAT SPINACH—I AIN'T GOT NO CONTROL ON IT—SURE, HE'S GOT A RIGHT TO
HEY, WAITER! MY NAME'S KID MUSTARD! BRING ME ANOTHER BOWL OF SPINACH BEFORE I KNOCK YA LOOSE FROM YOUR EYE TEETH
BAM
MAYBE I WAS TOO HARSH WITH POPEYE—I'LL BET HE FEELS BLUE—I'LL GO FIND HIM AND CHEER HIM UP
YOO-HOO, POPEYE! ARE YOU FEELING OKAY?
I CAME TO CHEER YOU UP
CHEER ME UP!!
YES.
WHY, YES, I CAME TO CHEER YOU UP
ARF! ARF! THA'S A HOT ONE! ARF! ARF!
I THOUGHT MAYBE YOU WERE FEELING A LITTLE LOW
WHY, THA'S REDICKELISS—I FEELS SWELL ARF! ARF!
DON'T BE SILLY!! I COULDN'T BE NO HAPPIER THAN WHAT I YAM !!!
ARF!
ARF! ARF!
WELL, I'LL HAVE TO RUN ALONG NOW—G'BYE
